Our history

Over two centuries ago, the foundations of the company were laid in pioneering fashion when in 1798 Richard Taylor launched the Philosophical Magazine, one of the first scientific journals produced by an independent company. It was the start of much close collaboration with scholarly societies. Dr William Francis, a chemist, joined Richard Taylor in 1852 and continued the tradition of the close links between the academic community and the company.

Today, we continue to be fully committed to the publication of academic and scholarly information of the highest quality and this remains our primary goal.

Taylor & Francis has grown rapidly to become a leading international, academic publisher. With offices across the globe, the Taylor & Francis Group now publishes more than 2,200 journals and over 5,200 new books each year; with a books backlist in excess of 110,000 specialist titles.

Prices featured are correct at time of going to press but are subject to change without notice.

Book orders should be addressed to the Taylor & Francis Customer Services Department at Hachette, or the appropriate overseas agent.

Hosting Earth

Facing the Climate Emergency

Edited by Richard Kearney Boston College, USA, Peter Klapes Boston College, USA, Urwa Hameed Free Immigrations Services, USA

Series: Psychology and the Other

Hosting Earth is a timely and much-needed volume in the emerging literature of environmental philosophy, drawing upon art, science, and politics to explore alternatives to the traditional domination of nature by humans. Focusing on the central role that the human psyche plays in answering our current ecological emergency, Hosting Earth is for anybody invested in the future of our planet and how psychological, psychoanalytic, and philosophical thought can reorient the current conversation about ecology.

3RD EDITION

Arguing About Political Philosophy

Edited by Matt Zwolinski University of San Diego, USA, Mario I. Juarez-Garcia Tulane University, USA.

Series: Arguing About Philosophy

This Third Edition is the most complete, up-to-date, and interdisciplinary anthology of its kind. Its selections cover classic philosophical sources such as those from Thomas Hobbes and John Rawls, important works in political economy from thinkers like Adam Smith, Friedrich Hayek, and Karl Marx, and the writing of cutting edge contemporary theorists like Debra Satz, Jason Brennan, and Ta-Nehisi Coates. This edition has been substantially revised to make it more suitable for a growing number of courses in Philosophy, Politics, and Economics (PPE).

Dharma and Detachment

Writings on Indian and Tibetan Philosophy

Edited by Nic Bommarito Simon Fraser University, Canada, Simone Weil

This is the first volume to draw together some of Weil's most important writings on eastern thought. Expertly edited by Nicolas Bommarito, the anthology contains writings drawn from Weil's extensive Notebooks. To help the reader gain a full insight into Weil's thought, the volume also includes key passages from the classical texts that inspired her, especially the Bhagavad-Gita and the Upanishads. In addition to an Introduction by Nicolas Bommarito, a glossary and suggestions for further reading are also included, making the volume an ideal starting point for those unfamiliar with Indo-Tibetan philosophy.

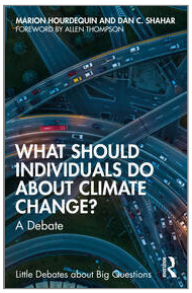
What Should Individuals Do About Climate Change?

A Debate



Marion Hourdequin Colorado College, USA., Dan C. Shahar University of New Orleans, USA

Series: Little Debates about Big Questions

Climate change is a pressing problem. Does each of us have a moral responsibility to help tackle it? In this volume, Marion Hourdequin and Dan Shahar debate the timely issue of individual behavior and climate change, examining what it takes to live morally in a warming world. The two authors take turns responding to each other and then defending their ultimate conclusions. This volume is sure to draw attention to the question of "individual choice" in climate change debates and to help clarify some of the best thinking on this issue.

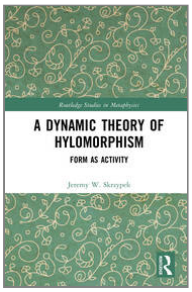
A Dynamic Theory of Hylomorphism

Form as Activity



Jeremy W. Skrzypek Ohio Dominican University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Metaphysics

This book introduces a hylomorphic theory of material objects, according to which material objects are understood as composed of both matter and activity, where activity plays the role of form. This theory, "hyloenergeism", captures the dynamic nature of many of the objects of our experience. This book argues against structural and dispositional varieties of hylomorphism in favor of a third approach: hyloenergeism. Drawing on aspects of traditional Aristotelian hylomorphism and other contemporary occurrence-based theories of material objects, it argues that hyloenergeism has the resources to successfully avoid or resolve several major concerns for other competing hylomorphic views.

Aquinas, Natural Law, and Social Ontology

Historical and Contemporary Perspectives

Edited by Ana Marta González University of Navarra, Spain

This volume explores the connections between Thomas Aquinas' doctrine of natural law and contemporary social thought. It aims to make explicit the basic notions of Thomas Aquinas's social ontology and to show how key concepts from sociology, economics, and political science relate to his ethics and social thought. Aquinas adopts a clear position on the ontological uniqueness of human beings, the intentional structure of human action, and the existence of informal social relations and institutional realities that shape human society. This volume shows how these views can be reconstructed into a coherent social ontology.

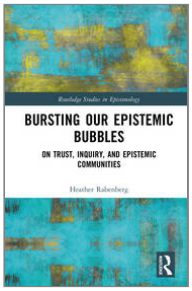
Bursting Our Epistemic Bubbles

On Trust, Inquiry, and Epistemic Communities



Heather Rabenberg SUNY Brockport, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

This book develops a social epistemic framework that expands our understanding of epistemic normativity and allows us to get a clearer view of epistemic bubbles and echo chambers. It argues that paying attention to social epistemic values is crucial to understanding the problems that plague our current social and political epistemic world. The author argues that there are also epistemic norms governing inquiry and trust. Assuming that we must choose between trust and inquiry is often the source of social epistemic problems. Inquiring while trusting is a crucial epistemic balancing act, which anchors us in epistemic communities and assists us in the pursuit of knowing with others.

Cities and Identities

Edited by Daniel A. Bell , Avner de Shalit

This book illustrates how cities possess unique normative identities, referred to as 'ethoses', and how the residents shape and perceive them. This collection argues that cities are emerging as new sources of identity, possessing their own "ethoses"—distinctive normative characters. The contributors explore this idea through six cities: London, Qingdao, Tokyo, Mumbai, Istanbul, and Amsterdam. This book was originally published as a special issue of Critical Review of International Social and Political Philosophy.

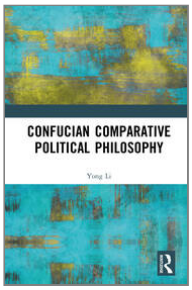
Confucian Comparative Political Philosophy



Yong Li

This book conducts a comparative study between Confucian political philosophy and contemporary political philosophy in the analytic tradition. The author demonstrates the relevance of Confucianism to contemporary discussions on important political ideals, such as equality, democracy, human rights and global justice. He also introduces individual Confucian thinkers, including both historical figures like Kongzi, Mengzi, and Xunzi, and contemporary thinkers such as Kang Youwei and Mou Zongsan. The book will appeal to graduate students and scholars studying ethics, political philosophy, and Chinese philosophy.

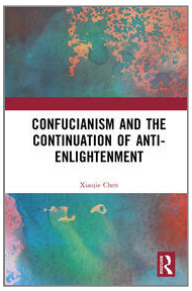
Confucianism and the Continuation of Anti-Enlightenment



Xiaojie Chen

The book emphasises that the modern Japanese and Chinese use of Qimeng (启蒙) to translate and interpret "Enlightenment" predominantly reflects the second interpretation of "Enlightenment" (i.e.Anti-Enlightenment) — a guidance or leading force. This interpretation betrays the spirit of equality, which was the most revolutionary facet of the 18th-century Enlightenment. In addition, it also presents a comparative analysis of Fraternity during the French Revolution and the Confucian benevolence. The book will appeal to scholars of Enlightenment, intellectual history, and comparative study of East-West thought.

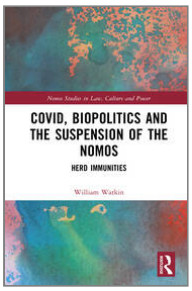
Covid, Biopolitics and the Suspension of the Nomos

Herd Immunities



William Watkin Brunel University London, UK

Series: Nomos Studies in Law, Culture and Power

This book considers how, during the unprecedented global lockdown due to the Covid-19 pandemic, the normal order of everyday life, of the rule of law, of power itself was interrupted, and hence the nomos of this earth was suspended. It will appeal to scholars and others in a range of disciplinary areas with interests in the legacy of covid; but especially those working in the areas of continental philosophy, contemporary legal theory and biopolitics.

Critical Perspectives on Social Constructions of Nature

Italy and the Bel Paese

Edited by Sara Bonati , Margherita Cisani , Marco Tononi , Giacomo Zanolin

This book explores the commodification of nature with a particular emphasis on how this process is perpetrated by capitalist societies. The book is written primarily for scholars, particularly in human, cultural and critical geography, political ecology, cultural studies as well as heritage, tourism, sustainability and urban studies. It will also be of interest to policymakers and planners in nature conservation, landscape planning and heritage management.

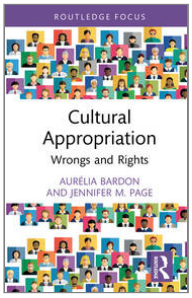
Cultural Appropriation

Wrongs and Rights



Aurélia Bardon University of Konstanz, Germany, Jennifer M. Page University of Zurich, Switzerland

Series: Routledge Focus on Philosophy

Debates about cultural appropriation have reached fever pitch. This much-needed analysis of the phenomenon steps back and ask: what is cultural appropriation and when are we right to criticise it? Cultural Appropriation: Wrongs and Rights will be of great interest to students and researchers in philosophy, politics and related subjects where cultural appropriation is an important issue, such as race and ethnic studies and anthropology.

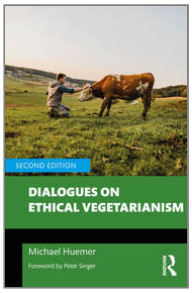
2ND EDITION

Dialogues on Ethical Vegetarianism



Michael Huemer University of Colorado, Boulder, USA.

Series: Philosophical Dialogues on Contemporary Problems

Worldwide every year, 83 billion animals are slaughtered on factory farms, at the end of brief lives full of suffering. Is it wrong to buy the products of this industry? In this book, two college students – a meat-eater and an ethical vegetarian – discuss this question in a series of dialogues conducted over five days. The two go on to discuss the vegan life, why people who accept the arguments often fail to change their behavior, and how vegans should interact with non-vegans. This Second Edition covers many new topics, from how to satisfy nutritional needs with plant-based foods to Progressive-inspired arguments for and against veganism.

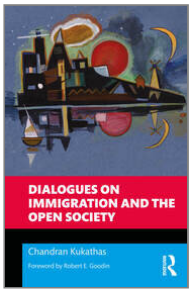
Dialogues on Immigration and the Open Society



Chandran Kukathas Singapore Management University.

Series: Philosophical Dialogues on Contemporary Problems

After some friendly pestering from six of his students curious about his thinking about immigration, a philosophy professor invites them to present their own ideas to him over a series of meetings throughout the term. This book is about their conversations.These dialogues introduce the reader to the most important ethical and political questions about immigration. Throughout the book, there is a strong emphasis on addressing the conceptual questions that are vital for making any headway in understanding practical issues. What is a refugee? What are rights? What is an open society? Indeed, what is immigration?

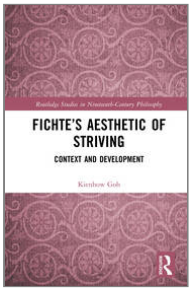
Fichte's Aesthetic of Striving

Context and Development



Kienhow Goh National University of Singapore

Series: Routledge Studies in Nineteenth-Century Philosophy

This book explores Fichte's theory of sensibility, focusing on its theoretical and practical significance. The first half examines the context and development of a "philosophy of striving" in Practical Philosophy, explains the background of Fichte's aesthetics, and discusses Kant's sensationalist view of pleasure. The second half explores how the investigations in Practical Philosophy reemerge in the Jena period through the theory of aesthetic experience and artistic creation, theory of moral deliberation, and theory of truth and justification (particularly in philosophy) and illustrates the pivotal role Fichte assigns to feelings in human spiritual development.

Friedrich Schleiermacher's Philosophy of Religion

Historical and Contemporary Perspectives

Edited by Stefan Lang Martin Luther University of Halle-Wittenberg, Germany, Klaus Viertbauer Catholic University Eichstätt-Ingolstadt, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in the Philosophy of Religion

This volume provides a comprehensive account of Friedrich Schleiermacher's philosophy of religion. The first section situates Schleiermacher in the context of the 19th-century philosophy of religion. These chapters analyse his relation to thinkers such as Kant, Fichte, Hegel, Schelling, Kierkegaard, and Heidegger, as well as to prominent theologians in the Protestant and Catholic traditions. The second section explores different aspects of Schleiermacher's philosophy of religion such as absolute dependence, religious feelings, and historical transformations. Finally, section three addresses how Schleiermacher's insights can contribute to contemporary philosophy of religion.

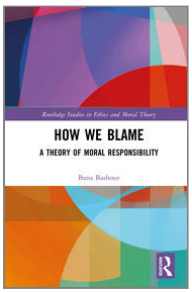
How We Blame

A Theory of Moral Responsibility



Bana Bashour American University of Beirut, Lebanon

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

This book presents a naturalistic account of moral responsibility that is neutral on the metaphysics of free will. It engages with empirical literature in experimental philosophy and psychology and draws on real-life case studies to illuminate the author's theory of moral responsibility. The author argues that agency requires an understanding of moral responsibility attributions, which requires that one understands one's intentional states and those of others. A distinctive feature of the author's account is that it makes room for cultural variability in our justifications of moral responsibility; those in different cultures may have different norms or expectations of one another.

Husserl on Depiction

Edited by Regina-Nino Mion Estonian Academy of Arts, Claudio Rozzoni University of Milan, Italy, John B. Brough Georgetown University, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Phenomenology

The publication of Husserliana XXIII "Phantasie, Bildbewusstsein, Erinnerung" in 1980 and John B. Brough's translation of it in 2005 increased interest in Edmund Husserl's philosophy of depiction. This volume is the first comprehensive collection in English that provides a systematic reading of Husserl's theory of depictive image consciousness. It explains the meaning of various concepts in Husserl's philosophy of depiction—such as Bildobjekt, Vergegenwärtigung, Perzeption — and examines the range and limits of the application of Husserl's depictive image consciousness to various art practices and media, and to other mental acts, e.g., phantasy, memory.

John Henry Newman and Contemporary Philosophy

Edited by Frederick D. Aquino Southern Methodist University, USA, Joe Milburn University of Navarra, Spain

Series: Routledge Studies in Nineteenth-Century Philosophy

While John Henry Newman's writings have long received the attention of historians, theologians, and literary critics, they have largely been neglected by philosophers. However, Newman's importance as a philosopher is just now beginning to be acknowledged. This volume brings together leading philosophers and Newman scholars to explore the contours of his philosophical thought and to show its relevance to contemporary philosophy. The chapters explore, develop, and evaluate Newman's thought considering recent work in epistemology, philosophy of religion, moral philosophy, and philosophy of education.

Kant's Early Followers in Political Philosophy

Edited by Reidar Maliks University of Oslo, Norway., Elisabeth Theresia Widmer London School of Economics, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Eighteenth-Century Philosophy

Kant influenced a large research group known as "the Kantian school" in political philosophy. This volume argues that these thinkers further developed the egalitarian principles of Kantian republicanism. The chapters advance three main theses. First, the Kantians defended democracy and supported extending the franchise to workers and women. Second, several of them developed a political perfectionism, the view that equal political rights are justified for cultivating moral character. Third, they developed sophisticated theories of state legitimacy and collective action that sought to show how a people has a right to change their constitution through reform or revolution.

Kant's Lasting Legacy

Essays in Honor of Béatrice Longuenesse

Edited by Stefanie Grüne Free University of Berlin, Germany, Colin Marshall University of Washington, USA

Series: Routledge Festschrifts in Philosophy

Béatrice Longuenesse is one of the most important scholars of German philosophy in the past 50 years. This volume features essays written by Longuenesse's long-time interlocutors and former students that reflect on the influence of her work. In her earlier work, she shed light on the importance of subtle features of Kant's and Hegel's philosophical systems. Her more recent work has built on doctrines concerning the self and self-consciousness from Kant and other philosophers. Some essays engage directly with Longuenesse's work, while others focus on related themes. Together, the chapters express the importance of Longuenesse's accomplishments and the vibrant state of the field.

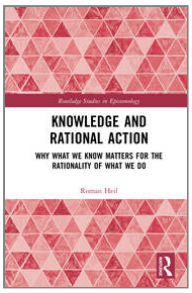
Knowledge and Rational Action

Why What We Know Matters for the Rationality of What We Do



Roman Heil Goethe University Frankfurt, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

This book develops the view that knowledge should be at the centre of our theory of practical rationality. It offers a defence of this slogan in the form of a knowledge-based decision theory. It offers solutions to challenges that invoke high-stakes scenarios, seemingly rational actions based on reasonable but false beliefs, and decision-making under risk and uncertainty. The emerging view brings together traditional and formal approaches to epistemology and the study of practical rationality. The resulting knowledge-based decision theory is embedded in a rich normative landscape, encompassing innovative accounts of excuses, rational acceptance, and the simplification of reasoning.

Levinas, Ethics, and the Israeli-Palestinian Conflict

Norman K. Swazo North South University, Dhaka, Bangladesh

This book engages with the philosophical thought of French-Jewish philosopher Emmanuel Levinas. It studies some of his Talmudic readings and his concern for a Jewish "universal ethics." It does so in relation to the protracted Israeli-Palestinian conflict and the moral imperatives that apply to the conduct of the State of Israel and the Israeli Defense Forces (IDF) vis-à-vis the Palestinian people.

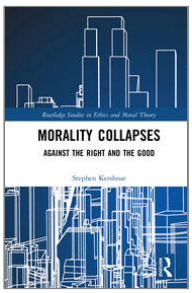
Morality Collapses

Against the Right and the Good



Stephen Kershnar State University of New York at Fredonia, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

This book argues that consequentialism and non-consequentialism are false because they face metaphysical and intuitional problems. The two theories exhaust the theories of the right, so there is no rightness. This result matters because it requires us to give up widely held beliefs regarding knowledge, moral responsibility, and reasons for action. The author's argument is unique because it focuses on applied-ethical arguments rather than metaethical issues. Specifically, it avoids metaethical discussions of whether morality explains our thoughts and actions, how we know about morality, and whether the denial of morality is self-defeating.

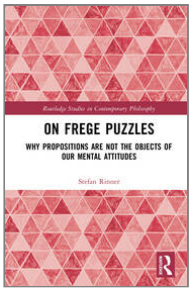
On Frege Puzzles

Why Propositions Are Not the Objects of Our Mental Attitudes



Stefan Rinner University of Duisburg-Essen, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book argues against the received view of propositional theory, according to which mental attitudes are relations held between agents and propositions. It argues that the propositional theory does not provide a solution to Frege's puzzle about belief. It also shows that the propositional theory cannot solve Schiffer's puzzle regarding de re belief, which uses highly plausible exportation and rationality principles for de re belief. The author proposes and develops a non-relational account of the attitudes in question that, together with a measurement account of the respective attitude ascriptions, provides a solution to both Frege's puzzle and Schiffer's puzzle.

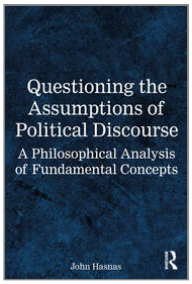
Questioning the Assumptions of Political Discourse

A Philosophical Analysis of Fundamental Concepts



John Hasnas Georgetown University, USA.

Much of our contemporary political discourse rests on unquestioned assumptions. This book questions these underlying assumptions and then offers new, unconventional answers. Each chapter of the book addresses one of these assumptions, designed to serve both an educational and an argumentative purpose. Begining with the educational aspect by providing the reader with necessary background information and a description of the current state of intellectual debate on the relevant subject. The chapter then identifies the assumption upon which this debate rests, presenting reasons to believe that it is false, and presenting an alternative resolution to the debate.

Religion and Atheism in Dialogue

Doing Difference Differently

Edited by Anthony Carroll Anglican Church Costa del Sol West, Spain, Richard Norman

Of all disagreements, the gulf between those who believe in a religious mindset and those who don't is arguably one of the greatest. This fascinating book, based on conversations between religious and non-religious participants, asks if societies divided on such fundamental questions can nonetheless find some common ground. Religion and Atheism in Dialogue will interest anyone who is concerned about the clash between the religious and the secular and how to move beyond it, as well as students of ethics, philosophy of religion and religious studies.

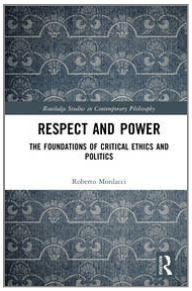
Respect and Power

The Foundations of Critical Ethics and Politics



Roberto Mordacci Vita-Salute San Raffaele University, Italy

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book presents a historically informed and theoretically systematic theory of respect that challenges many of the presuppositions of the current debate in ethics and politics. It develops a theory of respect as the rule of power relations, which draws connections between Kant's critical philosophy and Critical Theory. Power is the fundamental force at work in social relations, and respect is the recognition of power with a critical stance that defines how power is to be used and regulated. A close confrontation with Arendt's and Foucault's analyses of power offers the opportunity to clarify in which sense respect is the rule of power relations.

Sellars and Davidson in Dialogue

Truths, Meanings, and Minds

Edited by Willem A. deVries University of New Hampshire, USA, Marc A. Joseph University of Central Missouri, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in American Philosophy

Wilfrid Sellars and Donald Davidson were two of the most influential American philosophers of the twentieth century. This volume explores the similarities and differences between them and addresses the deep relations of their views on mind, language, and knowledge. The chapters demonstrate how, despite coming from different assumptions and methodologies, Sellars and Davidson converge on a view that essentially erases the philosophy of language as a separate discipline and embeds it in the philosophy of action.

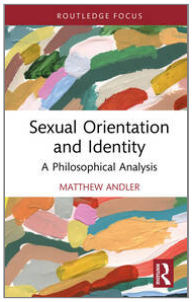
Sexual Orientation and Identity

A Philosophical Analysis



Matthew Andler Saint Louis University, Madrid Campus, Spain

Series: Routledge Focus on Philosophy

Sexual orientation and how we might understand it is a topic that arouses significant controversy. Is sexual orientation a natural or social phenomenon? Do categories such as 'queer' and 'straight' exist only in relation to social structures and cultures? Whilst such questions have been examined from the perspectives of sociology and gender, until this book they have remained relatively underexplored from a philosophical standpoint. Will be of interest to those studying the philosophy of gender, social metaphysics and gender studies and also those interested in the conceptual issues underlying debates concerining gender and social justice.

The History and Philosophy of Boredom

Edited by Andreas Elpidorou University of Louisville, USA , Josefa Ros Velasco Universidad Complutense Madrid, Spain

Series: Rewriting the History of Philosophy

From Lucretius's horror loci and Buddhist drowsiness to the religious boredom of acedia and the philosophical explorations of Kant, Schopenhauer, Kierkegaard, and Heidegger, boredom has long been a subject of philosophical fascination. The History and Philosophy of Boredom explores boredom's intellectual history from its early origins to its contemporary manifestations. Containing 18 specially commissioned chapters, the volume is essential reading for students and researchers in the history of philosophy, emotion studies, phenomenology, and moral psychology. It will also interest scholars in religion, classics, sociology, and the history of psychology.

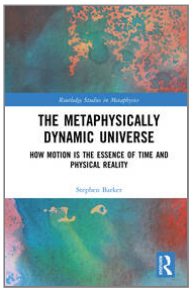
The Metaphysically Dynamic Universe

How Motion is the Essence of Time and Physical Reality



Stephen Barker University of Nottingham, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Metaphysics

This book develops a metaphysical framework in which time is motion through a higher dimension. In other words, time literally flows. It breaks through the long debate about time flow and temporal experience in metaphysics by offering a new approach that reconciles psychological time with the time of science. Our experience of change and our own being in time reveals a relentless motion or passage. This book rejects the orthodox view that motion is explained in terms of space and time; rather, it uses space and motion to define time. Furthermore, it solves puzzles of time, change, and persistence, and is consistent with special relativity.

The Phenomenology of Essences

Edited by Till Grohmann KU Leuven, Belgium

Series: Routledge Research in Phenomenology

This volume explores the phenomenological notion of essence and related concepts. It identifies the centrality of essences in Husserl's transcendental phenomenology and traces their influence from the early phenomenological movement through to contemporary debates. The book discusses the role of essences in epistemology, philosophy of language, sociology, philosophical anthropology, transcendental phenomenology, phenomenological realism and idealism, imagination, metaphysics, and mathematics. It also reflects on the problematic relationship of essences to philosophical anthropology, philosophy of culture, and metaphysics.

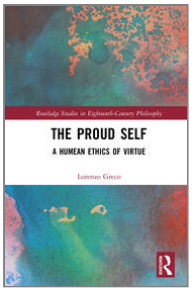
The Proud Self

A Humean Ethics of Virtue



Lorenzo Greco University of L'Aquila, Italy

Series: Routledge Studies in Eighteenth-Century Philosophy

This book presents a novel interpretation of Hume as a proponent of sentimental virtue ethics. The book starts by developing an understanding of the self in Hume based on the passion of pride. By focusing on pride, it is possible to identify in Hume a firm notion of the self as having a sentimental nature that can be explained in narrative terms. The book shows how the narrative self connects to central issues in Hume's moral philosophy, including sympathy, the point of view from which we make moral judgements, the practical nature of ethics and the role that reflection plays in it, and the definition of perfect character.

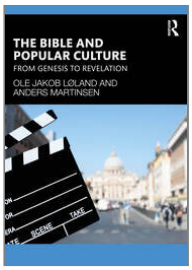
The Bible and Popular Culture

From Genesis to Revelation



Ole Jakob Løland , Anders Martinsen

This book is an accessible overview of the Bible's complex and evolving reception in popular culture. Drawing on biblical interpretations in TV, film, and music, it demonstrates the enduring diversity of the Bible's reception history. Ranging from Genesis and Exodus to the Gospels and Revelation of the New Testament, its biblical chronology takes a book-by-book format which locates and examines various examples of how these texts have been read, received, and interpreted. Woven within these chapters is fresh analysis of how themes of parody, satire, sex, and conspiracy appear in these biblical interpretations

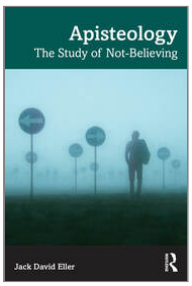
Apisteology

The Study of Not-Believing



Jack David Eller Woxsen University, India

This book unites the burgeoning scholarly literature on not-believing in various disciplines into a proposed new field of apisteology. It demonstrates that not-believing—like not-knowing—is a worthy and distinct subject and not merely a vacuum where belief (like knowledge) is lacking. Several contemporary issues appear repeatedly in the book, such as conspiracy theories, vaccine skepticism, climate change denial, and fake news. It will be key reading for scholars and students across the social sciences and humanities.

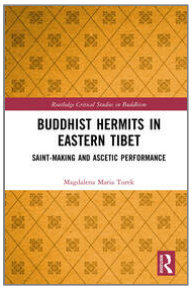
Buddhist Hermits in Eastern Tibet

Saint-Making and Ascetic Performance



Magdalena Maria Turek

Series: Routledge Critical Studies in Buddhism

Buddhist Hermits in Eastern Tibet explores the ritual and social empowerment of Buddhist monastics devoted to meditation under a charismatic master. Based on ethnographic research at a remote hermitage in Yushu Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture, Qinghai province in China, this book examines contemplative practices and ascetic regimes as performances of renunciation, self-formation, and devotion, arguing that the master performs the ideal of Buddhist asceticism via his body and in front of a participant audience. This book will be of interest to academic researchers and students of Buddhism, Religion, Anthropology and Asian Studies.

Christian Faith and Christian Learning

A Theological Action Research Account

Clare Watkins University of Roehampton, James Butler

Series: Explorations in Practical, Pastoral and Empirical Theology

Following a critical analysis of the pedagogical theology and practice of Christian learning, this book develops a radical alternative account of 'faith learning'. Through close engagement with the practicalities of one declining denomination (British Methodism), the authors offer a distinctive vision of Christian learning and enable fresh thinking and practice. Ultimately it seeks to give substance to a fresh concept of 'faith learning', which is holistic, integrative and inductively achieved, and finds its fulfilment in lives lived in faith, hope, and love.

Embodied Pedagogies in the Study of Religion

Transforming the Classroom

Edited by Sravana Borkataky-Varma , Sarabinh Levy-Brightman

Embodied Pedagogies in Religion provides a forum for creative, teachers of religion to discuss ways in which they think about the embodied dimension of teaching and learning specific to their areas of expertise and how they have shaped their curriculum to engage and reflect their thinking. This volume is as an open-ended conversation that embraces the exploration of different pedagogies with different kinds of content and quests for different forms of learning and understanding, and will contribute to a developing conversation in religious studies that move beyond rigid orthodoxies to a place of open creative, productive, and enacted exploration, cultivation, and theorization.

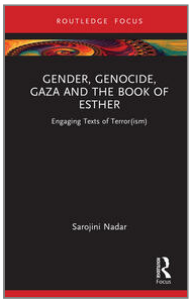
Gender, Genocide, Gaza and the Book of Esther

Engaging Texts of Terror(ism)



Sarojini Nadar

Series: Rape Culture, Religion and the Bible

Gender, Genocide, Gaza and the Book of Esther: Engaging Texts of Terror(ism) bridges the gap between gendered and geopolitical analyses by interrogating both the sexual and ethnic violence embedded in the Book of Esther. Through a combination of narrative inquiry, inter-textual readings, critical discourse analysis, and theological assessments of both the biblical text and its contemporary reception, Gender, Genocide, Gaza and the Book of Esther invites interpreters to consider the larger frameworks of ethnicity and racialization within which hermeneutics of sexual violence take place.

Global Lutheranism in the Contemporary World

Luther's Realm

Edited by Richard Cimino SUNY Old Westbury, USA.

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book explores Lutheranism and its various expressions throughout the world. This Protestant tradition has spread and developed far from its European and American heartlands to take on increasingly diverse forms. The global dispersion of Lutheranism and how it interacts with different cultures and worldviews has resulted in Lutheran pluralism in theology and church practices. However complex the concept of world Lutheranism may be, this volume demonstrates that a wide angle view can best be achieved through understanding national Lutheran expressions and the 'lived religion' of these churches and their adherents.

International Perspectives on Science, Culture, and Belief

From Complexity to Globality

Edited by Fern Elsdon Baker , Stephen H. Jones , James Riley

Highlighting the natures and varieties of the interrelation between science and belief globally, this volume addresses the relationships between science, culture, and belief from multiple disciplines, methodologies and geographical contexts including South Asia, Latin America, Africa and Australia as well as Europe and North America. This work has particular relevance in the increasingly polarised post-pandemic world, shining a light for the first time on the multi-faceted interplay between social identities and cultural narratives in debates that are often about far more than the science.

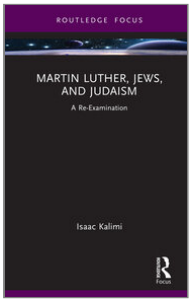
Martin Luther, Jews, and Judaism

A Re-Examination



Isaac Kalimi Johannes Gutenberg-University Mainz, Germany

Series: Routledge Focus on Religion

This book explores Martin Luther's attitudes towards Jews and Judaism, considering his approach in the historical, religious, theological, and cultural context of late Middle Ages Europe. Luther made numerous venomous comments and wrote violently anti-Semitic tracts. Reflecting on these statements, the book maintains that Luther's stance cannot be excused as a reaction to issues with family, health, ageing, or as an integral part of society's norms. The author argues that Luther's Judeophobia was rooted in a reading of the Old and New Testaments, and in the Christian anti-Jewish tradition, education, and fundamental theological worldview on Jews and Judaism that he chose to escalate.

Rediscovering Humanitarianism

Using Secular and Religious Histories to Provide New Understandings of Refugee Resettlement

Edited by Jessica Stroja Griffith University, Australia

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book provides a new approach to understanding the histories of refugee resettlement and their relevance for contemporary emergencies. By drawing on histories of faith-based humanitarianism from 1917 to the present, it explores how faith-based organisations have engaged with refugee aid and the efforts of other secular humanitarian movements. This book provides new ways to understand the provision of refugee aid via a broad spectrum of organisations rather than groups from separate "categories" acting in isolation.

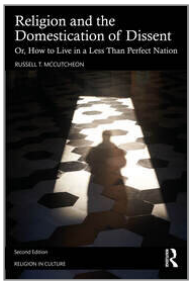
2ND EDITION

Religion and the Domestication of Dissent

Or, How to Live in a Less Than Perfect Nation



Russell T. McCutcheon

Series: Religion in Culture

In its first edition Religion and the Domestication of Dissent focused on the events of 9/11 and the representation of Islam. Scholars and pundits effectively demonised a whole faith by wilfully apportioning blame and by ignoring the differences within the Islamic movement. This cutting-edge new edition examines how the classifications we use to name and negotiate our social worlds - notably 'religion' - are implicitly political and this volume is therefore not a descriptive but, rather, a socially formative category that accomplishes work in liberal democracies.

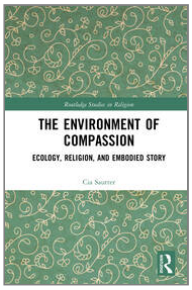
The Environment of Compassion

Ecology, Religion, and Embodied Story



Cia Sautter

The Environment of Compassion explores questions of what it means to be in relationship to nature, if and how it is a religious experience, and how understanding humans as part of nature alters theology. The book offers a performance perspective that looks at ritual, dance, and theatre as a means of presenting discussion of sacred values in the public realm. The book is relevant to scholars of religion and theology, particularly those with an interest in the environment, as well as theatre, dance and performance studies.

Theopolitics and the Era of the Witness

Jane Barter

Series: Transforming Political Theologies

Theopolitics and the Era of the Witness focuses on witnessing in the aftermath of political atrocity or genocide. It offers a diachronic study of the relationship between theological forms of witnessing within the Jewish and Christian traditions and public forms of witnessing in the twentieth and twenty-first centuries. The book makes a valuable contribution to political theology and in particular as a work of theopolitics, which claims that theology, despite its persistent misuse, can serve a constructive and critical force within public life, albeit in a chastened key.

Edited by Frieder Ludwig , Ellen Vea Rosnes , Joar Haga , Marina Xiaojing Wang , Jairzinho Lopes Pereira

Series: Studies in World Christianity and Interreligious Relations

Focusing on the history of World Christianity, this book relates the concept of 'transloyalties' to developments during the 'Period of Decolonization and the Cold War'. This was a time when the terms 'loyal' and 'loyalty' became more frequently used, not only in the USA, where a 'loyalty programme' was introduced, but also in Africa, Asia and Europe. These are some of the questions which underlie the importance of this volume to the study of the history of World Christianity.

"Dangerous Vagabonds"

French Senegal and Resistance to Slave Emancipation

Robin A. Hardy

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

Dangerous Vagabonds examines the problem of illicit slavery in Senegal following the 1848 emancipation law. Where traditional scholarship relates its persistence to the economic and logistic pressures in the region, as well as a strong indigenous tradition of forced labor, this study goes further to show that inherent factors within the culture of French colonialism made abolishing the institution exceedingly difficult.

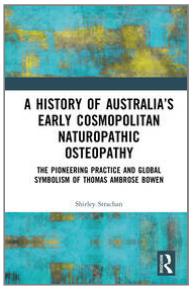
A History of Australia's Early Cosmopolitan Naturopathic Osteopathy

The Pioneering Practice and Global Symbolism of Thomas Ambrose Bowen



Shirley Murray Strachan

Revealing the forgotten ideas and philosophy behind early naturopathic osteopathy, Strachan presents a reoriented historical view of Thomas Bowen and his work, breaking from the prevailing twentieth-century legitimation narrative of chiropractic subsuming osteopathy, and exploring the contributions and practices of early cosmopolitan Australian osteopathy naturopathy pioneers FG Roberts and Maurice Blackmore. An accessible book for historians and practitioners of early osteopathy, chiropractic and naturopathy, especially to the large, international community of accredited Bowen therapists.

Capitalist Cold

Emotions and the Economy in Europe and the United States

Edited by Agnes Arndt Hannah Arendt Institute for Totalitarianism Studies, TU Dresden, Germany, Kerstin Maria Pahl Max Planck Institute for Human Development, Germany

Series: Routledge Approaches to History

The capitalist system has often been described by its critics as a heartless economic structure corroding social bonds and symbolic values. Its defenders and analysts likewise use narratives that position emotions as central to the economy. This book enquires into the history of these framings. This book is aimed at students and scholars of social, economic, and cultural history.

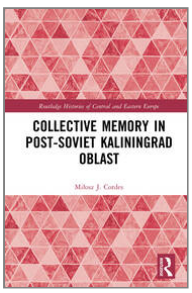
Collective Memory in Post-Soviet Kaliningrad Oblast



Miłosz J. Cordes

Series: Routledge Histories of Central and Eastern Europe

This volume presents the way the discourse of memory and identity in the post-Soviet territory of Kaliningrad Oblast has altered over time, examining the ways in which German myths about East Prussia were reused and adapted after 1991 and the role of the region has played in wider memory politics of the Russian state, particularly since Vladimir Putin's second presidency began in 2012. Collective Memory in Post-Soviet Kaliningrad Oblast is intended for scholars interested in collective memory in the post-Soviet space, as well as the role that the history Kaliningrad Oblast has played in establishing the so-called neo-conservative narrative in today's Russia.

Information and the Government of the Composite Polities of the Renaissance World (c. 1350-1650)

Edited by Alessandro Silvestri

This book examines the role of information as a crucial means for governance and negotiation, through which Renaissance rulers and governments managed the composite polities under their control. The chapters in this book explore how information enabled authorities to monitor events within their dominions and colonies, shape policies and decision-making processes, and interact and negotiate with local political societies. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of European Review of History.

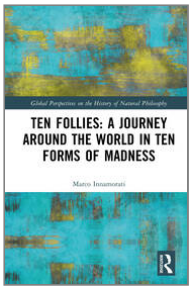
Ten Follies: A Journey Around the World in Ten Forms of Madness



Marco Innamorati Università Tor Vergata, Italy

Series: Global Perspectives on the History of Natural Philosophy

Ten Follies: A Journey Around the World in Ten Forms of Madness focuses on a critical question in the history of psychiatry: to what extent does psychopathology describe phenomena that exist before or beyond their description? Marco Innamorati probes the view that any description of a psychopathological phenomenon is, to a significant extent, the result of a construction by the subject describing it or a co-construction made by the clinician and the patient—a perspective also known as the "constructivist" approach.

Voluntary Organisations, the Red Cross, and the Features of Humanitarian Reconstruction in Western Europe after the World Wars

Edited by Romain Fathi , Melanie Oppenheimer , Paul-André Rosental

This book explores the ways in which non-government organisations have contributed to the reconstruction of, and care for populations in, Western European countries including but not limited to Belgium, France, Germany, Italy and the United Kingdom in the aftermath of the World Wars. The chapters in this volume investigate how the Red Cross movement alongside other voluntary organisations such as the Rockefeller Foundation and a range of other international and local non-government bodies, have contributed to reconstruction in these countries at both national and local levels following times of crises such as wars, civilian upheavals and disasters.

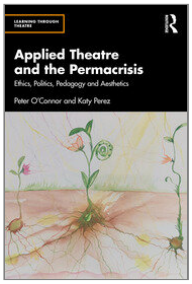
Applied Theatre and the Permacrisis

Ethics, Politics, Pedagogy and Aesthetics



Peter O'Connor , Katy Pérez

Series: Learning Through Theatre

Responding to the global state of permacrisis, this book explores the relationship between applied theatre and disaster. Using a critical disaster studies lens, the authors recognise the role of governments and multinational businesses in profiteering from and manipulating for their own advantage the misery caused by disasters. At a time of never-ending, overlapping disasters, this book will be important to researchers and postgraduate students working in applied theatre and disaster research in the social sciences. It will also appeal to applied arts practitioners who work in disaster zones and with relief organisations.

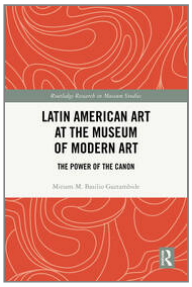
Latin American Art at The Museum of Modern Art

The Power of the Canon



Miriam M. Basilio Gaztambide New York University, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Museum Studies

This study sheds light on an as yet unstudied aspect of the Museum of Modern Art's (MoMA) preeminent role in establishing the definition of the problematic term "Latin American art" in the United States. In examining shifting categorization of Latin American works according to stylistic and geographic taxonomies, we gain a greater understanding of the organization of the Museum's collections as a whole during the 1940s and 1950s. This work will be of interest to those researching Latin American and modernist art, art galleries, and museum studies.

Shadow Archaeologies

In the Shadow of Antiquity: For Other Modes of Archaeological Worldmaking

Edited by Assaf Nativ Independent scholar., Gavin Lucas University of Iceland.

Series: Archaeological Orientations

Shadow Archaeologies explores the modes of knowledge production which operate where the light of mainstream, historically oriented archaeology, does not reach. It exposes the field's underbelly and dwells on issues that standard practice ignores or glosses over, questioning what archaeology and the archaeological are or could be. While the book will appeal to any archaeologist with an interest in theory, it is also a challenge to all archaeologists to reflect on their discipline and their own working practices and an invitation to join in the discussion about what archaeology might become.

Understanding Early Large-Scale Collectives

A Global Perspective

Edited by Justin Jennings Royal Ontario Museum, Canada

This volume brings together perspectives from different parts of the world that showcase the wide variety of practices, institutions, and ideologies that allowed for shared identities and coordinated actions across broad collectives. A better understanding of early collective action strategies provides a richer understanding of past politics, and, just as importantly, demonstrates governance alternatives for our contemporary society that struggles to address climate change, pandemics, and other pressing challenges. This book will interest archaeologists and historians, as well as anyone who is curious about other ways that we can work together to solve common problems.

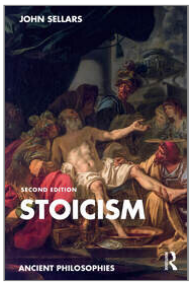
Stoicism



John Sellars Royal Holloway, University of London, UK

Series: Ancient Philosophies

This new edition of Stoicism provides an introduction to one of the most influential schools of philosophy in antiquity, the influence of which has persisted to the present day. This new revised edition takes into account the wealth of scholarship that has been published in the last twenty years and the explosion of interest in Stoicism as a practical guide for living today. This accessible, authoritative guide is an ideal introduction to the philosophy of Stoicism that stands behind much of the practical advice offered by Seneca, Epictetus, and Marcus Aurelius, suitable for students and general readers.

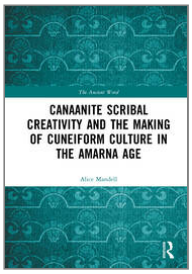
Canaanite Scribal Creativity and the Making of Cuneiform Culture in the Amarna Age



Alice Mandell

Series: The Ancient Word

Canaanite Scribal Creativity and the Making of Cuneiform Culture in the Amarna Age offers a nuanced exploration of the scribal practices behind the Canaanite Amarna Letters and wider scribal culture of the Levant during the Late Bronze Age (1550-1200 BCE). The book features a summary of the historical and scribal contexts of a corpus of diplomatic letters between Canaanite rulers and Egyptian rulers of the later 18th Dynasty and provides a synthesis of research on cuneiform scribalism in the Late Bronze Age. Suitable for scholars of the Late Bronze Age southern Levant and those interested in literacies and scribal practices of the Ancient Near East.

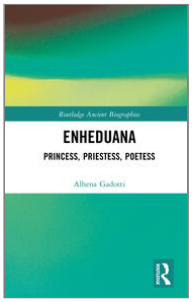
Enheduana

Princess, Priestess, Poetess



Alhena Gadotti

Series: Routledge Ancient Biographies

Enheduana: Princess, Priestess, Poetess offers the first comprehensive biography of Enheduana, daughter of Sargon of Agade and one of the most intriguing, yet elusive, women from antiquity. This book aims to situate Enheduana in her own historical context, allowing readers to gain a better understanding of this enigmatic figure, her roles as princess, priestess, and poetess, and the tumultuous times when she lived. Suitable for students, scholars, and the general reader interested in the history of the Ancient Near East, ancient literature, and women in the ancient world.

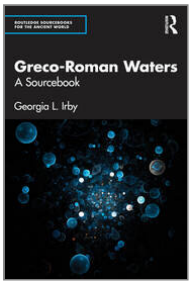
Greco-Roman Waters

A Sourcebook



Georgia L. Irby

Series: Routledge Sourcebooks for the Ancient World

The first of its kind, this book presents a wide range of passages exploring many aspects of the Greco-Roman watery world: physics, philosophy, weather, medicine, marine biology, religion and mythology, infrastructure, sailing, and mercantile activities, and politicizing water ways. Suitable for students and scholars of ancient science and technology, the ancient environment, and the history of science, as well as those interested in the philosophy, intellectual culture, and environmental attitudes of the ancient Greco-Roman Mediterranean world.

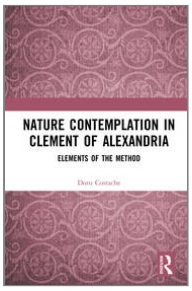
Nature Contemplation in Clement of Alexandria

Elements of the Method



Doru Costache

This book examines Clement of Alexandria's interdisciplinary approach to nature contemplation—which he terms "physiology" and "physics"—showing its internal consistency even in the absence of a clear methodological outline. It presents Clement's method against the backdrop of ancient disciplines of nature contemplation—and as paving the way for contemporary science-engaged theology. Suitable for postgraduate students and scholars of the history of science and religion, religious studies, early Christian and late antique studies, and patristic studies, particularly those working on Clement of Alexandria.

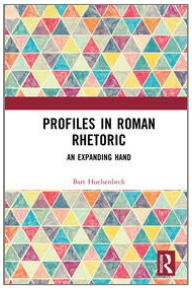
Profiles in Roman Rhetoric

An Expanding Hand



Bart Huelsenbeck

This volume shifts perspective to the everyday aspects of ancient rhetoric—its teaching, exercises, and daily life—and concentrates on persons less visible in narratives of rhetoric's history: teachers, slaves and freedmen, speech-performers, political dissidents, mavericks, and dropouts. Profiles in Roman Rhetoric enriches our understanding of intellectual life in Rome, and is suitable for students and scholars interested in rhetoric, both ancient and modern; classics; education; historical methodology; and biography.

Religion in Rural Late-Antique Iberia

Edited by José Carlos López Gómez , Antón Alvar Nuño

This volume examines the dynamism and complexity of religious expressions in rural settings across Late-Antique Iberia, refuting the idea that rural spaces, and in turn rural religious practices, were static and unchanging, anchored in tradition and resistant to any process of religious change. A much-needed resource for students and scholars of religion in Late Antique Iberia, and in the post-Roman world more broadly, as well as anyone working on rural religion in the ancient, Late Antique and Medieval worlds.

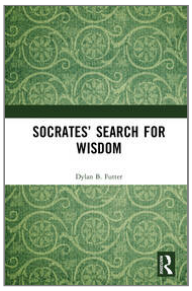
Socrates' Search for Wisdom

An Exegetical Theory



Dylan B. Futter University of the Witwatersrand, South Africa

Socrates recommends that we live examined lives, but what exactly does that mean? Should we criticise and dismantle our moral convictions? Or construct theories of virtue and the good? This book argues that the answer is neither—the best human life is one of moral learning in which we actualise our potential for knowledge. Readers will gain a fresh perspective on the Socratic method of philosophy—not as a form of argument, but as a process of inquiry. Suitable for scholars, students of Greek philosophy, and general readers, reflecting the Socratic tradition of engaging both intellectuals and ordinary individuals alike.

Stranger-Kingship in Antiquity

Edited by Julius Guthrie , Henry Anderson , Emma Nicholson

Series: Routledge Studies in Ancient History

This volume introduces the notion of "stranger-kingship" to the field of ancient history and evaluates its use as a new way of thinking about kingship as a political, social, and cultural phenomenon. Chapters show the multifaceted ways in which this theory can be applied, covering Hellenistic monarchy, Greek and Roman kings, the Ptolemies of Egypt, Late Antique Roman emperors, and Ostrogothic Italy and Visigothic Iberia. The volume demonstrates that stranger-kingship has much to offer studies of ancient kingship as a heuristic tool, providing avenues for future research. Of interest to students and scholars in classical studies and the history of the ancient Mediterranean world.

The Origins of Complex Political Organisation in Ancient Inner Asia

East Eurasia, Cimmerians and Scythians

Hyun Jin Kim Univ. of Melbourne, Aus., Selim Ferruh Adalı

This book explores the origins of complex political organisation in Inner Asia which enabled mighty empires, proto-state entities and confederacies such as the Cimmerians, Scythians and the Xiongnu Huns to emerge and dominate large swathes of the Eurasian continent during antiquity. It provides readers with an in-depth understanding of the origins and development of the quasi-feudal system of political organisation which prevailed in Inner Asia and its impact on both ancient Inner Asia and also China, the Middle East and Europe. Suitable for students and scholars of Near Eastern history and archaeology, the history and archaeology of Central and Inner Asia, and classical antiquity.

The World of the Western Greeks

Edited by Kathryn Lomas University College London, UK

Series: Routledge Worlds

This volume presents studies by international experts on aspects of the society, economy, religion, culture, and history of the Greek settlements of the ancient western Mediterranean, one of the most innovative areas of the ancient Greek world. By adopting a wide-ranging approach, integrating material evidence and ancient sources, it illuminates the diversity and innovative nature of the western Greek world from its earliest development to the aftermath of the Roman conquest. An essential reference work for students and scholars of the Greek western Mediterranean and its history, culture, and society.

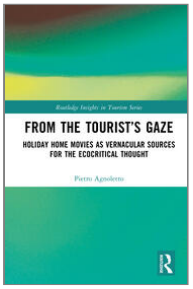
From the Tourist's Gaze

Holiday Home Movies as Vernacular Sources for the Ecocritical Thought



Pietro Agnoletto

Series: Routledge Insights in Tourism Series

From the Tourist's Gaze bridges environmental humanities and amateur cinema studies, exploring tourism-induced environmental issues through the visual representations created by tourists themselves. As a visual journey through mid-20th century Italian tourism and its environmental narratives, it may interest cultural geographers, tourism and media scholars, and the broader group of environmental humanists: the latter will have the opportunity to explore amateur cinema as an untapped resource for understanding cultural narratives, while amateur cinema scholars will have an example of a fresh and different approach to their subject.

Global Film Policies

New Perspectives

Edited by Ruby Cheung University of Southampton, UK, John Hill University of London, UK, Nobuko Kawashima Doshisha University, Japan, Paul McDonald King's College London, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Media and Cultural Industries

Global Film Policies challenges conventional analyses of film policy as a stand-alone public policy confined within national boundaries, and usually focused on supports for film production. The book argues for a more multi-faceted approach, extending beyond national boundaries, and broadening its scope to recognise how other forms of policy pertain to film, including tax, labour, language, and education. This book will be an important resource for scholars and students studying global film policy in the areas of film, media or creative industries, and business.

Pictures of Cotton in Eighteenth-Century China

Roslyn Lee Hammers University of Hong Kong

Series: Routledge Research in Art History

Pictures of Cotton in Eighteenth-Century China narrates cotton's journey from a little understand material to a cherished commodity ennobled by associations with the classical heritage of China. During the 18th century, cotton imagery and discussions were situated in imperial encyclopaedias, further consolidating its classical legacy. The Governor-general Fang Guancheng (1696/8-1768) deemed cotton a worthy subject for ambitious painting. In 1765, he designed the Pictures of Cotton, a series of sixteen paintings complete with commentary that delineated the processes of growing cotton and manufacturing fabric.

Revoicing Intangible Cultural Heritage

Perspectives from the Margins of Europe

Edited by Laura Hodsdon , Valts Ernštreits , Kadri Koreinik University of Tartu, Estonia, Sjoerd-Jeroen Moenandar

Series: Critical Heritages of Europe

Revoicing Intangible Cultural Heritage draws upon an original, wide-ranging dataset to show that the dynamics and ethics of participation in European national minority cultures' intangible cultural heritage (ICH) are more nuanced than has previously been articulated. Revoicing Intangible Cultural Heritage takes an interdisciplinary approach ideally placed to interrogate the interplay of different groups with ICH from multiple perspectives. This makes the book essential reading for academics and students working in heritage studies, sociolinguistics, cultural and event studies, sociology, creative practice, and cultural geography.

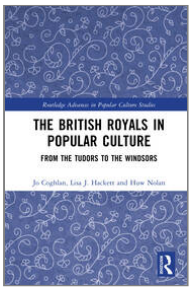
The British Royals in Popular Culture

From the Tudors to the Windsors



Jo Coghlan , Lisa J. Hackett , Huw Nolan

Series: Routledge Advances in Popular Culture Studies

The British Royals in Popular in Popular Culture examines the intricate relationship between the monarchy and popular culture from the Tudors to the Windsors, illustrating how the institution has persistently adapted to maintain its symbolic, psychological, and theatrical significance over centuries. It underscores the intrigue and authority of the British royals, revealing the fine balance between public visibility and the maintenance of mystique that has been pivotal to their enduring presence. Ultimately, the book highlights how the British royal family has evolved through popular culture, transforming from a historical institution into a global brand.

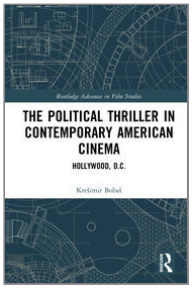
The Political Thriller in Contemporary American Cinema

Hollywood, D.C.



Krešimir Bobaš University of Zagreb, Croatia

Series: Routledge Advances in Film Studies

This book examines how the political thriller films (de)construct and reflect the sociopolitical realities of the second half of the twentieth, as well as the first two decades of the twenty-first century. Consequently, this book serves as a contribution to the growing body of research on political cinema, and the way it simultaneously reflects and shapes political life through its role as a sociocultural phenomenon. In doing so, it invites readers to further delve into the exploration of these films, which represent complex commentaries on the structures of corporations, media, and military that are predominant in contemporary American society and cinema.

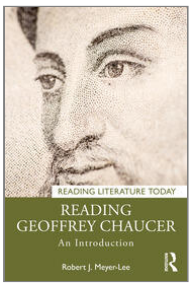
Reading Geoffrey Chaucer

An Introduction



Robert J. Meyer-Lee

Series: Reading Literature Today

Reading Geoffrey Chaucer: An Introduction offers students, general readers, and teachers an accessible series of essays on select works by Chaucer that emphasizes how those works' deepest concerns and most fraught complexities remain urgently relevant in our present day. Each chapter connects Chaucer's world with particular problems of our own, such as autocratic patriarchal social orders and geopolitical religious/racial conflict. With its unusual combination of breadth and depth, this introduction to Chaucer helps readers at all levels of familiarity appreciate why his work continues to matter.

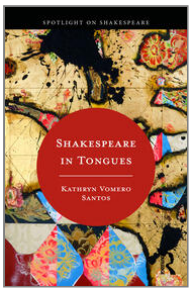
Shakespeare in Tongues



Kathryn Vomero Santos

Series: Spotlight on Shakespeare

Shakespeare in Tongues interrogates the popular conflation of "the language of Shakespeare" with English by examining the role Shakespeare's works have played in overlapping histories of colonialism, slavery, and migration that continue to shape the linguistic cultures of the United States. This book issues an imperative to redirect the material and intellectual resources that have been devoted to Shakespeare and his language toward truth, justice, and healing. This is essential reading for anyone studying or researching Shakespeare, translation, adaptation, and comparative literatures.

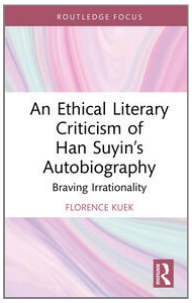
An Ethical Literary Criticism of Han Suyin's Autobiography

Braving Irrationality



Florence Kuek Universiti Malaya, Malaysia

Series: Interdisciplinary and Transcultural Approaches to Chinese Literature

Han Suyin became a household name when "Love is A Many-splendored Thing", the Hollywood rendition of her novel won several awards in 1956. The study of Han Suyin went out of fashion for a while, but it has recently been revitalised, especially in Singapore and Malaysia. Kuek pays attention to The Crippled Tree autobiographical series, delineating her two-track narrative of her family saga against the backdrop of 20th century China. A valuable book that will enlighten literary critics on critical approaches to autobiography and those interested in understanding the development of modern China through the words of a proud Chinese-Eurasian writer living in the era.

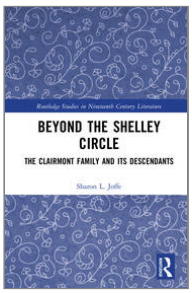
Beyond the Shelley Circle

The Clairmont Family and Its Descendants



Sharon L. Joffe

Series: Routledge Studies in Nineteenth Century Literature

Beyond the Shelley Circle: The Clairmont Family and Its Descendants will interest Shelley–circle researchers, life-writing scholars, and nineteenth-century historians alike. It includes, in German transcription and English translation, with editorial notes, the previously unpublished journal of Ottilia Clairmont, the wife of Charles's son, which describes her life in the Banat region in the 1860s. The book further connects the kinship coterie to other family studies, situating them in a vital tradition within literary studies.

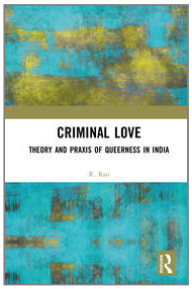
Criminal Love

Theory and Praxis of Queerness in India



R. Raj Rao

This theory-backed book takes up the challenge of studying the wide gamut of lived reality of the Indian queer. Written by a man who has been openly gay for the last 40 years, it dissects issues within the realm of queer studies against the experiences of Indian queers. It highlights the sites of transgression within a seemingly monosexual society and analyses the aspects of the struggle of being queer in a repressive environment. This book would be useful to the students, researchers and teachers of women and gender studies, sociology, history, economics, political science, and other interdisciplinary courses in social sciences including South Asian Studies.

Evolution, Feminism, and Romantic Fiction

From Mr. Darcy to Mr. Big.

Ania Grant University of Auckland, New Zealand

Romantic fiction has long been dismissed as trivial and denounced for peddling supposedly patriarchal myths of heterosexual love and marriage. Despite such criticism, the popularity of romantic fiction has only increased in recent decades. The book will be of interest to anyone who ever wondered why so many women (and some men) around the world are enthralled by romantic stories, as well as to anyone who has ever been inspired by romantic happy endings to strive for a world in which men and women love and cooperate with each other—even if it seems like a utopian ideal while the war of the sexes rages on.

Mahasweta Devi in Defence of the Human

The Poetics of Translating Resistance

Edited by Anuradha Ghosh Jamia Millia Islamia, New Delhi, Mahmoud Al-Zayed Freie Universität Berlin

This book re-thinks the literary and social worlds of Mahasweta Devi, the prolific and influential writer and social activist, in connection to her praxis. It brings into focus Devi's preoccupation with the human, nature and life, and unwritten or distorted histories that underline her poetics of translating resistance in terms of a radical alterity. Essays in this volume focus on her subversive retellings from the Mahabharata, the political aspects of translation/adaptation of her works in literature, cinema and visual arts and comparative readings of her works by women authors from the Global South as well as the Indian diaspora.

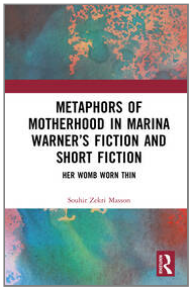
Metaphors of Motherhood in Marina Warner's Fiction and Short Fiction

Her Womb Worn Thin



Souhir Zekri Masson

This volume oversees the fluctuating, but close relationship of motherhood studies, maternal theory and feminism in the works of Marina Warner's fiction and short stories. As exiled goddesses and witches, female academicians and mistresses fight their way through colonialism, racism and misogyny, their paradoxical status as mothers and ambiguous relationships to their daughters and sons bring an extra layer of meaning to their experiences, identities and perspectives.

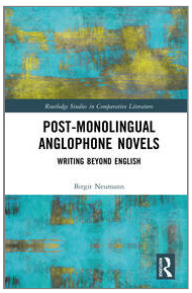
Post-Monolingual Anglophone Novels

Writing Beyond English



Birgit Neumann

Series: Routledge Studies in Comparative Literature

Engaging with recent research in literary multilingualism studies, the global anglophone and comparative studies, this book theorizes so-called post-monolingual anglophone novels. Inspired by Yasemin Yildiz's Beyond the Mother Tongue: The Postmonolingual Condition (2012), post-monolingual anglophone novels are understood as literary texts that activate multi- and translingual strategies to mount a challenge to the 'monolingual norm' and the homogenizing aspirations of English.

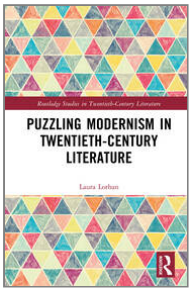
Puzzling Modernism in Twentieth-Century Literature



Laura Lorhan

Series: Routledge Studies in Twentieth-Century Literature

Puzzling Modernism in Twentieth-Century Literature identifies a sustained interest in puzzles, such as the jigsaw and Fifteen Puzzle, dating back to the 1880s in the United States, and argues that puzzles appealed to modernist authors because they offer a framework for acknowledging the grim realities of modern life without sacrificing the possibility for reconnection and regaining a sense of wholeness. Blending close reading with cultural history, this volume offers a nuanced view of American literary history from a time, not unlike our own, in which nativism, intolerance, and fear were endemic.

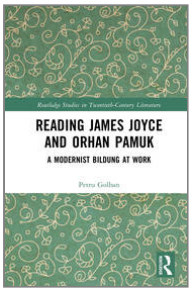
Reading James Joyce and Orhan Pamuk

A Modernist Bildung at Work



Petru Golban

Series: Routledge Studies in Twentieth-Century Literature

Reading James Joyce and Orhan Pamuk reveals how by embracing the idea that an individual subject and history (of a nation and the city) mutually shape identities as formative processes, James Joyce and Orhan Pamuk create "portraits" adapting bildung to chart the becoming of the protagonist alongside the development of a nation of people emerging from and redefining themselves in the waning years of the empire (as for Joyce) or some decades after the end of the empire (as for Pamuk).

Reading to Resist

Fiction by Contemporary Black British Women Writers

Suzanne Scafe London South Bank University

Series: Routledge Literary Studies in Social Justice

This is the first book to focus on writing by black British women writers, using an approach that highlights the potential of this fiction to intervene into discourses that shape the worlds in which it is situated. Reading to Resist undertakes a close, innovative reading of the novels selected, one that focuses on the texts' aesthetics as well as their thematic engagement with the worlds of their readers and the worlds the texts themselves construct. Each chapter examines themes such as freedom and agency, moral understanding, and history, while also exploring issues of importance to the contemporary period such as well-being, success, and achievement.

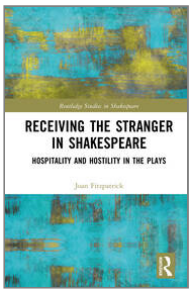
Receiving the Stranger in Shakespeare

Hospitality and Hostility in the Plays



Joan Fitzpatrick

Series: Routledge Studies in Shakespeare

Receiving the Stranger in Shakespeare provides critical analysis of the most important moments of hospitality or its denial in Shakespeare's plays, situating them historically in order to fully explore Shakespeare's engagement with early modern views. The book explores the plays definitions of the self, self-interest, and otherness and their relevance to make sense of the world, and an exploration of the social, economic, and political particularities that make such distinctions as troublesome as they are necessary. This volume will unravel the various attempts, successful and unsuccessful, to balance these obligations and risks.

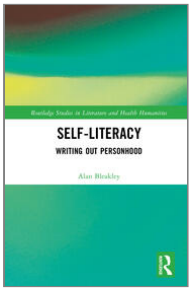
Self-Literacy

Writing Out Personhood



Alan Bleakley

Series: Routledge Studies in Literature and Health Humanities

Self-Literacy: Writing Out Personhood offers fifty perspectives on gaining an understanding of what 'personhood' may mean through various disciplines. This book adopts an essay approach to aspects of selfhood, including disciplines of psychology (personality), sociology (social selves), anthropology (cultural selfhood), literary (the self as portrayed in literature), and history (notions of self through time). Each chapter can be read in isolation, and a comprehensive list of works on self is provided as a bibliography.

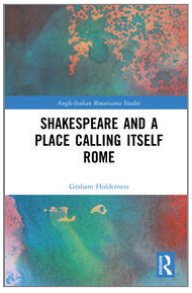
Shakespeare and a Place Calling Itself Rome



Graham Holderness

Series: Anglo-Italian Renaissance Studies

This new examination of Shakespeare's four Roman tragedies (Julius Caesar, Titus Andronicus, Coriolanus and Antony and Cleopatra) revisits Shakespeare's dramatic recreations of ancient Rome in the light of considerations of place. Alongside this analysis the book explores contemporary critical debates, and the uses of place and space in selected modern adaptations – the Taviani brothers' Italian film Caesar Must Die, Julie Taylor's film Titus, John Osborne's play A Place Calling Itself Rome and Ahmed Shawqi's Arabic Death of Cleopatra.

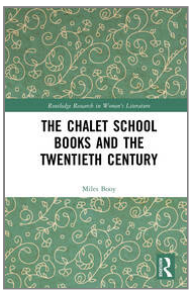
The Chalet School Books and the Twentieth Century



Miles Booy

Series: Routledge Research in Women's Literature

The first full-length study of this beloved children's series, The Chalet School in the Twentieth Century moves beyond the largely-generic analysis within which it has previously been discussed. Reproducing cover illustrations, Miles Booy's book examines both those issues which author Elinor M. Brent-Dyer consciously explored and those aspects of the text which must be read symptomatically. This is a book which will engage students with historical and cultural interests beyond children's literature. With barely a midnight feast in sight, but much anxiety about social change, it's a familiar genre, but not as you think you know it. Hurry up, new girls, class is about to begin

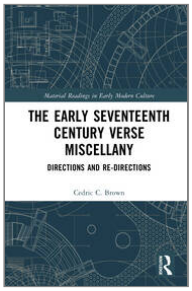
The Early Seventeenth Century Verse Miscellany

Directions and Re-Directions



Cedric C. Brown

Series: Material Readings in Early Modern Culture

A deeply researched study of the social transmission and adaptation of poetry texts originating in pre-Civil War England, traced through the seventeenth century and sometimes beyond. Both manuscript and printed miscellanies are used, as well as other forms of publication, and case studies unusually span elite, popular and provincial audiences. As far as possible, texts are placed according to their original contexts and functions ("Directions") then followed through various answerings, parodies, co-optings and social, commercial and political adaptations ("Re-directions").

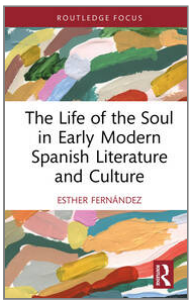
The Life of the Soul in Early Modern Spanish Literature and Culture



Esther Fernández

Series: Routledge Focus on Literature

It delves into the inner and outer lives of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, examining how emotions, faith, imagination, resilience, and creativity were shaped by socio-historical upheavals. Set against the spiritual backdrop of the seventeenth century, these reflections examine how materiality ensnared individuals in artifice, often neglecting expansionism's social and political consequences. In this landscape of despair, the Spanish soul sought refuge inwardly and through indulgence in worldly pleasures. Through metaphysical inquiry, emotional depth, and the role of animated matter in art and theater, this book reflects on existence amid the illusions of early modern Spain.

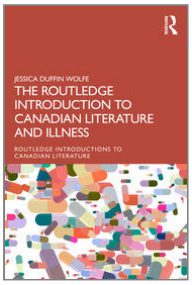
The Routledge Introduction to Canadian Literature and Illness



Jessica Duffin Wolfe

Series: Routledge Introductions to Canadian Literature

The Routledge Introduction to Canadian Literature and Illness considers the key literary and historical frameworks for reading stories about sickness. Transcending disciplinary boundaries, this book analyzes narrative depictions of major epidemics, disastrous injuries, mental and maternal health, medical assistance in dying, and the curative effects of decolonization. Students of both literature and health humanities will find that this book deepens their understanding of literary portrayals of illness and the impact of narrative on concepts of affliction and healing.

The Shakespearean International Yearbook

Reparative Shakespeare

Edited by Alexa Alice Joubin , Natalia Khomenko

Series: The Shakespearean International Yearbook

In the modern world, references to Shakespeare frequently mark moments of catastrophe and of the accompanying longing for restoring social order, remedying injuries, and building strong communities. Shakespeare's moral authority has often been invoked to support artistic projects that claimed social justice as their goal on the assumption that drama has the power to manipulate perceptual reality. Drawing on cases from around the world, this book interrogates the idea that performing or reading Shakespeare has socially reparative value.

Time in Twenty-First-Century British and American Literature

Out of Sync

Sonia Front

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Literature

The book investigates representations of time in twenty-first-century Anglo-American literature, focusing on innovative timeframes out of sync with the new time logic of digital capitalism. Revising prevalent, oppressive notions of time, fiction offers politically productive temporalities to reclaim the agency of the subject and resist the crisis of time.

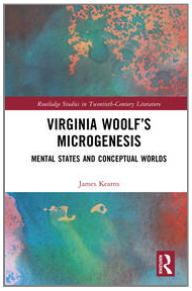
Virginia Woolf's Microgenesis

Mental States and Conceptual Worlds



James Kearns

Series: Routledge Studies in Twentieth-Century Literature

Virginia Woolf's Microgenesis analyses Virginia Woolf's novels through her own methodological approach to mind, to meaning, and to making whole. This volume argues that Woolf's preoccupation with the metaphysics of "wholeness," a dread, indeed, of both fragmentation, and of what endures, places her writings alongside Jason Brown's microgenesis, formulated as an unfolding, emergent, and evolutionary process of cognitive activity. This is essential reading for researchers and students in Woolf studies, process philosophy, new materialisms, literary theory, and modernist literature.

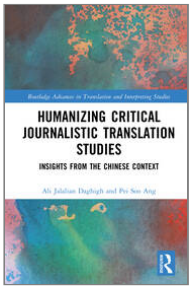
Humanizing Critical Journalistic Translation Studies

Insights from the Chinese Context



Ali Jalalian Daghigh Universiti Malaya, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia., Pei Soo Ang Universiti Malaya, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

Series: Routledge Advances in Translation and Interpreting Studies

Jalalian Daghigh and Ang's book provides new insights into the relationships between translation, journalism, ideology, and power via a humanizing approach. Carving out a niche within Journalistic Translation Studies, the book introduces and expands on Critical Journalistic Translation Studies (CJTS). The authors critically evaluate the state of the art while advocating for humanizing research by focusing on the experiences of both translators and readers. Using the Chinese journalistic translation landscape as a case study, the book investigates the sociopolitical and socio-cognitive dimensions of journalistic translation.

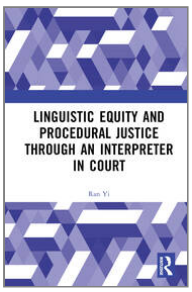
Linguistic Equity and Procedural Justice through an Interpreter in Court



Ran Yi

This book presents the findings from original research about court interpreting in the disciplines of humanities and social sciences from a linguistic perspective. It argues that the interpretations of the manner of speech in court can have implications for the accuracy of court interpreting and thus procedural justice. Readers interested in applied linguistics and translation studies would benefit from reading this book. This interdisciplinary work focuses on language policy, court interpreting and linguistic human rights policy and qualitative research methods.

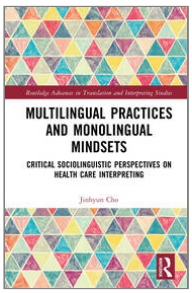
Multilingual Practices and Monolingual Mindsets

Critical Sociolinguistic Perspectives on Health Care Interpreting



Jinhyun Cho

Series: Routledge Advances in Translation and Interpreting Studies

Focusing on health care interpreting in Australia, this book examines the under-recognition of interpreting from a critical sociolinguistic perspective encompassing language, race and class. Cho grapples with this question by focusing readers' attention to developments in interpreting following increased migration in an English-monolingual Australia, a context in which other languages and speakers have been historically under-valued. This volume will be of interest to students and scholars in interpreting studies, health communication, intercultural communication, and sociolinguistics.

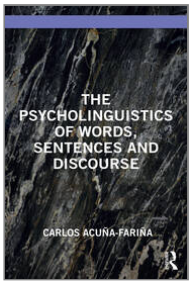
The Psycholinguistics of Words, Sentences and Discourse



Carlos Acuña-Fariña

The Psycholinguistics of Words, Sentences and Discourse introduces the way words, sentences and discourse live in the mind. Actual language use is about putting together words into syntactic frames that make sense in a specific context. This book provides an overview of the many mental processes involved in that, explaining how the mind conjures up specific words and syntactic structures in a particular situation of discourse. This entertaining and informed introduction to the psychological reality of the human language faculty will be of interest to students and researchers in psycholinguistics, experimental psychology and artificial intelligence.

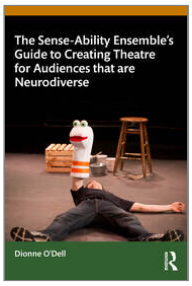
The Sense-Ability Ensemble's Guide to Creating Theatre for Audiences that are Neurodiverse



Dionne O'Dell

This practical handbook provides guidance on how to create theatre for audiences that are neurodiverse and explores the journey of the Sense-Ability Ensemble in its quest to create theatre from the ground up for these audiences. It demonstrates how to embark on this work and move from a sensory friendly model that adapts work to make it inclusive, to designing work that is created with this specific audience in mind. Part case study, part how-to guide, this book will be of interest to theatre educators, practitioners, and students enrolled in courses on Children's Theatre, Devising, Applied Theatre, Theatre for Young Audiences, and Drama in Education.

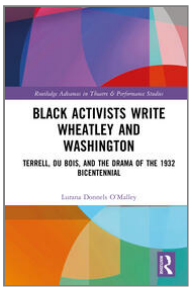
Black Activists Write Wheatley and Washington

Terrell, Du Bois, and the Drama of the 1932 Bicentennial



Lurana Donnels O'Malley

Series: Routledge Advances in Theatre & Performance Studies

The book examines how early twentieth century Black theatre artists depicted national mythologies of the United States. White-authored pageants and plays written for the 1932 Bicentennial celebration of George Washington's birthday relegated Black Americans to the periphery through racist stereotyping. This interdisciplinary book will be a valuable resource for college and university courses in American theatre and performance studies, Black Studies, and Women's Studies, as it includes the scripts themselves, the book is particularly useful in theatre or literature classes in these subject areas.

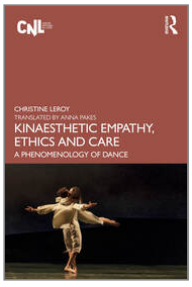
Kinaesthetic Empathy, Ethics and Care

A Phenomenology of Dance



Christine Leroy

Kinaesthetic Empathy, Ethics and Care develops a philosophy of dance that highlights the psychological, aesthetic and ethical significance of dancer-viewer interaction in the moment of performance. Leroy draws on phenomenology, psychoanalysis, dance studies and care ethics to analyse kinaesthetic empathy as a form of intersubjective performance. The book will interest philosophers, dance researchers, care ethicists and care practitioners, as well as advanced students in these fields and general readers curious about the aesthetic and ethical potency of theatre dance.

Making Meaning in Puppetry

Materials, Practice, Perception

Edited by Dassia N. Posner , Claudia Orenstein , Alissa Mello

From ice puppets to robots, from intricate marionettes to abstract forms, Making Meaning in Puppetry investigates the elusive and multifaceted how of how puppets make meaning in performance. The seventeen chapters, authored by experts in the field, build bridges between puppetry and related fields, such as robotics, phenomenology, cognitive science, and queer theory, while using the puppet as their primary anchor of analysis. Making Meaning in Puppetry is ideal for students of theatre and performance studies, theatre artists, scholars, and anyone who is fascinated by this rich performance form and wants to understand it more deeply.

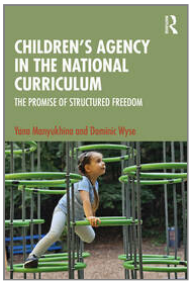
Children's Agency in the National Curriculum

The Promise of Structured Freedom



Yana Manyukhina University College London, UK., Dominic Wyse Prof of Early Childhood & Primary Education and Head of Academic Dept, Learning & Leadership, UCL Inst of Education, UK

How much say should children have in their own education? Through research in diverse primary schools, Manyukhina and Wyse explore how children's voices and choices shape their learning experiences - and why it matters. This ground-breaking text offers new insights into one of education's most pressing questions: how to balance children's agency with educational standards. The book engages with England's national curriculum in the context of curriculum studies and curriculum development internationally. The new findings arise from research that is 'close-to-practice', ensuring that the implications of the work are relevant for children, teachers, and policy makers alike.

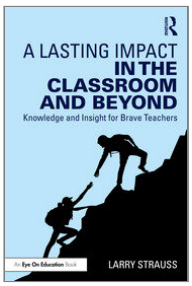
A Lasting Impact in the Classroom and Beyond

Knowledge and Insight for Brave Teachers



Larry Strauss

In this helpful new book, renowned educator Larry Strauss provides an honest examination of the challenges we face as high school teachers, such as the minds and temperaments of teenagers, empathy that can meet the most daunting teaching conditions, the commitment required of us to succeed, and the profound rewards of achieving that success. Topics include getting to know and love your kids, practicing intentional fairness and committing to relentless empathy, setting modest goals and a vision of the long term, and making differentiation manageable. This book offers hope to educators who feel themselves veering toward surrender but still looking for a path to ultimate success.

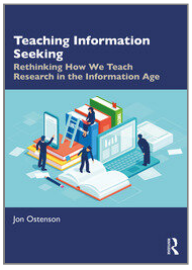
Teaching Information Seeking

Rethinking How We Teach Research in the Information Age



Jon Ostenson Brigham Young University, USA

Teaching Information Seeking redefines how we approach research and information literacy in today's information-rich world, inviting teachers to re-imagine teaching research. The book combines insights from fields such as library and information sciences, journalism, and media literacy to offer fresh strategies and perspectives for guiding students through evolving landscapes of information. While a focus on concepts and skills has long been important in teaching research, this book integrates significant new understandings about the role dispositions play in how well students embrace and utilize skill-based knowledge.

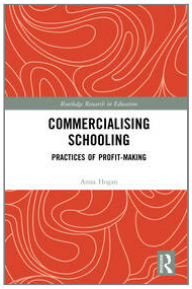
Commercialising Public Schooling

Practices of Profit-Making



Anna Hogan Queensland University of Technology, Australia

Series: Routledge Research in Education

This book delves into the pervasive commercialisation of public schooling, tracing its roots and examining its current manifestations. From the evolution of textbook publishing to the digital transformation led by global edu-businesses, it sheds light on how commercial interests have reshaped education policy, curriculum design, and teaching practices worldwide. This book provides invaluable insights into the implications of schooling commercialisation. It offers practical strategies to navigate this landscape while advocating for reforms that prioritise educational integrity over profit, ensuring that public schools remain spaces of equitable and holistic learning.

What's the Evidence?

An Investigation into Teacher Quality

Edited by Rachel White , Alyson Simpson University of Sydney, Australia

This book gives an account of a recent study into the nature of teacher quality that moves beyond typical discussions of teacher impact on student results and into what it means to be a teacher. The authors present qualitative and quantitative evidence that reveals how education stakeholders including teachers perceive what teacher quality is and what it might look like in the classroom. Putting forth a new understanding of teacher quality, this is an essential resource for education academics and students, as well as teaching professionals.

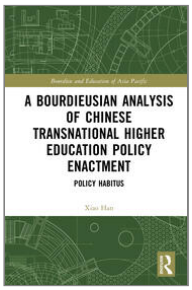
A Bourdieusian Analysis of Chinese Transnational Higher Education Policy Enactment

Policy Habitus



Xiao Han Department of International Education, The Education University of Hong Kong

Series: Bourdieu and Education of Asia Pacific

This book provides an empirical examination of the meso-level policy enactment of transnational higher education in the context of China. From the prism of Bourdieu's relational sociology, this study moves away from the traditional centralization-decentralization model, or policy experiment hypothesis, to examine how Chinese local officials' practices are simultaneously full of "invention and improvisation" and confined "within the constraints and limits initially set on its inventions". This book will be of great interest to Bourdieusian scholars with particular interests in higher education and sociologists of education more broadly.

Bottom of the Class: Children's Stories of Low Attainment in Primary School

Laura Quick

Series: Foundations and Futures of Education

This book offers a much-needed look at the impact of our attainment-driven education system on those children considered 'low attainers'. It reveals how difficult they find it to feel good about themselves, their capacity to learn and their futures. These thought-provoking stories also shed light on the role schools are playing in maintaining inequality and the illusion of meritocracy. This crucially important book is a must-read for anyone interested in educational inequality and school experience within education studies, policy studies, the sociology of education, initial teacher training and educational leadership.

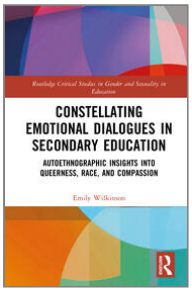
Constellating Emotional Dialogues in Secondary Education

Autoethnographic Insights into Queerness, Race, and Compassion



Emily Wilkinson

Series: Routledge Critical Studies in Gender and Sexuality in Education

This innovative, autoethnographic study examines 12 stories of "wobble" moments - looking at "wobble" as an emotional experience - to illuminate new perspectives on LGBTQIA+ identity, school violence, racism, mental illness in students and teachers, and the emotional costs of empathy. A sobering inquiry which provides valuable insight into the emotional landscape of a contemporary classroom embroiled in America's culture wars and serves as a poignant exemplar of dialogical pedagogy in practice, it will appeal to scholars and post-graduate students of teacher education, educational psychology, and education policy.

Decolonizing Epistemologies and Worldviews in Education

New Ways of Knowing in Education and Policy

Edited by Michael Kariwo , Chouaib El Bouhali

Series: Routledge Research in Decolonizing Education

This edited volume examines the decolonization of worldviews and ways of knowing in education and educational policy. It critically challenges the Western interpretation of epistemology and ontology, providing a platform for contributors to demonstrate how concepts of decolonization, knowledge and worldviews are understood. It also offers insight into related themes on student resilience, English language, the internationalization of western knowledge, indigenous paradigms, and curriculum transformation. It will ultimately appeal to scholars, researchers, policy makers and educational leaders concerned with decolonizing education and policy in North America and beyond.

Understanding Your Students' Religions

A Guide to Culturally Responsive Practices

Liz Wilson , Michael Nichols , Peter W. Williams

This guide helps educators understand the diverse religious practices that shape students' school and home lives. Using an encyclopedia-like structure, the authors provide short histories and other essential information on a variety of religions as well as atheist practices. Each chapter covers origins, beliefs, practices, and common misunderstandings and stereotypes, as well as key holidays, religious dress, and dietary restrictions that can be accommodated in school. You will also have the tools to recognize the diversity of religious and cultural practices that students bring to the classroom, and to see that unfamiliar religious and cultural practices are assets to be cultivated.

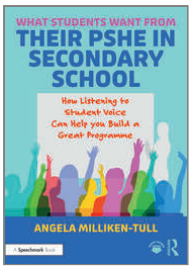
What Students Want from their PSHE in Secondary School

How Listening to Student Voice Can Help you Build a Great Programme



Angela Milliken-Tull

This book stems from the voices of young people in secondary schools, and what they want from their PSHE education. Chapters discuss how the fast-paced changes in today's world make PSHE particularly difficult to teach and offers advice and guidance on what best practice looks like in such an ever-moving field, along with signposts to further reading and supporting lesson plans. With activities in each chapter to build knowledge and develop skills which students will find useful throughout school and into future study and employment, this book is essential reading for any teacher looking for further guidance in the secondary PSHE classroom.

Coopetition in Education

Redefining Collaborative Learning through Design-Based Research

Xinghua Wang

The book explores the development of coopetition designs aimed at enhancing student collaborative learning, addressing persistent challenges such as low individual accountability and the associated free-rider issue. Moving beyond the long-standing and inconclusive debates between collaboration and competition, it embraces the concept of coopetition—a hybrid approach that merges the strengths of both collaboration and competition while mitigating their respective weaknesses. The book will be valuable for researchers, educators, and teachers looking for new theories and strategies to enhance collaborative learning.

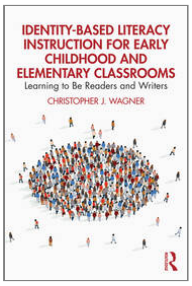
Identity-Based Literacy Instruction for Early Childhood and Elementary Classrooms

Learning to Be Readers and Writers



Christopher J. Wagner Queens College, City University of New York, USA.

This book introduces the concept of identity in literacy learning and provides guidance towards designing identity-based literacy instruction in early childhood and elementary classrooms. This approach to literacy learning asks teachers to see and engage with the ways that children make and remake ideas about who they are as readers and writers as they learn about language and literacy. This book explores what literacy teaching can look like when literacy is reframed as an identity practice, and it prepares readers to design literacy instruction using an identity-based instruction framework that focuses on: community, skills, membership, and reflection and narrative-making.

Secondary English for Generation Alpha

Humane Pedagogy for Local, National and International Contexts

Edited by Lorna Smith University of Bristol

Series: National Association for the Teaching of English (NATE)

Secondary English for Generation Alpha seeks to promote a humane, responsive, and creative pedagogy for English that will develop and enrich understanding and enjoyment of language in all its forms (speaking, listening, reading and writing) and help students develop into successful members of their home and wider communities. By describing their own practice in English classrooms, the authors hope to empower others, simultaneously producing both a broad and an in-depth exploration of the subject. Smith takes ideas from current research and makes them relevant to teachers and schools and those interested in English teaching in schools in any context.

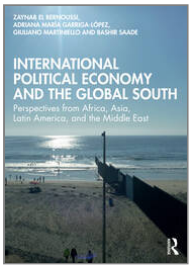
International Political Economy and the Global South

Perspectives from Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East



Zaynab El Bernoussi International University of Rabat, Morocco, Adriana María Garriga-López Kalamazoo College, USA, Giuliano Martiniello International University of Rabat, Morocco, Bashir Saade University of Stirling, UK

International Political Economy and the Global South provides students from both the global South and the global North a textbook that speaks to distinct concepts, categories, and issues of International Political Economy, from a Southern and Northern perspective, while identifying how they differ. Aiming to de-Westernize and decentralize the production of knowledge, the textbook introduces students to the discipline and phenomenon of IPE with a genuinely global perspective.

Bonfire

American Sociocide, Broken Relations, and the Quest for Democracy

Charles Derber

Series: Universalizing Resistance

Bonfire: American Sociocide, Broken Relations, and the Quest for Democracy examines how new technologies and production and financial strategies are part of broader economic, environment, cultural, and political shifts that create tipping points generating more competition, distrust, isolation, and violence. In doing so, Derber spells out the implications for democracy and social cohesion. Importantly, he explores options that could stop the spiral and reconstruct a sustainable and equitable community, civil society, and democracy via emerging movements against neoliberalism capitalism, climate change, war—and in favor of labor solidarity, human rights, and community.

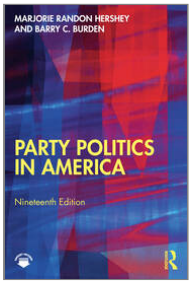
19TH EDITION

Party Politics in America



Marjorie Randon Hershey , Barry C. Burden

Long regarded as the "gold standard" of political parties texts, this new, nineteenth edition brings its comprehensive and authoritative coverage of party politics into an age of heightened partisan conflict; threats to the acceptance of democratic institutions; changes in the balance of power among the president, Congress, and the Supreme Court, and judicial rulings that upend long-established precedents. Marjorie Hershey and Barry Burden build on the book's three-pronged coverage of party organization, party in the electorate, and party in government, incorporating important developments in racial politics, social media use, and battles over voting access.

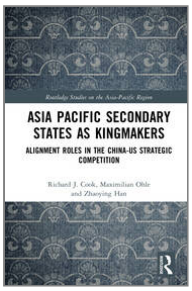
Asia Pacific Secondary States as Kingmakers

Alignment Roles in the China-US Strategic Competition



Richard J. Cook Nankai University, China, Maximilian Ohle Eberhard Karls University of Tübingen, Germany, Zhaoying Han Nankai University, China

Series: Routledge Studies on the Asia-Pacific Region

Focusing on the Asia-Pacific region, Cook, Ohle and Han investigate the escalating strategic competition between China and the US. They explore the dynamics of key regional secondary states caught in the middle, namely Japan, South Korea, the Philippines and Vietnam, emphasizing their crucial role as potential kingmakers in the shifting balance of power. This is a timely resource for researchers, students, scholars and politicians navigating the complex realm of international relations by providing a profound exploration of power struggles, strategic choices, and the often-overlooked role of secondary states.

Beyond Binaries and Polarization?

Rethinking Pluralist Inclusion in Immigrant Nations

Edited by Elke Winter Harvard University, USA

This book explores what lies between the statuses of insider and outsider in immigrant nations. It asks: Who is conditionally included/excluded in relation to whom, and for what reasons? What does this conditional inclusion/exclusion entail in terms of citizenship, material resources, and sense of belonging? How does it affect the cultural and economic well-being of refugees, migrants and the host society? The focus is on Canada, which is often described as the quintessential immigrant nation.

Bosnian Fluxes

Belonging, Caring and Reckoning in a Post-Cold War Semi-Periphery

Edited by David Henig , Jaroslav Klepal , Ondřej Žíla

Series: Southeast European Studies

This volume offers unique conceptual and empirical insights into ordinary lives in the violent aftermath of the Cold War. Considering Bosnia and Herzegovina as a comprehensive coordinate of larger social, political, and economic fluxes, it demonstrates why the widely used tropes of stuckedness, immobility, and frozenness associated with post-Cold War semi-peripheries need to be understood in the context of excessive upheavals that mobilise or suspend modes of belonging, care, and reckoning.

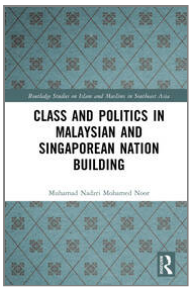
Class and Politics in Malaysian and Singaporean Nation Building



Muhamad M. N. Nadzri National University of Malaysia, Malaysia

Series: Routledge Studies on Islam and Muslims in Southeast Asia

Nadzri explores a range of factors that have influenced nation-building in Malaysia and Singapore, with principal emphasis on the importance of social and economic class. The comparability of analytical outcomes using the prism of class interests uncovers the limitations of the explanatory power of race, ethnic community and culture in understanding the social and political dynamics of the two countries. A valuable read for scholars of politics in Malaysia and Singapore, that will also be of interest to scholars of comparative approaches to nation-building.

Competing Metaphors for International Relations

Jungle or Playground?

Riikka Kuusisto

Series: New International Relations

\s. It delves into ten competing structural metaphors: international relations as natural selection, as family dynamics, as balancing operations, as building and constructing, as games and play, as business and trade, as journeys and paths, as musical performances, as health or sickness and as puzzles and riddles. Drawing attention to the important role of metaphors in grasping this field and providing explanations for its events and motives for its actors, this study will appeal to scholars and students of International Relations and World Politics.

Democracy and Social Rights

A Path Toward Equality?

Larry Patriquin

Series: Routledge Studies in Democratic Crisis

Inequality is everywhere, while at the same time, "representative democracy," is under attack. This book considers what we are doing wrong and how we can put it right. The author argues that our inability to create and entrench social rights, which would help make societies more equal, is rooted in the structures of our political institutions and concludes that our politics, regardless of the presence of elections, cannot carry the mantle democratic. This is why substantial social rights are almost nowhere to be seen, especially in "liberal" welfare regimes like the United States and the United Kingdom.

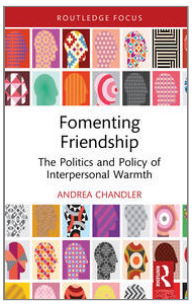
Fomenting Friendship

The Politics and Policy of Interpersonal Warmth



Andrea Chandler

Series: Routledge Research in Comparative Politics

In studies of comparative politics and public policy specifically, interpersonal friendship has been generally regarded as a matter that belongs to the private domain, rather than a site for government intervention. Fomenting Friendship examines the ways in which friendship has been perceived in comparative politics, and the barriers to friendship that exist in capitalist society. These barriers, Andrea Chandler contends, have been shaped by government policy. This book is a natural resource for all those looking for answers and best policy practices for encouraging friendship and uncovering unanswered questions about friendship.

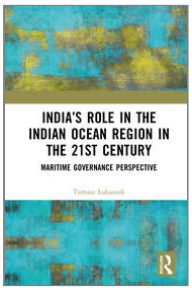
India's Role in the Indian Ocean Region in the 21st Century

Maritime Governance Perspective



Tomasz Łukaszuk

The book explores India's role as a normative power, with solid credentials based on a long history of thalassic experience of states of South India. It examines how India has been interpreting international law and rules for exploitation of living and non-living resources in her way. The book presents an analysis of India's activities in four key areas of maritime governance and a description of its roles in the Indian Ocean Region. Researchers interested in India, the Indian Ocean, and maritime affairs in general would find the book informative and systemizing knowledge about maritime governance in the Indian Ocean Region.

India-US Convergence and Divergence under the Trump Administration

Edited by Raj Verma Jilin University, China, and London School of Economics, UK

This book explores India-US relations and addresses the questions: Did India-US relations strengthen under Trump 1.0? Was there greater political, diplomatic, strategic, and defense cooperation between the two largest democracies in the world under the Trump administration? Was there increasing convergence or divergence at the bilateral and multilateral level, in relations with third countries, and in the realm of regional security and geopolitics? The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of India Review.

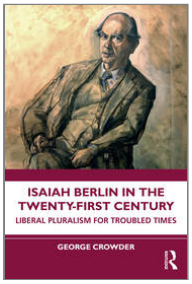
Isaiah Berlin in the Twenty-First Century

Liberal Pluralism for Troubled Times



George Crowder Flinders University, Australia

In this path-breaking study, George Crowder argues that Isaiah Berlin's ideas have application beyond their original context to the problems of our own time. Focusing on three central themes – liberty, identity, and value pluralism – Crowder presents a fresh interpretation of Berlin, exposing the misunderstandings of critics, especially those who ignore Berlin's pluralist foundation. Isaiah Berlin in the Twenty-First Century represents a new departure in the study of Berlin, value pluralism, and liberal thought more generally, and is essential reading for researchers and advanced students in these fields.

Kosovo and Albania

A Special Relationship

Edited by Liridon Lika University of Maastricht, the Netherlands

Series: Southeast European Studies

It provides an inside perspective bringing together scholarly contributions from academics, researchers, and diplomats from both countries. As Kosovo and Albania are inhabited by an overwhelming majority of ethnic Albanians, relations are fraternal, deep, and extensive, with the two states signing numerous agreements and memoranda in the political, economic, educational, cultural and security fields. This 'special relationship' is explored through innovative and multidisciplinary approaches, thus making the study both timely and relevant.

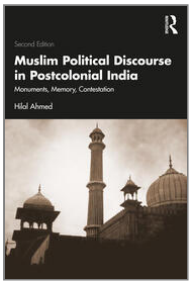
Monuments, Memory, Contestation



Hilal Ahmed

This book explores the process of monumentalisation of Indo-Islamic historical places and their remaking as political sites in contemporary India situating these within the Muslim political discourse. It studies the process through which various monuments such as the Jama Masjid in Delhi and the Babri Masjid in Ayodhya became 'political sites' many decades after independence and the modes by which a memory of a royal Muslim past was articulated for political mobilisation. This new edition also explores the aftermath of the Supreme Court verdict of the Babri Masjid-Ram Janmabhoomi land title dispute and the Hindutva politics of heritage.

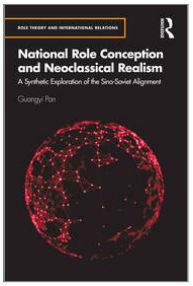
National Role Conception and Neoclassical Realism

A Synthetic Exploration of the Sino-Soviet Alignment



Guangyi Pan

Series: Role Theory and International Relations

Despite China's alignment with Russia being one of the most significant factors shaping the international order, the dynamics of their historic relationships and, more importantly, the sources of China's alignment policy remain under-explored. In this book, Guangyi Pan investigates this question by analysing the changes in China's national role conception from a cross-level perspective. Aimed primarily for scholars whose research fields include International Relations theory, the Cold War history and politics of China, National Role Conception and Neoclassical Realism may also be of interest foreign policymakers, students, and political history enthusiasts.

Oil and Gas Waste Governance

State Politics of Induced Seismicity in Ohio and Oklahoma

Edited by Zachary Mahafza , Joseph A. Aistrup , Jonathan Fisk Auburn University, USA, Lorraine Wolf

Series: Routledge Research in Public Administration and Public Policy

In Oil and Gas Waste Governance, Zachary Mahafza, Joseph A. Aistrup, Jonathan M. Fisk, and Lorraine W. Wolf tell the story of unconventional oil and gas production, earthquakes, and how they both relate to the much broader conversation centering on private property, energy production and the role of science within the public policy process, and environmental sustainability. Utilizing a unique national-level dataset that includes human-induced earthquakes associated with oil and gas development between 2006 and 2018, the book combines insights on focusing/tipping events, media, geoscience, and state-choice to develop and test a new model of event-driven policy change.

Religion in the European Parliament

Between Nation and Europe

Edited by François Foret Université Libre de Bruxelles, Belgium

This book presents the second wave of an unprecedented survey studying what members of the European Parliament (MEPs) believe, and what they do with these beliefs. Research questions include: Are European elites more secularised than EU citizens and national politicians? What is the impact of religion on the political socialisation of MEPs and, conversely, what is the influence of MEPs on religion? How do religion, coalition- and decision-making interact at the European level? What happens in the triangular relationship between nation, Europe, and religion? The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Religion, State and Society.

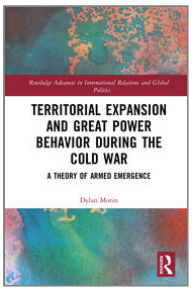
Territorial Expansion and Great Power Behavior During the Cold War

A Theory of Armed Emergence



Dylan Motin

Series: Routledge Advances in International Relations and Global Politics

Motin examines the intricate relationship between the rise of new powers in bipolar international systems and the policies of the existing great powers; exploring the understudied problem of the rarity of armed emergence after 1945, he proposes a novel theory of why and when states resort to military conquest to become great powers. In a context where territorial conquest is returning worldwide, scholars studying international relations, international security, and strategic studies should find valuable insights in this realist take.

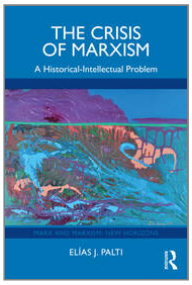
The Crisis of Marxism

A Historical-Intellectual Problem



Elías J. Palti

Series: Marx and Marxisms: New Horizons

In this book, Elías José Palti analyzes the writings of key thinkers who have theorised the present situation of Marxism: Perry Anderson, Fredric Jameson, Ernesto Laclau, Slavoj Žižek, Judith Butler, Alain Badiou and Jacques Derrida. Interrogating the final crisis of Marxist political tradition from a historical-intellectual point of view, Palti places this within the broader framework of the present crisis of politics. The Crisis of Marxism: A Historical-Intellectual Problem aspires to clarify the nature of the questions that such a situation raises and demonstrates why the current crisis of Marxism contains some fundamental clues for it.

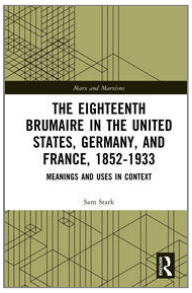
The Eighteenth Brumaire in the United States, Germany, and France, 1852–1933

Meanings and Uses in Context



Sam Stark

Series: Marx and Marxisms: New Horizons

The Eighteenth Brumaire in the United States, Germany, and France, 1852-1933 is the first extended political history of Karl Marx's seminal text. Written in an engaging narrative form that centers political actors engaging with the text, the book uses published and archival sources to reconstruct the contexts of editions over eight decades. Stark begins with a new interpretation of the origins of the Brumaire in a context of arguments among revolutionaries in exile, then surveys the main features of its initial reception, its uptake by socialists, its status in Germany, France and the United States before the First World War, and its fate in the Weimar Republic.

The Liberal Mind in a Conservative Party

Intellectuals and the Liberal Party of Australia

Geoffrey Robinson Deakin University, Australia

Robinson analyses the peculiarly Australian intellectual tradition of liberal conservatism within the mainstream centre-right Liberal Party of Australia. Conservative intellectuals in Australia have forged a pragmatic, sceptical and utilitarian liberal conservatism focused on the tasks of government. Focusing on key figures within this tradition, Robinson tracks the progress of Australian liberal conservatism over the years through its origins and argues that this potent political ideology has shaped a distinct political identity. A fascinating read for students and scholars of Australian politics, that will also be of great value to readers with an interest in centre-right politics.

The Russia-Ukraine War and the Global South's Sovereignty Paradox

This book examines the sovereignty paradox in the Global South within the context of the Russia-Ukraine war. It illustrates the contradiction that countries which helped establish the post-World War II norm of "equal sovereignty"—entitling all nations to the same respect for sovereignty and territorial integrity as the West—are reluctant to publicly condemn Russia's infringement on Ukraine's sovereignty. Understanding American Legislatures

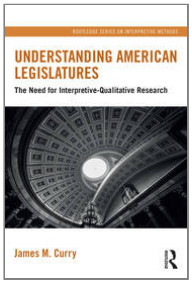
The Need for Interpretive-Qualitative Research



James M. Curry University of Utah, USA

Series: Routledge Series on Interpretive Methods

In this book, James M. Curry introduces legislative scholars to the value and importance of interpretive research. Focusing primarily on the study of the U.S. Congress and the 50 American state legislatures, Curry employs Richard Fenno's "soaking and poking" language as a bridge to the language of interpretivism, aiming to show legislative researchers how they can connect between the two and begin to use the richer terms of the latter in place of the former. Understanding American Legislatures is a must-read contribution to the study of legislatures and our discourse about methods in American politics.

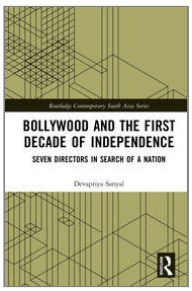
Bollywood and the First Decade of Independence

Seven Directors in Search of a Nation



Devapriya Sanyal

Series: Routledge Contemporary South Asia Series

The selection of key filmmakers instead of cinema in general shows individual trajectories within cinema. The book examines the change in preoccupations or representations in the work of a single filmmaker, followed by an interpretation about the meaning of those representations. The filmmakers were very prolific and their work was commercially successful. Each chapter studies five or six selected films of each filmmaker and also include some relevant biographical details. The book demonstrates that each filmmaker uses their own strategies to address independent India of the 1950s and how Hindu cinema interrogated the nation-state.

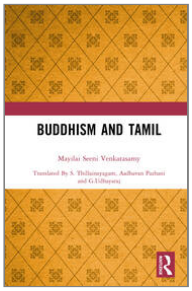
Buddhism and Tamil



Mayilai Seeni Venkatasamy

First published in 1940, Mayilai Seeni Venkatasamy's Buddhism and Tamil was one of the pioneering attempts to trace the history of Buddhism in the Tamil country. With judicious exploitation of archaeological, linguistic, and historical sources, Venkatasamy delineates how Buddhism flourished from the 2nd century BCE to the 13th century CE and traces its residual presence in contemporary Tamil culture. The book challenges the then-prevalent belief that Tamil is synonymous with Saivism and problematises the simplistic understanding that Hinduism had always been the religion of India.

Gandhi and the Caste Question in Colonial India

Shashi Bhushan Upadhyay

This book comprehensively surveys and critically analyses Gandhi's ideas on caste and untouchability. It emphasizes the fact that Gandhi was a considerable thinker who had seminal ideas on the caste question. As an intellectual history, this book is not just a study of his ideas but also of what he practised. The book also critically analyses and questions the attribution of strategy to Gandhi with regard to both the nationalist and anti-untouchability movements. The volume will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of history, caste and discrimination studies, and South Asian studies.

Independent Music in Russia

Escapism, Patriotism and Protest (2008-2022)

Marco Biasioli

Series: BASEES/Routledge Series on Russian and East European Studies

This book explores Russian independent music – nezavisimaia muzyka – in a time of profound transformations in Russian society, looking especially at the mutual influence between music and the socio-political context in which it was created. Contrary to what is commonly believed, the book argues that nezavisimaia muzyka, as a widespread form of non-state-sponsored culture, was not necessarily oppositional to the Russian state, but rather rooted in identity quests that overlapped with some aspects of the official narrative and at the same time mocked, disrupted and refashioned others.

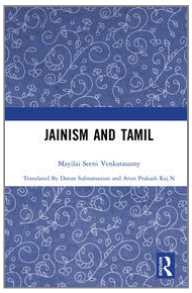
Jainism and Tamil



Mayilai Seeni Venkatasamy

First published in 1954 by Mayilai Seeni Venkatasamy, Samanamum Tamilum (Jainism and Tamil) is one of the earliest accounts introducing and explicating Jain philosophy, ethics, and doctrine to the modern Tamil reader. It traces Jainism's arrival to the Tamil region, its growth, and eventual fall with the concurrent emergence of the Bhakti movement. It talks of the persecution of Jains and their forced conversions to the Hindu faith, and Hinduism's appropriations of Jain myths, festivals, and doctrines. Drawing from a variety of sources, Venkatasamy resurrects the lost and largely forgotten Jain past of the Tamil country.

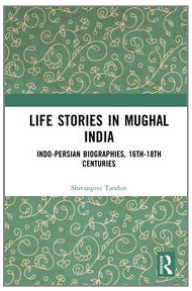
Life Stories in Mughal India

Indo-Persian Biographies, 16th-18th centuries



Shivangini Tandon

Situated at the intersections between history and literature, the book explores the life-stories written in the Mughal period to recover socio-cultural developments in the period. It focuses on the genre of life-stories and looks at the complex interactions between agency and the ruling structure in shaping historical formations. The biographical dictionaries explored in this book highlight the significance of the agency of political actors, and the strategies through which the aristocrats and the elites reproduced the political system.

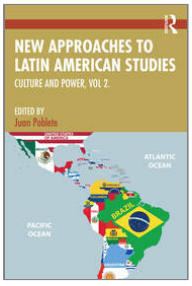
New Approaches to Latin American Studies

Culture and Power, Vol. 2



Juan Poblete

New Approaches to Latin American Studies Vol. 2 provides an examination of the new and defining approaches that have emerged in the field of Latin American Studies since 2014. Like its predecessor, this volume is organized using the concept of a turn (as in linguistic or cultural turn) and aims to help both student and faculty, in an eminently interdisciplinary space like Latin American Studies, find new ways of conceptualizing objects and research. This book is an expert-produced, reliable, and reader-friendly orientation to the many new areas of research Latin American Studies now encompasses and evidence of the dynamism of this complex field.

Partition and the South Asian Diaspora

Exploring (Inherited) Memories and Creative Practices of Remembering

Edited by Jasmine Hornabrook , Clelia Clini Loughborough University, UK, Paul Nataraj , Emily Keightley

Conceived at the unique, intersecting moment of commemoration of 1947 Partition of British India, 1971 Bangladesh independence and 1972 exodus from Uganda, this book focuses on the entangled memories of Partition and its associated events in the diaspora. The chapters in this book explore the cultural and social significance of diasporic memorialisation done in reference to Partition, as it overlaps with the commemoration of key historical moments of change for the South Asian diaspora. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of South Asian Diaspora.

Sarat Chandra Bose, A Vision Denied

The Quest for a Secular, Socialist, United India, 1920-1950

Edited by Madhuri Bose , Brinda Bose

Sarat Chandra Bose (1889–1950) was an eminent barrister, political thinker, and a leader in India's historic struggle against British rule in the first half of the 20th century. This collection of writings on and by Sarat Chandra Bose is expansive and enriched by a selection of archival material on the movement for India's political freedom. The book not only provides a deep insight into Bose's active public life but also fleshes out the intricate nature of friendships and fallouts between powerful historical figures in India and the West, even as India, the 'jewel in the crown' of the British Empire, slipped away from the coloniser's grasp.

Sociopolitical Movements of a Century in Tamil Nadu

Suba Veerapandian

This book spans a century of sociopolitical struggles—protests, rebellions, and revolutions—occurring from 1921 to 2020 in Tamil Nadu. Dr. Suba. Veerapandian employs subaltern and postmodern approaches to uplift the socially, linguistically, culturally and politically marginalized people of Tamil Nadu and analyse their struggles. Subavee's subtlety laced with sarcasm makes this a gripping narrative of Tamil Nadu's sociopolitical history, celebrating resistance leaders like Periyar EVR, Arignar Anna and Kalaignar Karunanidhi. It links the past to the present, censuring the sociopolitical ideologies that trample societies through cultural hegemony.

Tax Burden on Farm and Non-farm Sectors in India

An Inter-sectoral and Inter-class Analysis

This book provides a detailed, comparative analysis of the relative tax burdens on the farm and non-farm sectors in India in the 1960s. It addresses the key question of mobilising the resources for transforming agriculture-dependent, backward economies into industrial economies. In a comparison with the historical experiences of Japan and the Soviet Union, this book goes against the grain of conventional thinking and argues that their systems cannot be implanted into our democratic society. Russian Radical Right in Exile, 1918-1945

Without the Tsar and Fatherland

Edited by Zbyněk Vydra

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Russia and Eastern Europe

The book examines the development of the Russian radical right in exile between 1918 and 1945. The radical right, which represented one of the most prominent groups of Russian political exiles, both continued its pre-revolutionary activities and at the same time was inspired by new ideologies of the interwar period, primarily fascism. This book is especially important in that contemporary right-wing radicalism in Russia draws on the thinking of these right-wing exiles very extensively. It will be of interest to researchers in modern Russian history, Russian emigration, and right-wing radicalism as well as 20th-century history.

Afroeuropeans

Identities, Racism, and Resistances

Edited by Cristina Roldão , Raquel Lima , Pedro Varela , Otávio Raposo , Ana Raquel Matias

Series: Routledge Studies on African and Black Diaspora

Afroeuropeans: Identities, Racism, and Resistances reflects on the tensions, ambiguities, and paradoxes of Blackness in Europe.It addresses relations of domination and modes of racial exclusion, but also Afro-European interventions in the political, social, cultural, and artistic spheres, and the multiple resistances that have sustained Black bodies in the European continent. It is forged in a moment of particularly strong Black intellectual and political vitality. Given the book's intersectional and transdisciplinary approach, it will be a go-to for students and researchers across the humanities and social sciences, as well as to artists, activists, politicians, and journalists.

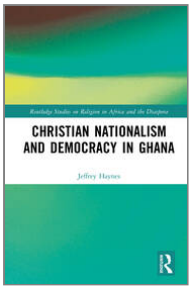
Christian Nationalism and Democracy in Ghana



Jeffrey Haynes

Series: Routledge Studies on Religion in Africa and the Diaspora

The book investigates the impact of Christian nationalism on democracy in Ghana, arguing that proponents of a specific Christian worldview seek to remake the country according to their values and beliefs. Christian nationalism is a significant religious and political ideology not only Ghana, but also Zambia and Nigeria. The book examines specific examples of Christian nationalism's impact on Ghana's democracy: the national cathedral as a symbol of unity and social cohesion, anti-Muslim pronouncements threatening inter-faith harmony, and attacks on the LGBTQ+ community. This book will interest researchers of African religion and politics, with Ghana serving as an important case study.

African Youth during the COVID-19 Pandemic

Urban Mobilities and Peacebuilding Trajectories

Edited by Ibrahim Bangura , Cyril Obi , Irene D Mngutyo

Series: Routledge Studies in Peace, Conflict and Security in Africa

This book investigates the lived experiences of Africa's youth during the COVID-19 pandemic, tracing its impact on their mobilities, freedoms, and livelihoods. Bringing together diverse perspectives from across the continent, the book interrogates how African youth expressed their agency in urban spatial terms during the pandemic, by coping with, adapting, and responding to the deepening marginality, insecurity, inequalities and at the same time opportunities they faced. The strong empirical evidence presented in this book will be an important resource for researchers across African sociology, health, politics, and peace and conflict studies.

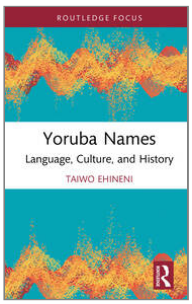
Yoruba Names

Language, Culture, and History



Taiwo Ehineni

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern History of Africa

Investigating the sociocultural significance of names in Yoruba society, the book shows how names act as distinctive markers, separating the Yoruba out from over 250 other ethnic groups in Nigeria. These names are not just labels, but affirmations of a shared identity and heritage. Names can serve as symbolic representations of a family's history, ancestral traditions, or significant events, thereby linking the bearers to their lineage. Based on extensive qualitative data from over 100 native speakers, the book shows how names can reflect joy, sorrow, or political stances. The book goes on to consider how names are also used in non-human contexts, such as for naming places or pets.

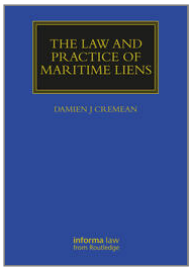
The Law and Practice of Maritime Liens



Damien J Cremean

Series: Maritime and Transport Law Library

This book uniquely offers a single point of reference on the vital legal subject of maritime liens, intrinsic to Admiralty Law and a topic often incompletely understood by shipping firms and other such businesses. The Law and Practice of Maritime Liens offers a comprehensive and accessible guide to the topic for anyone directly or indirectly involved in the maritime sector, but it is most directly relevant to legal practitioners (especially in maritime law and marine insurance areas) in practice within each of the relevant jurisdictions, shipowners, charterers and corporations involved in the maritime sector.

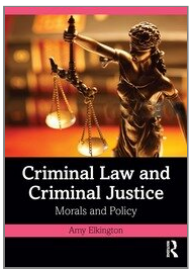
Criminal Law and Criminal Justice

Morals and Policy



Amy Elkington

Criminal Law and Criminal Justice: Morals and Policy goes beyond the traditional criminal law textbook and invites students to question why we criminalise certain behaviour and whether the decisions made by the courts can be justified according to legal principle, morals and policy. Providing an overview not only of the legal doctrine of criminal law, but also of the underpinning theory behind the legal doctrine, the book encourages critical thinking around the context behind, and implementation of, legal decisions. Featuring thinking points and further reading suggestions, this textbook is suitable for all students of criminal law, as well as for those studying jurisprudence.

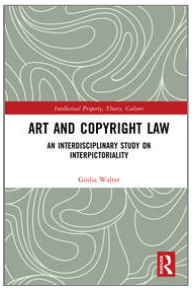
Art and Copyright Law

An Interdisciplinary Study on Interpictoriality



Giulia Walter

Series: Intellectual Property, Theory, Culture

This book tackles the lack of synchronicity between art and copyright law, proposing practical and interdisciplinary tools through which to navigate this conflict. In the last decades, high profile lawsuits have been filed against artists accused of plagiarism including Jeff Koons, Barbara Kruger and Andy Warhol. This book demonstrates how these cases are at odds with contemporary artistic reality, in which the use of antecedent visual forms is common practice. It will be of interest to researchers in the field of art and copyright law, intellectual property and art.

Borders of the Early Modern Ius Commune

England, Venice and Scandinavia

Edited by Dolores Freda , Mario Piccinini , Heikki Pihlajamäki , Chiara Maria Valsecchi

Series: Routledge Studies in Comparative Legal History

The culture of the ius commune has been a unifying element of European and Western legal civilization. As shown by several recent studies, the influence of ius commune extended further than its traditional core area. This volume discusses the expansion and changes of ius commune in three significant corners of Europe: England, Scandinavia, and Venice. The study goes beyond the traditional question of the influence of ius commune in comparing the different constellations of normativity and legal pluralism in these regions. The book will be essential reading for researchers and academics in Legal History, Law and Religion, Comparative Legal Studies and Early Modern History.

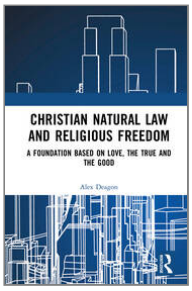
Christian Natural Law and Religious Freedom

A Foundation Based on Love, the True and the Good



Alex Deagon Queensland Uni of Tech

Deagon addresses the need for a robust theoretical foundation for religious freedom that accounts for its transcendent nature. What is the idea of religious freedom? Where does it come from? Why should it be protected? These important questions for understanding religious freedom are usually addressed through secular and immanent foundations which are unable to sufficiently grapple with the religious nature of religious freedom – its connection with the divine. Deagon proposes an alternative approach rooted in Christian Natural Law.

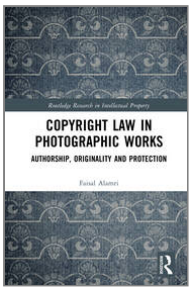
Copyright Law in Photographic Works

Authorship, Originality and Protection



Faisal Alamri

Series: Routledge Research in Intellectual Property

This book presents an original theory of copyright authorship tailored for photographic works, grounded in the concepts of categorical intention, channeled selection, and causation. By addressing the unique dual nature of photography, where mechanical processes intersect with creative choices, it offers a fresh perspective on a longstanding legal challenge. This book will be of interest to researchers in copyright law and intellectual property law, especially those engaged with the legal treatment of mechanically produced creative works. It offers valuable insights into the evolving relationship between law, technology, and authorship in the digital age.

Critical Children's Rights Studies

A Research Companion

Edited by Valeria Llobet , Didier Reynaert , Afua Twum-Danso Imoh , Wouter Vandenhole University of Antwerp, Belgium

The field of Children's Rights Studies is well established and largely dominated by a top-down approach that considers these rights as objective standards requiring implementation in practice or policy. This book argues for a critical perspective which views the area as contested terrain with conflicting normative foundations and traditions. Containing both empirical and theoretical scholarship, the book will be an essential resource for students, academics, researchers and policy-makers working in the multidisciplinary areas of Childhood Studies, Children's Rights Studies and International Human Rights.

Discrimination and Access to Justice in Africa

Language, Vulnerability and Social Inclusion in Southern and Eastern Africa

Edited by Wellman Kondowe , Paul Svongoro

Series: Law, Language and Communication

There are different forms of discrimination. Among others, people can be discriminated against on the basis of their ethnic grouping, political affiliation, race, gender, age, and language. This book focuses on linguistic discrimination in Africa, acknowledging that language plays a key role in the delivery of justice and much of what transpires in justice systems deals with language use. Executive Dominance in Times of Crisis

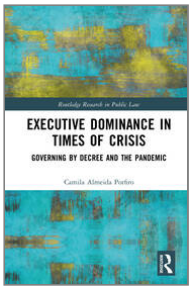
Governing by Decree and the Pandemic



Camila Almeida Porfiro

Series: Routledge Research in Public Law

This book argues that the frequent use of unilateral acts by the executive, exacerbated in times of emergency, can lead to a process of serious democratic erosion. It holds that the unlimited expansion of unilateral action is incompatible with the principle of separation of powers and the basic elements of a constitutional democracy. The book offers a contemporary analysis of executive dominance in Brazil, Italy, and Germany, particularly in the context of the COVID-19 pandemic. The book will be of interest to academics and researchers working in the areas of Constitutional Law and Politics, Administrative Law; International and Comparative Law.

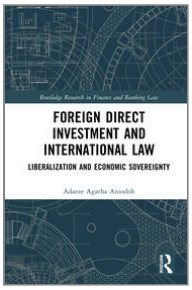
Foreign Direct Investment and International Law

Liberalization and Economic Sovereignty



Adaeze Agatha Aniodoh

Series: Routledge Research in Finance and Banking Law

This book examines the regulatory framework for foreign direct investments, most notably the bilateral investment treaties which provide several guarantees that minimise the exposure of risks to foreign investors in a host State. It argues that policies aimed at increasing foreign direct investment need to extend beyond investment liberalisation, to strike a balance between the regulatory rights of a State and the legitimate expectations of foreign investors. This book will be of interest to students, academics, and practitioners in the field of international investment law.

Framing Devices and Global Legal Traditions

From the Ancient World to the Modern Nation State

Edited by Laura Culbertson , Susan Longfield Karr

Series: Routledge Studies in Comparative Legal History

This collection explores prefaces, prologues, paratexts, and other types of framing devices. It offers new ways to consider the significance of framing apparatuses regarding how and why they are created, remembered, forgotten, utilized, and recovered within legal traditions. The studies range from the ancient world to the modern nation-state system, aiming to explore the intersections and collisions between juridical and political interpretation practices. The book will be of interest to academics and researchers in the areas of Legal History, Comparative Law, Legal Cultures and Traditions, Legal Theory, Jurisprudence, Constitutional Law and Legislative Drafting.

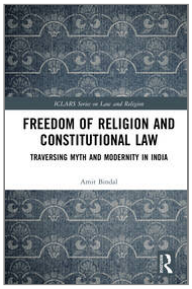
Freedom of Religion and Constitutional Law

Traversing Myth and Modernity in India



Amit Bindal

Series: ICLARS Series on Law and Religion

This book investigates the intersection of religion and modern law. It explores how secular courts encounter the religious or mythical question which is disavowed by modern institutions. It questions the private-public dichotomy of liberal constitutionalism which relegates religion to the private sphere, with a particular focus on ex-colonial societies like India which are foundationally and diversely religious. The book will be a valuable resource for students and academics working on Law, Religious Studies, History and Political Science.

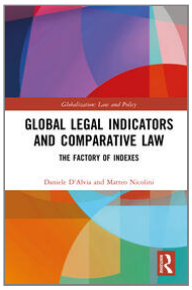
Global Legal Indicators and Comparative Law

The Factory of Indexes



Daniele D'Alvia Queen Mary University of London, Matteo Nicolini

Series: Globalization: Law and Policy

In recent times, comparative law has moved towards a new type of visualisation of the law, which is mainly based on indexes and indicators. Through these, legal scholars and practitioners measure legal systems against specific benchmarks; they no longer search for commonalities among legal systems but are interested in assessing how the law performs in economic terms. This book critically analyses this 'quantitative turn' in comparative law. It will be of interest to advanced students, researchers and academics in Comparative Law, Global Law, Transnational Law, Constitutional Law, and Law and Economics.

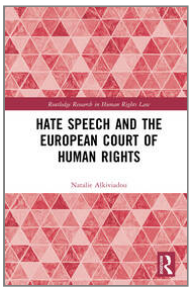
Hate Speech and the European Court of Human Rights



Natalie Alkiviadou Justitia, Denmark.

Series: Routledge Research in Human Rights Law

This book argues that the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR) should reconsider its approach to hate speech cases and develop a robust protection of freedom of expression. Viewing the ECHR as a 'living instrument' the book places this analysis within the current state of affairs vis-à-vis the handling of hate speech, particularly online, by European countries, the European Union itself and social media platforms, actions which the author argues are contributing to a free speech demise. The book will be a valuable resource for academics, researchers and policy-makers working in the area of Law, Political Science, European Studies and Sociology.

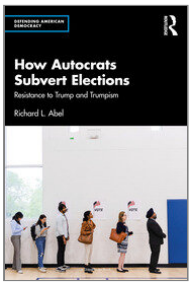
How Autocrats Subvert Elections

Resistance to Trump and Trumpism



Richard L. Abel

Series: Defending American Democracy

Chronicling and analyzing resistance to the threat that autocracy poses to American liberal democracy, this book provides the definitive account of the response to the January 6, 2021, assault on the Capitol and Republican efforts to overturn the 2020 election and bias future elections in their favor. This definitive account and analysis of Trump and his supporters' attempts to subvert the 2020 election will appeal to scholars, students and others with interests in politics, populism and the rule of law and, more specifically, to those concerned with resisting the threat that autocracy poses to liberal democracy.

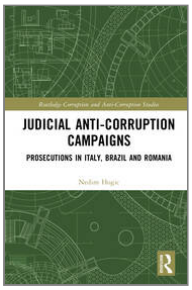
Judicial Anti-Corruption Campaigns

Prosecutions in Italy, Brazil and Romania



Nedim Hogic

Series: Routledge Corruption and Anti-Corruption Studies

This book provides a comparative analysis of three cases of mass prosecutions of political corruption that have occurred in the last three decades in Italy, Brazil, and Romania. It outlines how judicial showdowns with political corruption emerge, what consequences they create, and whether they can be considered legitimate judicial operations or coups orchestrated by political forces with the assistance of the judiciary. Due to the similarities exhibited in the legal, political, and economic spheres of the events, the book explores the Italian Mani Pulite, Brazilian Lava Jato and Romanian judicial anti-corruption campaigns.

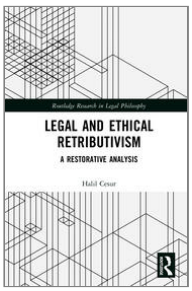
Legal and Ethical Retributivism

A Restorative Analysis



Halil Cesur

Series: Routledge Research in Legal Philosophy

This book explores a foundational philosophical tension in contemporary retributivism, revealing ambiguities in its approach to punishment between two conflicting conceptions of restoration: legal justice and ethical love. Through an analysis of the three parties involved in a crime—the victim, the offender, and the state—it argues that neo-retributivism has not sufficiently incorporated the ethical face of punishment into its theoretical framework. The book will be of interest to academics and researchers working in the areas of Philosophy of Punishment, Criminal Law Theory, Criminal Justice, Restorative Justice, Philosophy of Law, Political Philosophy and Hegel scholarship.

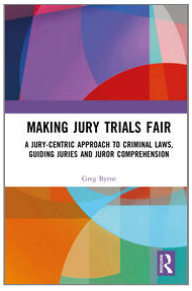
Making Jury Trials Fair

A Jury-centric Approach to Criminal Laws, Guiding Juries and Juror Comprehension



Greg Byrne

This book proposes using a 'jury-centric approach' for improving laws, practices, and procedures in jury trials. Courts assume that jurors in a criminal trial understand and apply the judge's directions about the law. The book illustrates and evaluates a jury-centric approach through three case studies involving structured decision-making aids, homicide laws, and misconceptions in sexual offence cases. The book will be a valuable resource for academics, researchers, policy-makers and students in the areas of Criminal Law, Courts, Human Rights Law, Psycholinguistics and Organisational Psychology, and to judges and lawyers.

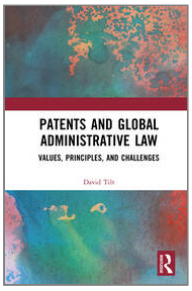
Patents and Global Administrative Law

Values, Principles, and Challenges



David Tilt

The book applies values and concepts from Global Administrative Law (GAL) to international patent law, demonstrating how limiting technocratic and overly economic language can be. Highlighting the administrative foundations of patent law, the book argues that, in its international form, it can be analysed using the same principles of participation, transparency, and accountability found in national administrative law. A fundamental objective of the book is to challenge the tendency towards technocratic isolation in patent law. The book will be of interest to researchers in the field of patent law, international law and administrative law.

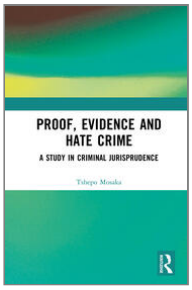
Proof, Evidence and Hate Crime

A Study in Criminal Jurisprudence



Tshepo Mosaka

Proof is the property of a disputed fact being established inferentially from an extant fact. This book explicates the structural components of this phenomenon in the context of hate crimes across various jurisdictions around the world. It departs from the orthodox conception of evidence and proof as being a general, value-neutral, or non-normative, and epistemic subject, and offers a relativistic conception of this area of law. The book will be of interest to academics and researchers working in the areas of Criminal Law, Legal Philosophy and Procedural Law.

Representative Democracy in Flux

Deconstructive Narratives from a Legal and Constitutional Perspective

Edited by Martin Belov

Series: Routledge Research in Constitutional Law

This book delves into the core of representative democracy in order to explain its main features – institutional and imaginary – and to show the reasons for its increasing dysfunctionality. It explores the constitutional imaginaries of representation. It outlines the main factors influencing the failures of representative democracy, in an age of constitutional crisis and transition, being gradually deconstructed via tendencies towards authoritarianism and technocracy. The work will be of interest to researchers, academics, and policy-makers in Constitutional Law and Politics, Comparative Constitutional Law, Administrative Law, Human Rights Law, and Theory and Philosophy of Law.

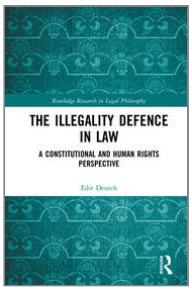
The Illegality Defence in Law

A Constitutional and Human Rights Perspective



Edit Deutch

Series: Routledge Research in Legal Philosophy

This book re-examines the application of the Illegality Defence, framing it as a State deprivation of property for the public good, underscoring the necessity of constitutional protections in this context. The work explores the development, interpretation, and application of the Illegality Defence within a constitutional framework, bridging the gap between private and public law. This approach seeks to enhance legal certainty and predictability in the application of the Illegality Defence. The study will be essential reading for academics and researchers working in the areas of legal theory, human rights law, and jurisprudence.

The Politics of Democratic Representation

Enfranchisement and Participation Revisited

Edited by Benjamin Boudou , Marcus Carlsen Häggrot

The book discusses boundaries of electoral inclusion and mechanisms of electoral representation in contemporary democracies. Looking at the (dis)enfranchisement of children, cognitively disabled persons, and refugees, and discussing the forms of representation that might be afforded to external voters, future generations, and non-citizens, the contributions develop innovative arguments applying the basic principles of electoral democracy to the complexities of specific, real-world cases. Doing so, the contributions offer timely, yet unorthodox, perspectives on the theory and practice of electoral democracy.

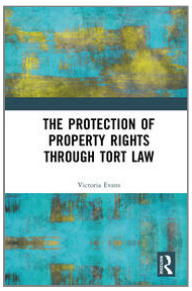
The Protection of Property Rights Through Tort Law



Victoria Evans King's College London, United Kingdom

This book analyses the problems caused by relying on tort law mechanisms to protect tangible property interests in the common law and suggests a new way of thinking to rectify these issues. It demonstrates how tort law tends to focus on loss within the caselaw and argues that this fundamental mismatch wholly undermines the category of property rights, since the protection of property through tort is simultaneously too broad and too narrow. Using cases throughout, the book will be of interest to students, scholars, and practitioners within the fields of property law, tort law and private law in general.

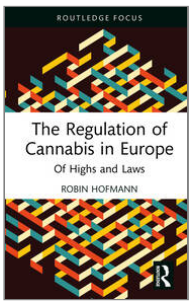
The Regulation of Cannabis in Europe

Of Highs and Laws



Robin Hofmann

This book delves into the evolving landscape of cannabis regulation across Europe and the world. Starting with Germany's push for full legalization, the work highlights hurdles faced by policymakers. It offers a detailed analysis of international and European frameworks that restrict drug policy reform and discusses potential loopholes to avoid them. The case of Germany serves as a valuable blueprint for other states considering more progressive approaches to drugs. The book will be of interest to a broad audience including legal scholars and practitioners, students of criminology, international law, and European law or those with an interest in EU security and health policies.

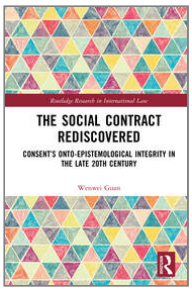
The Social Contract Rediscovered

Consent's Onto-Epistemological Integrity in the Late 20th Century



Wenwei Guan City University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

Series: Routledge Research in International Law

This book conducts a critical analysis of the historical evolution of legitimacy, tracing its development from natural law to positive law and finally to post-modern critiques. It fills a scholarly gap by addressing the overlooked aspect of the consent process. The book begins with a recap of the historical development of social contract theory. It draws from a broad base of jurisprudential and social theories to think through how social contract's rise and fall forms an integral part of legitimacy's modernization process from the Enlightenment driven Industrial Revolution's global proliferation to the end of the 20th century.

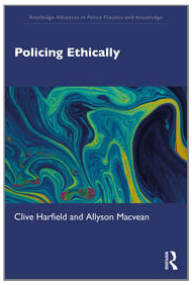
Policing Ethically



Clive Harfield , Allyson Macvean

Series: Routledge Advances in Police Practice and Knowledge

What does the phrase 'police ethics' mean? What does 'policing ethically' entail? This book provides answers to these questions and proposes an ethical tool-kit to help evaluate the making of ethically-sound decisions and choices by policing officials. This book is essential reading for all those involved in delivering policing: constables of all ranks, policing community support officers, professional support staff, policing ethic committee members, and policymakers. It will be of interest not only to policing ethicists and ethnographers, but also students and policy-makers in the fields of criminology, sociology and governance.

Combating Human Trafficking

An Integrative Social and Technological Approach

Edited by Usha Rana , Rupender Singh

Thoroughly examines the issue of human trafficking and offers a blueprint for its eradication. It delves into the intricacies of human trafficking, dissecting the factors that sustain its existence. It critically assesses existing anti-trafficking initiatives and introduces a novel approach rooted in a sociotechnical framework that models a multidisciplinary strategy that combines both social and technological interventions. Recognizing human trafficking's multifaceted origins, this framework underscores the necessity for a holistic approach that addresses the root causes of trafficking and its associated forms of exploitation

Corporate Crime

The Firm as Victim and Offender

Edited by William S. Laufer , Miranda A. Galvin

Series: Advances in Criminological Theory

This volume speaks to the fundamental issues inherent in trying to understand the who-what-where-and-whys of corporate crime. Only in addressing these larger issues does it become possible to begin to integrate the study of corporate crime into the larger criminological theory literature. The chapters in this volume underscore the failures of the current system and are intended to inspire readers to push for change. This important work will be of interest to a wide range of criminologists and has potential to shape the future of corporate crime theory and research. It is ideal for use in graduate seminars and upper-level undergraduate courses.

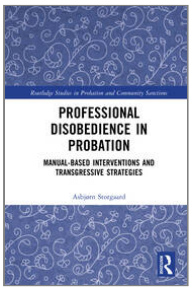
Professional Disobedience in Probation

Manual-based Interventions and Transgressive Strategies



Asbjørn Storgaard

Series: Routledge Studies in Probation and Community Sanctions

This book comprises an in-depth ethnographic study of daily life in two local Danish probation offices. It explores the interactions between probation officers and citizens on probation, assessing the potential for manual-based or 'scripted' rehabilitative interventions to inspire participatory citizenship among disenfranchised clients. This book is essential reading for those engaged in probation, criminal justice, ethnography, and Nordic Criminology. Given the broad applicability of the concept of 'professional disobedience,' it will also appeal to researchers, students, practitioners, and policymakers with an interest in punishment, disenfranchisement, and rehabilitation.

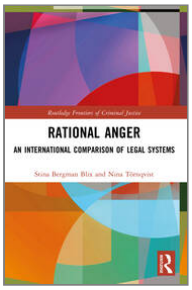
Rational Anger

An International Comparison of Legal Systems



Stina Bergman Blix Uppsala University, Sweden., Nina Törnqvist Uppsala University

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Criminal Justice

When do judges and prosecutors become angry in court, what do they become angry about, and which other emotions open up for anger? Anger brings people to court and is essential in evaluating wrongdoing and attributing blame, but at the same time anger is seen as a threat to well-reasoned and just decision-making. Drawing on observations, interviews, and shadowing of legal professionals, the text demonstrates how anger is entangled with legal thought and comes into play in legal practices.

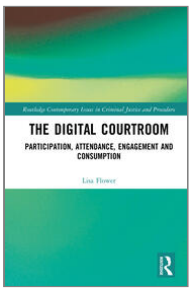
The Digital Courtroom

Participation, Attendance, Engagement and Consumption



Lisa Flower Lund University, Sweden

Series: Routledge Contemporary Issues in Criminal Justice and Procedure

The digitalisation of courtrooms brings both opportunities and challenges to the judicial process, shaping our understandings of trials and their participants in a myriad of unexpected ways, and transforming how we participate in, attend, engage with, and consume trials. The author examines the social construction of courts in the digital age and argues that digitalisation is not merely transforming the tools of justice but is redefining the essence of the justice experience and transforming our perceptions of trials and their participants. The work will be a valuable resource for scholars and students in the social sciences, law and all those interested in digitalisation and society.

Revitalizing Criminological Theory

Advances in Ultra-Realism

Steve Hall Teesside University, UK, Simon Winlow Teesside University, UK

Series: New Directions in Critical Criminology

In the first edition, Hall and Winlow laid the foundations for an alternative theoretical framework and research in criminology. In three additional chapters written specially for this edition they introduce further concepts and substantive revisions to the theoretical framework. The main focus of this edition is the growing body of criminological projects conducted by a new generation of researchers who have adopted and mobilised ultra-realist thinking over the past decade. It is essential reading for academics and students engaged in the study of criminology, sociology, social psychology, the philosophy of social science and the history of crime.

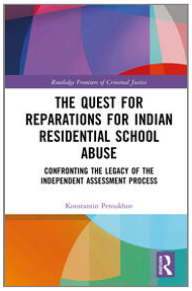
The Quest for Reparations for Indian Residential School Abuse

Confronting the Legacy of the Independent Assessment Process



Konstantin Petoukhov

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Criminal Justice

This book explores the complexities and nuances of reparations for victims and survivors of settler colonial violence. It centres its analysis on the Independent Assessment Process (IAP), a financial compensation program that was designed to address the horrific legacy of Canada's Indian Residential School system, which was established to assimilate Indigenous children into settler Canadian society. The target audience for this book include scholars, educators, practitioners, students, and members of the general public whose research interests include settler colonial studies, history, reparations, transitional justice, Indigenous studies, and critical victimology.

Conducting Narratives

Navigating Through Complexity Using Strategic Improvisation

Jesper Falkheimer Lund University, Sweden, Katarina Gentzel Sandberg , Mats Tyrstrup

In a world where globalization, digitalization, crisis and polarization are putting severe pressure on most organizations, the previously accepted tools of effective governance and communication are no longer effective. The book presents an approach anchored in strategic improvisation – a combination of order and chaos. Strategic improvisation allows organizations and leaders to meet the demands of a paradoxical world in which windows of opportunity constantly open as well as close. It presents strategic improvisation as a concept, mindset and toolbox for leaders and organizations.

Confident Leaders By Design

An Essential Guide to Confidence Creation

Chris Baker

Do you feel confident at work? Are there times when you lack confidence but can't show it? The role of confidence in successful leadership is both significant and undisputed and yet organisations are full of leaders and teams who don't have as much as they want and, even worse, are not doing anything about it. Alongside the theory, readers will practically locate their confidence sweet spot and explore activities like sludge audits, confidence curves and self-efficacy circles which will help them to immediately start growing confidence in themselves and their teams.

E-Pharmaceutical Care and E-Health Operational Frameworks

Katarzyna Szalonka , Anna Dąbrowska , Mariusz Jabłoński , Mariola Drozd , Alicja Fandrejewska , Elżbieta Stańczyk , Konrad Żak

Through an in-depth analysis, the authors will showcase existing tools that are already functioning in the market and those that are expected to be implemented soon. Furthermore, the authors will focus on e-health tools that have yet to be adopted due to organizational barriers and mental barriers on the part of their potential users, medical and pharmaceutical practitioners, patients, and consumers. Drawing insights from surveys that have been conducted among medical professionals, pharmaceutical staff and patients, the authors examine the awareness of both medical practitioners and patients of the usability, necessity and benefits of these IT tools.

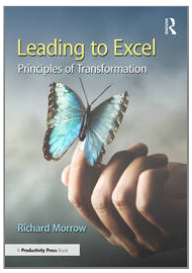
Leading to Excel

Principles of Transformation



Richard Morrow

This book details those principles found across industries including highly competitive automotive global competitors to local healthcare large and small. Leading radical improvement demands leadership "muscle, mentality, and motivation." It demands practice, repetition, and building muscles to "lift" organizations often facing heavy resistance. Leaders who excel in transformative change achieve a mental state envisioning the future, blocking out disruptions, and help others see the same view of a largely different future.

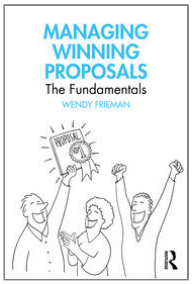
Managing Winning Proposals

The Fundamentals



Wendy Frieman

This book walks the proposal manager through the steps that are essential and common to every single proposal and ensure a foundation for winning. Many proposal management books are of little use, particularly to a first-time proposal manager, due to their broad scope and unrealistic assumptions about resources including time, expertise, and information. This book provides actionable, concrete steps for the activities that underpin all successful proposals, providing a step-by-step description of how to make a proposal compliant and compelling.

Organic Finance

Building a New Sustainable and Inclusive Framework from the Ground Up

Atul K. Shah University College, Suffolk, UK

There is an urgent need to reform the theory and practice of finance, given its total failure to protect our society and ecosystem. The planet is biodiverse, and society, too, has many faiths, customs, beliefs, and practices in finance. This book, written by renowned finance expert, Ataul Shah, articulates how the current dominant model of abstraction of finance from society needs to be transformed – finance should be a servant of society and not its master.

Remotely Innovative

Innovation a Hybrid/Remote and AI Driven World

Tom Coughlan , David J. Fogarty

This book gives managers a new perspective on innovation and AI—allowing them to seize the future. As the pace of change has increased, organizations have needed to invest in innovation initiatives to survive and thrive. Up until now, these models have focused on co-location, which is no longer an option in some cases and may not be necessary for all, leaving organizations scrambling for options. Following up on their work in Managing at a Distance, Tom Coughlan and David Fogarty have developed the guide to help managers navigate the challenges of innovation in a world of hybrid and remote workers amidst the ever-increasing use of AI.

The Management Puzzle Solved!

Hiring, Developing, Managing, Leading

Richard Hammes

Most often managers come up through the ranks of employees and are chosen because of their success, drive, abilities, education, other accomplishments, and personal factors. However, collectively their accomplishments as employees do not necessarily prepare them for managing and leading. Completing tasks is different from energizing and motivating others to perform. Often the best "doers" are not the best managers. In managing and leading, it often is the mid-level or average performer that is more effective. They may not achieve at the highest level as an employee, but they have qualities that fit with the characteristics of successful managers and leaders. .

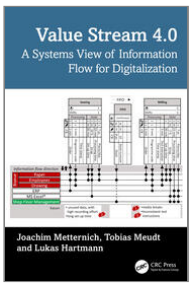
Value Stream 4.0

A Systems View of Information Flow for Digitalization



Joachim Metternich , Tobias Meudt , Lukas Hartmann

This book describes how material and information flows of a value stream can be synchronized with the aim of processing orders as quickly and waste-free as possible. The design of the value stream is systematically oriented towards the requirements of the respective business model. The approach described goes beyond the classic value stream method, which primarily improves material flow, and considers order processing from the customer's request to its fulfillment. A compact yet powerful book that is written for production managers, lean managers, operations managers, researchers, and students.

AI in Hospital Administration

Revolutionizing Healthcare

David Mhlanga Monash University, Australia

Artificial Intelligence (AI) is revolutionizing hospital administration by optimizing processes, improving patient outcomes, and enhancing resource management. AI applications in healthcare include patient scheduling, electronic health record management, medical imaging, and clinical decision support systems. This transformation promises more efficient operations, accurate diagnoses, and personalized patient care. However, the integration of AI also poses challenges, such as ethical considerations and data security, which must be carefully managed to realize its full potential.

Endogenous Money and the Supermultiplier

Edited by Maria Cristina Barbieri Góes , Óscar Dejuán Asenjo , Riccardo Pariboni , Ricardo Summa

This book explores the Supermultiplier model which has rapidly evolved into a key analytical framework, embraced and debated by Post-Keynesian economists across various schools of thought. At its core, the model extends Keynesian principles to the long run, asserting that economic growth and productive capacity are fundamentally shaped by effective demand. Central to this framework is the concept of autonomous demand—components of aggregate demand such as government spending, exports, and private investments that operate independently of income flows, driving growth and capital accumulation.

Management, Organizations, and Paradoxes

Insights from the Central and Eastern European Region

Edited by Malgorzata Rozkwitalska-Welenc , Agnieszka Zakrzewska-Bielawska , Anna Maria Lis

Series: Routledge Studies in Management, Organizations and Society

Paradoxical tensions are persistently inevitable in today's complex organizational world. Therefore, managers should perceive them as a lens through which they see organizations and work through them. Reconciling paradoxes requires understanding their nature and appraising them. It also involves novelty and creativity in implemented tactics. Thus, to help managers navigate dualities and contradictions in their organizations, Management, Organizations, and Paradoxes presents a comprehensive overview of implementing the paradox theory from a distinct organizational standpoint in the Central and Eastern European (CEE) context.

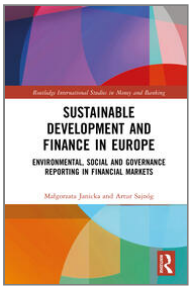
Sustainable Development and Finance in Europe

Environmental, Social and Governance Reporting in Financial Markets



Małgorzata Janicka , Artur Sajnóg

Series: Routledge International Studies in Money and Banking

This book characterizes and evaluates how stock markets operate in European Union (EU) countries in terms of the sustainable development of public companies. The book addresses two key research areas. Firstly, it provides an analysis of the legal and institutional environment of the EU stock markets in the sustainable reconstruction of the European economy and secondly, it assesses the conditions for EU public companies to implement environmental, social, and governance (ESG) non-financial reporting requirements, and how the ESG indicators, based on these, function. The book presents the methodology for constructing ESG indicators, with particular emphasis on Refinitiv.

Sustainable Smart Technology Businesses in Global Economies

Edited by Lalit Prasad , Anatoliy Goncharuk , Teddy Fauzi , Hanna Doroshuk , Sri Sundari

To live a healthy life, we need a continuous supply of clean air, water, and other natural resources. But, in the recent past, the environmental conditions have deteriorated significantly due to ongoing development and industrialization. Owing to the increase in the population globally, we cannot avoid the ongoing developmental works. Thus, maintaining a balance between environment and development is the demand of the current time. This conference was intended for works pertaining to mathematical modeling and management of natural resources. It provided a forum for the research community to exchange ideas related to sustainable development.

Contradictions of Democracy, Development and Inequality

A Case of India

Edited by Sejuti Das Gupta , Shouvik Chakraborty , Taposik Banerjee

Identity politics has widened representation for the marginalised groups in democracies, while neoliberalism has deepened inequality. This volume finds answers to the paradox of widening representation and worsening inequality especially in India exploring the themes of development and identity in recent times. Inspired by Ceasar Basu's works as a political thinker and teacher, this volume weaves in economic concerns with the socio-cultural aspects of identity and contends that representation is not sufficient. Further, it highlights the importance of reinstating redistribution to serve both democracy and development.

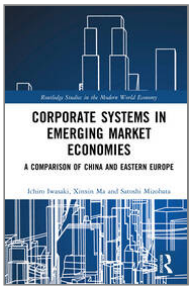
Corporate Systems in Emerging Market Economies

A Comparison of China and Eastern Europe



Ichiro Iwasaki , Xinxin Ma , Satoshi Mizobata

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern World Economy

This book provides a comparative perspective of various areas of corporate management in China and Eastern Europe. Employing original firm-level empirical analyses and meta-analyses of the literature, this book investigates the impacts of corporate ownership on firm performance and organizational behaviour. In comparing China and Eastern Europe, the book addresses whether corporate governance structures have evolved due to global pressures from competition and technological progress, or if inter-regional differences reflect how firms were privatized or handed over to managers after the end of central planning. Ideal for researchers and scholars in comparative economics.

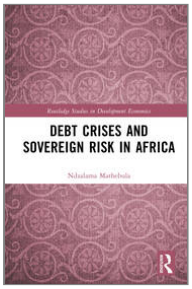
Debt Crises and Sovereign Risk in Africa



Ndzalama Mathebula

Series: Routledge Studies in Development Economics

This book examines the resurgence of debt crises and the idea of sovereign risk in Africa through a qualitative methodology and a case study research design, analyzing three countries borrowed from the IMF in 2020 or later, mainly prompted by the pandemic. It deciphers the debt crisis phenomenon through the discourse of sovereign risk, which has been paid insufficient attention within the African context and seeks to appreciate facets that continue to lead African states to a debt-default position. The book is designed to appeal to numerous reading communities, namely scholars, researchers, advanced students and policymakers.

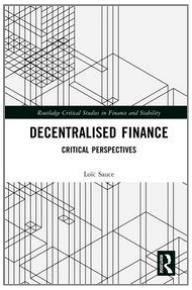
Decentralised Finance

Critical Perspectives



Loïc Sauce

Series: Routledge Critical Studies in Finance and Stability

Since the inception of bitcoin in 2009, cryptoassets and decentralised finance (DeFi) have become a multi-trillion-dollar industry, with a growing number of users, entrepreneurs, investment funds and institutional investors all over the world. This has led to understandably high levels of attention from scholars, the media, and policymakers but much of the writing on decentralised finance is polarised or polemical. This book will be of valuable reading for economists, political scientists and policymakers who are engaging with these key issues around cryptocurrencies and decentralised finance.

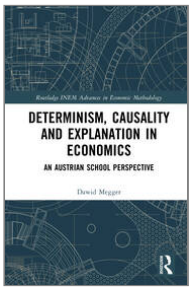
Determinism, Causality and Explanation in Economics

An Austrian School Perspective



Dawid Megger

Series: Routledge INEM Advances in Economic Methodology

This book opens by exploring disputes In the philosophy of science over the fundamental goal of science. While instrumentalists argue that scientists should aim at good predictions regardless of veracity of theories, according to scientific realists, they should look for knowledge that reflects reality. The book shows that the Austrian tradition adheres to scientific realism and can be perceived as a middle ground between historicism and positivism. It discusses the determinism / free will problem in economics and its methodological relevance.

Economic Challenges and Young Adults

Perspectives from Germany, Poland and Czechia

Edited by Magdalena Osińska

Series: Routledge Studies in the European Economy

Addressing a gap in the economic literature, this book uniquely bridges the current understanding of youth with empirical evidence specific to Central and Eastern European Countries, represented by Poland and Czechia. Germany was taken as an example of a Western European Country. The novelty lies in identifying the contemporary trends and determinants shaping the decision-making process of young adults regarding the labour market, savings and investments, job satisfaction, retirement, and sustainable consumption. The target audience includes students and researchers in fields related to contemporary economic challenges—such as economics, psychology, and sociology.

Economics and Literature

A Novel Approach

Edited by François Bourguignon Paris School of Economics, Avinash K Dixit , Luc Leruth , Jean-Philippe Platteau Faculté des sciences économiques (Université de Namur)

Economics and fiction often pursue parallel objectives. Economists analyse human decisions and interactions in markets and other institutions. Fiction writers also provide keen insights into individual minds and motives, examining how their characters respond to conflict and tensions in varied situations. This book explores the insights to be gained from developing this parallel. This book will captivate readers in economics, social sciences and the humanities and open their minds to the viewing of economic ideas and concepts through the prism of great works of literature.

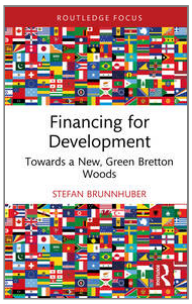
Financing for Development

Towards a New, Green Bretton Woods



Stefan Brunnhuber

Series: Routledge Focus on Economics and Finance

This book provides a robust argument for an upgrade of the financial system to enable a more sustainable approach. The book focuses on the new role of monetary regulators and central bankers in providing conditioned, additional liquidity to finance, hedge and manage our global commons and to mobilize private capital at the same time, meaning that monetary policy will oversteer fiscal and credit policy in a Bretton Woods II process. The author argues that a new green Bretton Woods 2.0 will provide the agenda to transform our economy and our society, and a Green Transition plan is included in the book.

Green National Accounting in Theory and Practice

From GDP to Green GDP

Edited by Peter Birch Sørensen

Series: Routledge Explorations in Environmental Economics

This book explains the theoretical and empirical foundations for constructing a measure of a country's Green GDP and how this measure relates to the conventional GDP. Opening with an overview of the academic literature on green national accounting, the first chapter sets up an analytical model of the interaction between a small open economy and the environment to derive a theoretically-founded measure of the economy's Green Net National Income ("Green GDP"). This book will be of significant interest to scholars in the field of environmental economics and statisticians and practitioners working on green national accounting.

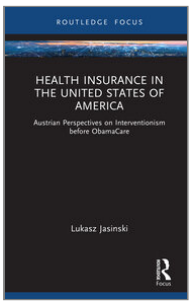
Health Insurance in the United States of America

Austrian Perspectives on Interventionism before ObamaCare



Łukasz Jasiński

Series: Routledge Focus on Economics and Finance

The U.S. health care system is dominated by private and public (governmental) insurance which makes it difficult for many Americans to imagine access to health care without it. The health care system in the United States is sometimes mistakenly referred to as market-based, partly because of the previous lack of compulsory insurance. As this book shows, however, even before ObamaCare it was a system heavily influenced by the government. This book is vital reading for health economists, managers and policymakers, as well as those interested in the Austrian approach to economics.

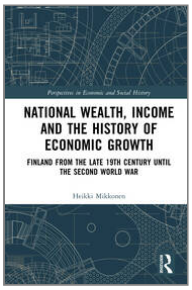
National Wealth, Income and the History of Economic Growth

Finland from the Late 19th Century until the Second World War



Heikki Mikkonen

Series: Perspectives in Economic and Social History

This book provides an alternative perspective to the Anglo-centric historical analysis of growth by turning the focus on Finland and other Nordic countries from the late 19th Century until the Second World War. This book places Finland in the context of emerging nation-states of the early 20th Century Europe and constructs five competing growth conceptions: classical liberal, agrarian conservative, social liberal, social democratic, and communist. This book provides a fresh and a thought-provoking account that will be of interest to students and scholars of economic history, history of ideas, development studies and degrowth, and history of capitalism.

The Social Life of Skills in the Global South

Edited by Trent Brown International University of Japan, Japan, Geert De Neve

Series: ThirdWorlds

This book expands understandings of how skills are defined, acquired, and utilized in global South contexts. Skills' and 'skill development' are increasingly prominent focal points for governments in the global South and international development bodies. Yet, policymakers and practitioners promoting skill development often overlook the everyday realities of how skills are learned and acquired, and how they are deployed and valued by individuals and communities. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Third World Quarterly.

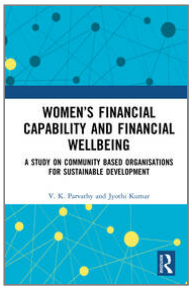
Women's Financial Capability and Financial Wellbeing

A Study on Community Based Organisations for Sustainable Development



V K Parvathy , Jyothi Kumar CHRIST university, Bangalore

This book investigates the impact of financial capability and decision-making ability on the financial wellbeing of women associated with Community Based Organisations (CBOs). In light of the evolving socio-economic landscape in South Asia and the growing gender disparity in poverty, there is an urgent need to address these issues at the grassroots level to achieve sustainable development. Community Based Organisations play a crucial role by providing a platform for women to discuss shared challenges, develop potential solutions, and create livelihood opportunities.

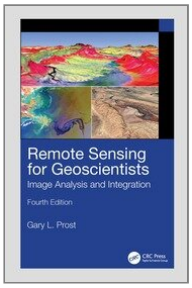
Remote Sensing for Geoscientists

Image Analysis and Integration



Gary L. Prost

The fourth edition of the bestselling Remote Sensing for Geoscientists: Image Analysis and Integration expands the scope of remote sensing to cover image systems that did not exist 10 years ago when the third edition was published. It is thoroughly updated and provides examples of new capabilities using Google Earth© and various apps. It describes the latest remote sensing systems and sensors, provides examples of imagery, and explains how to analyze and integrate remote sensing images in projects that require superior results. Lavishly illustrated, it serves as a how-to guide for those using remote sensing in Earth Sciences for mapping and monitoring.

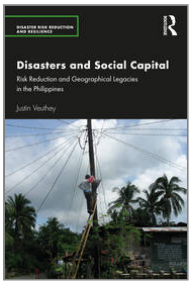
Disasters and Social Capital

Risk Reduction and Geographical Legacies in the Philippines



Justin Veuthey

Series: Disaster Risk Reduction and Resilience

This book analyzes social capital and preparations for natural hazards in the Philippines. In an analysis at several geographical scales, Veuthey shows how inequality, via social capital, makes societies more at risk of having natural hazards turn into disasters. The book argues that a cautious use of the concept of social capital, which is cognizant of the historical and geographical complexities of the context it is applied to, has the potential to improve the way people collectively prevent hazards from turning into disasters. It is essential reading for students, scholars, disaster risk management practitioners, and policy makers.

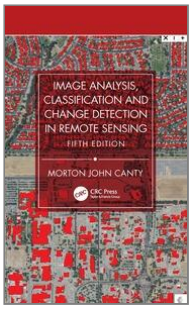
Image Analysis, Classification and Change Detection in Remote Sensing

With Algorithms for Python



Morton John Canty Juelich Research Center, Germany

The fifth edition of this core textbook in advanced remote sensing continues to maintain its emphasis on statistically motivated, data-driven techniques for remote sensing image analysis. The theoretical substance remains essentially the same, with new material on convolutional neural networks, transfer learning, image segmentation, random forests, and an extended implementation of sequential change detection with radar satellites. As the tools which apply the algorithms to real remote sensing data have evolved substantially with time, this edition replaces the now obsolete Python 2 with Python 3 and takes advantage of the high-level packages that are based on it.

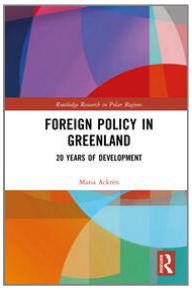
Foreign Policy in Greenland

20 Years of Development



Maria Ackrén

Series: Routledge Research in Polar Regions

The book, Foreign Policy in Greenland, will shed light on what kind of competences Greenland has in IR and how Greenland undertakes foreign policy, while still being a self-governing territory underneath Danish jurisdiction. This book will undertake a systematic analysis of the foreign policy papers from 2003 and onwards. What kind of activities are Greenland undertaken in international affairs? Can Greenland be an influential player in International Relations? This book will be of interest for those with an interest in international affairs and law as well as those with an interest in international politics and foreign policy.

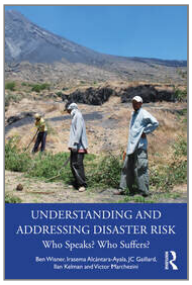
Understanding and Addressing Disaster Risk

Who Speaks? Who Suffers?



Ben Wisner , Irasema Alcántara-Ayala , JC Gaillard University of Auckland, NZ., Ilan Kelman University College London, UK, and University of Adger, Norway, Victor Marchezini

In Understanding and Addressing Disaster Risk, the authors explain how people modify the environment and exert power over each other in ways that make nature potentially harmful and put people in harm's way. This book is useful for and useable by decision makers, policy makers, researchers and students to shatter the vicious cycle of repeating known mistakes which compound detrimental outcomes.

Queerburbia

LGBTQ2S Suburban Place-Making

Alison L. Bain , Julie A. Podmore

Series: Routledge Studies in Urbanism and the City

To subvert the metronormativity of queer urban studies and re-place queer suburbanism, Queerburbia examines LGBTQ2S place-making/unmaking/remaking on the peripheries of Canada's three largest city-regions. Queerburbia offers a comparative case study of how large Canadian city-regions become queerer through LGBTQ2S suburban place-making/unmaking/remaking. Practically, it offers civic leaders, urban planners, and policymakers insights into the complex dynamics of municipal LGBTQ2S misrecognition and critical allyship strategies. It targets upper-level undergraduates, graduate students, researchers and practitioners of municipal social inclusion.

Remote Sensing of Land Cover and Land Use Changes in South and Southeast Asia, Two Volume Set

Edited by Krishna Prasad Vadrevu Univ. Maryland College Park, Christopher Justice Univ. of Maryland, Garik Gutman NASA Headquarters

Despite the vast amount of research on Land Cover and Land Use Change (LCLUC) worldwide, data and insights from South and Southeast Asia remain limited. This comprehensive two-volume handbook bridges that gap by synthesizing groundbreaking research from NASA's LCLUC program-funded scientists in collaboration with leading regional scientists across South and Southeast Asia. Designed to serve researchers, professionals, and students in land use, environmental science, geography, and remote sensing, this 2-volume set provides an interdisciplinary perspective on the ecological, climatic, and environmental implications of LCLUC.

Remote Sensing of Land Cover and Land Use Changes in South and Southeast Asia, Volume 1

Mapping and Monitoring

Edited by Krishna Prasad Vadrevu Univ. Maryland College Park, Christopher Justice Univ. of Maryland, Garik Gutman NASA Headquarters

South and Southeast Asian countries are experiencing rapid Land Cover and Land Use Changes (LCLUC) due to urbanization, agricultural expansion, deforestation, and infrastructure development. These changes have far-reaching consequences for biodiversity, water resources, food security, and climate regulation, underscoring the urgent need for effective monitoring and management strategies. Remote sensing data is essential for mapping and monitoring these changes. Volume 1 provides case studies on urban expansion, deforestation, and agricultural intensification and features contributions from the NASA Research Initiative and experts from different countries.

Remote Sensing of Land Cover and Land Use Changes in South and Southeast Asia, Volume 2

Impacts on the Environment

Edited by Krishna Prasad Vadrevu Univ. Maryland College Park, Christopher Justice Univ. of Maryland, Garik Gutman NASA Headquarters

South and Southeast Asian countries are experiencing rapid land cover and land-use changes (LCLUC) driven by urbanization, agricultural expansion, deforestation, and infrastructure development. Remote sensing data plays a crucial role in providing diverse information essential for assessing land-use patterns, quantifying changes, and evaluating both environmental and societal impacts. Volume 2 of this set explores the complex and dynamic interactions between land use and the environment in the region. With contributions from NASA and local experts, the book highlights the transformative power of remote sensing and ML while calling all stakeholders to action.

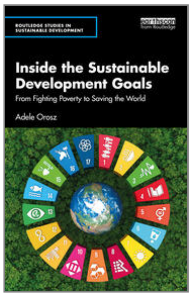
Inside the Sustainable Development Goals

From Fighting Poverty to Saving the World



Adele Orosz

Series: Routledge Studies in Sustainable Development

This book is an indispensable and comprehensive guide to the SDGs. It is outlining where they came from, the main lessons learned so far and what to conclude for the years ahead. As the deadline of 2030 is close, and discussions about what should come after the SDGs are imminent, this book is among the first to draw conclusions for the post-2030 era, what to expect and what to demand from a potential successor agenda. This book addresses policy-makers, practitioners, researchers, and students alike, anyone interested in poverty, environment and sustainability.

2ND EDITION

Understanding Contemporary Brazil

Jeff Garmany , Anthony Pereira King's College London

Brazil has famously been called a country of contradictions. A place where narratives of "racial democracy" exist in the face of stark inequalities, where politics can swing dramatically between the right and left, and where the natural environment is celebrated as a point of national pride, but at the same time is exploited at alarming rates. To people on the outside looking in, these contradictions seem hard to explain. Authoritative and engaging, Understanding Contemporary Brazil is ideal for university students and researchers, yet also accessible to general readers looking to learn more about one of the world's largest and most significant countries.

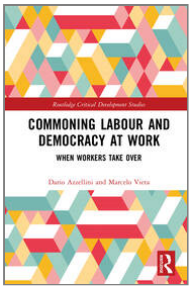
Commoning Labour and Democracy at Work

When Workers Take Over



Dario Azzellini , Marcelo Vieta

Series: Routledge Critical Development Studies

This book investigates the return of workers' self-management in recent decades as responses to recurring neoliberal crises. In particular, the book homes in on worker-recuperated enterprises (WREs), a promising form of workers' self-organization whereby workers restart troubled, bankrupt, or shuttered companies as cooperatives or other forms of democratic workplace. Bringing a class-analysis back into current discourses and debates concerning democracy at work and alternatives to global capital, this book will be of interest to researchers across the fields of development studies, labour studies, political economy, sociology of development, sociology of work, and political science.

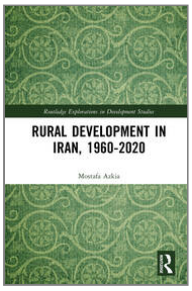
Rural Development in Iran, 1960-2020



Mostafa Azkia

Series: Routledge Explorations in Development Studies

The book is an authoritative account of rural development in Iran, spanning sixty years and two distinct political regimes. Professor Mostafa Azkia has spent many decades demonstrating the importance of participatory rural development, not only in addressing rural problems, but also in reducing urban concerns, such as unemployment and overpopulation. This book brings together a detailed analysis of the theories, history, and strategies of rural and state development in Iran both before and after the Islamic revolution. From Iran's foremost rural sociologist this will interest researchers and professionals working on rural development and sociology in the Middle East.

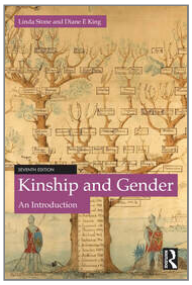
Kinship and Gender

An Introduction



Linda Stone Professor Emeritus of Anthropology at Washington State University, USA., Diane E. King

This fully revised seventh edition of Kinship and Gender: An Introduction explores kinship in today's globalized, increasingly mobile world, and how family structures continue to influence the varied roles that men and women play in different cultures. Written to engage students, each chapter provides key terms and useful generalizations gleaned through research on the interplay of kinship and gender in both traditional societies and contemporary communities. It provides a broad, yet nuanced introduction to the field, and is essential reading for students taking their first steps into anthropology, gender studies, and sociology.

Beyond Perception

Correspondences with Tim Ingold's Work

Edited by Caroline Gatt , Jan Peter Laurens Loovers
University of Aberdeen, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Anthropology

This book showcases the way a range of scholars have engaged with Tim Ingold's opus since the publication of his ground-breaking The Perception of the Environment in 2000. By bringing together chapters from a variety of scholars, all critically furthering Ingold's proposals, the book advances a paradigm change occurring in various academic disciplines from 'fixist' to 'emergence' onto/epistemologies.

Cambodian American Youth, Identity, and Schooling

Ethnographic Research

Vichet Chhuon University of Minnesota

This book examines how Cambodian American high school youth reconcile stereotypes, identities, and school opportunities and the ways these factors impact academic achievement and well-being, through ethnographic research. The backdrop for Cambodian American life is intimately embedded within how Asians and Asian Americans are imagined within U.S. society. It argues that how Cambodian American students negotiate certain identities are in relation to perceived advantages associated with ethnic and panethnic labels across varying social contexts. It highlights how the embrace of the model minority stereotype can come at a psychological cost for Asian Americans.

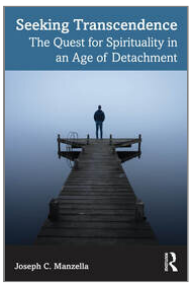
The Quest for Spirituality in an Age of Detachment



Joseph C. Manzella Southern Connecticut State University, USA

Seeking Transcendence examines the various paths taken by those who have detached themselves from their traditional, institutional religious roots but are seeking non-traditional paths to spiritual experiences. Called the "nones" or non-affiliated in poplar mass media these include a significant number of Western folks who maintain a belief in God or at least consider themselves "spiritual but not religious." Each chapter of the book explores these trends with a specific theme, as well as a case study based upon the author's ethnographic observation of alternative spiritual communities and practices in North America and Western Europe.

Exploring Digital Ethnography

From Principles to Practice

Edited by Natalie Underberg-Goode University of Central Florida, USA, Marty Otañez

Exploring Digital Ethnography: From Principles to Practice places digital ethnography within the context of the production of multimedia, multisensory "research-creation" pieces using a variety of methods, tools, and techniques. It reveals new insights into how digital tools can facilitate the deliberation process, and be used to materialize knowledge in new ways that engage with audiences in more dynamic formats. The book provides readers with new ways of producing knowledge, solving problems, engaging student learning, and communicating with the public. It will be a valuable text for researchers, educators, and students in digital ethnography and anthropology.

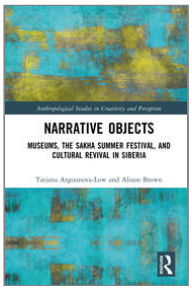
Narrative Objects

Museums, the Sakha Summer Festival, and Cultural Revival in Siberia



Tatiana Argounova-Low , Alison K. Brown

Series: Anthropological Studies in Creativity and Perception

Narrative Objects is concerned with the conversations that arise when artists, scholars and museum practitioners come together with historic objects. Its focus is a unique mammoth ivory model of yhyakh – the annual celebration of the Sakha people in the Russian Far East – which has been in the collection of the British Museum since 1867. Narrative Objects is particularly relevant to scholars of anthropology and museum studies as well those with an interest in the subarctic and post-Soviet states.

Masculinity at the Movies

Thomas Keith

Masculinity at the Movies takes a deep dive into masculinity in film and how Hollywood movies continue to produce and promote masculine stereotypes that place boys and men in constraining patterns of behaviour. Alongside Hollywood studio productions, it delves into Black, Native American, and Latino representation as well as LGBTQ masculinity. It proposes what healthy masculinity at the movies looks like and where Hollywood should set its sights to create more progressive models of masculinity for the 21st century. It will provide students of Gender Studies, Media Studies, and Cultural Studies, with new insights into stereotypes of men in contemporary film.

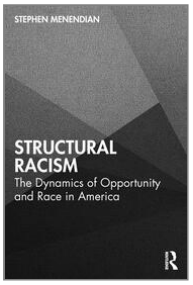
Structural Racism

The Dynamics of Opportunity and Race in America



Stephen Menendian

This book explains how racial inequality in the United States is maintained and perpetuated from a structural perspective and offers comprehensive systemic solutions. It develops the concept of 'structural racism', presenting a precise definition that is more easily comprehensible, and illustrates how it operates methodically and rigorously. Many other books are long on problems and short on solutions, whereas this book develops the key principles that must ground a policy reform agenda, and then presents a set of interventions organized around ten themes that will reduce racial disparities while expanding opportunity for all. A must read for advocates, students and researchers alike.

Fuzzy Logic in Smart Sustainable Cities

Edited by Bhupinder Singh , Christian Kaunert , Komal Vig

Series: Jenny Stanford Series on Fuzzy Theory Frontiers, Vol. 1

This book focuses on fuzzy logic, a paradigm-shifting approach that challenges the binary simplicity of traditional logic systems. The concept of fuzzy logics is a powerful tool capable of handling imprecise information and accommodating the vagaries of real-world scenarios. This marks the beginning of a journey that explores how fuzzy logics can bridge gaps and fills voids in our current strategies for achieving sustainable development goals relating to sustainable cities.

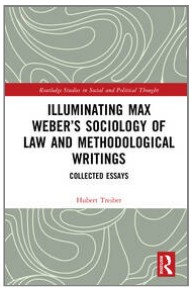
Illuminating Max Weber's Sociology of Law and Methodological Writings

Collected Essays



Hubert Treiber

Series: Routledge Studies in Social and Political Thought

This volume of collected essays by Hubert Treiber, one of Weber's leading interpreters and an authoritative expert on Weber's sociology of law, brings a number of translated works to English-speaking readers, offering the opportunity to gain a fuller and a more accurate understanding of Max Weber's legal thinking. Throughout the collection, the chapters are united by the thread of Treiber's consistent attempts to provide historical contexts and to clarify Weber's legal concepts and definitions. Migration, Participation and the Making of Homes

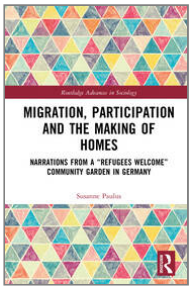
Narrations from a "Refugees Welcome" Community Garden in Germany



Susanne Paulus Pädagogische Hochschule Heidelberg, Germany

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

This book is an ethnographic inquiry into the complex socio-ecological relationalities in an inclusive, intercultural community garden in Germany, originally created as a "refugees welcome" project in 2015. In three ethnographic narrations, the book offers power-critical reflections on social encounters, participation, (in)equalities and the dynamics between 'the host' and 'the newcomer' in home-making. As such, the book will be of interest for researchers and university students of all levels in the field of sociology, education, social work, anthropology, political science or related fields.

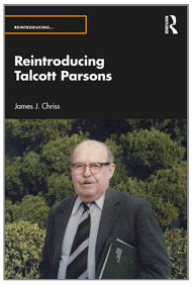
Reintroducing Talcott Parsons



James J. Chriss Cleveland State University, USA

Series: Reintroducing...

This book examines the contributions made by Talcott Parsons to sociology over the course of a career spanning half a century. Summarizing the development of Parsons' thought, it shows how his work on the conceptualization of the social world via the unifying structure of four functions—adaptation, goal-attainment, integration, and latent pattern maintenance (or AGIL)—can further the goal of explanation and understanding social phenomena. Reintroducing Talcott Parsons will appeal to scholars and students of sociology with interests in social theory and the history of social thought.

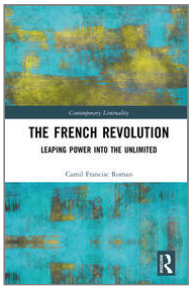
The French Revolution

Leaping Power into the Unlimited



Camil Roman John Cabot University, Rome, Italy

Series: Contemporary Liminality

This book examines the French revolution from an anthropological perspective, eschewing an analysis in terms of 'good' and 'bad' actors, or progressive and non-progressive forces, and adopting instead the frame of liminality. In using the concept of liminality, the author focuses on human experience and so reintroduces the notion of the sacred into the analysis, thus explaining the iconic political event of political modernity in terms of a transformation of the sacred and restoring metaphysics to the social sciences.

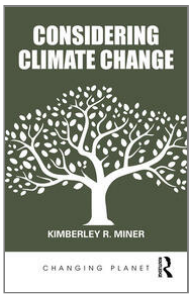
Considering Climate Change



Kimberley R. Miner

Series: Changing Planet

In Considering Climate Change, Kimberley R. Miner focuses on what will happen in the next 20, 40 and 60 years around the planet and looks at how we can take an active role in planning for a future we had hoped to avoid. Considering Climate Change can either be read cover to cover or with a focus on the specific chapters that will help the reader understand the challenges they are currently facing. Either way, the goal is to walk away with a better understanding of how to thrive in this changing world and not just have hope for the future—but to have a plan.

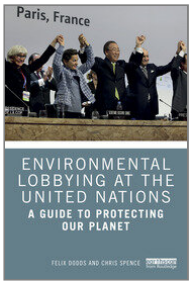
Environmental Lobbying at the United Nations

A Guide to Protecting Our Planet



Felix Dodds University of North Carolina & Tellus Institute, USA, Chris Spence

This book provides a step-by-step, insiders' guide on how to lobby and engage successfully at the United Nations (UN). It reveals how the UN, which plays such a key role on issues from climate change to pollution of our air, land and sea, really works. Drawing on interviews with other experts, as well as training materials that have been produced by the authors, this book demystifies what to many outsiders can seem like an opaque and confusing world. This book is an essential resource for individuals and organisations entering the world of the UN for the first time, as well as those looking to gain a deeper understanding of how the world of international diplomacy really works.

The Ethics of Participation in Environmental Field Research

Inclusion, Collaboration and Transformation

Edited by Lydia Gibson , Julia Sauma

Series: Research and Teaching in Environmental Studies

This book provokes important new discussions about ethical participation in environmental field research by bringing to the fore the fluid nature of both ethics and participation. Local participation is increasingly seen as a central and ethical part of environmental research; as such, many environmental efforts are becoming increasingly participatory. This book will be of great interest to all students and researchers across natural and social sciences whose fieldwork includes engagement with local communities and stakeholders, as well as conservation policymakers and practitioners who consult and work with local communities.

Contested Waste

Environmental conflicts and waste picker resistance in the Global South

Edited by Federico Demaria , Daniele Vico , Lucía Fernández Gabard

Series: Routledge Studies in Political Ecology

Contested Waste' examines socio-environmental conflicts involving waste pickers in the Global South, uncovering the systemic injustices that underpin contemporary waste policies. Driven by the privatisation of waste management, these conflicts expose the "recycling paradox": while waste pickers make critical, uncompensated contributions to sustainability, they are further excluded by new policies. Essential for scholars, policymakers, and activists in environmental justice, development, and urban studies, this book reveals the structural drivers of waste conflicts and the transformative power of grassroots resistance in shaping sustainable and inclusive urban futures.

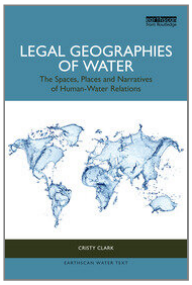
Legal Geographies of Water

The Spaces, Places and Narratives of Human-Water Relations



Cristy Clark

Series: Earthscan Water Text

This book deepens our understanding of humanity's diverse relationships with water and the law, providing a critical assessment of this relationship, as well as charting the course towards a more sustainable and just water future. By using legal geography, it pays particular attention to the place-based inter-relationships between water, people, and law, and to the ways that law both creates and is created by the relationship between people and place. It is essential reading for students and scholars interested in water law, security, and justice from across a wide range of disciplines, including environmental studies, law, geography, human rights, and political ecology.

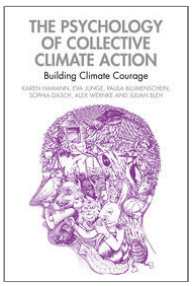
The Psychology of Collective Climate Action

Building Climate Courage



Karen Hamann , Eva Junge , Paula Blumenschein , Sophia Dasch , Alex Wernke , Julian Bleh

How do we find the courage to act together against the climate crisis? This book weaves together real-life findings and examples from the social-ecological movement with psychological research to show how motivation for collective climate action can be built.The book addresses two key questions: how can individuals be motivated to participate in collective climate action, and how can climate groups become resilient and effective? Specifically, it explores how individuals can foster their identification with climate action groups, as well as strengthening their feeling to be effective - both as a group and as part of a group.

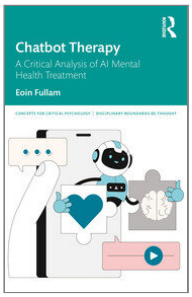
Chatbot Therapy

A Critical Analysis of AI Mental Health Treatment



Eoin Fullam University of Birkbeck

Series: Concepts for Critical Psychology

Drawing on historical and emerging scholarship on critical theory, science & technology studies and critical psychology, this project investigates the social life of mental health therapy applications. The book unearths the assumptions about subjectivity, consciousness and mental health that underpin these applications, looking predominantly at Wysa and Woebot, but also at other chatbot and non-chatbot mental health applications. It explores the historical emergence of this technology, technical and design aspects of chatbot therapy apps, the therapeutic methods employed, and the economic context within which therapy chatbots have developed.

Comparison Between Continuous-Time and Discrete-Time

Event History Analysis with Stata

Gwendolin J. Blossfeld

Comparison Between Continuous-Time and Discrete-Time: Event History Analysis With Stata elucidates the statistical concepts and empirical applications of both continuous-time and discrete-time event history models. Empirical scientists have increasingly collected data on the timing of events, with the understanding that events can occur at any point in time and may be recorded using different observation schemes. However, time-continuous processes are not always observed with fine-grained temporal resolution; in some cases, they are captured with larger observation intervals (monthly, yearly, biennially and quadrennially).

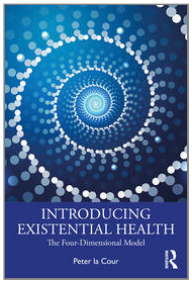
Introducing Existential Health

The Four-Dimensional Model



Peter la Cour

This book unfolds this evolving concept and places it in the context of common understandings of health. It presents existential health as a vital dimension in understanding human well-being, complementing the traditional biopsychosocial model. It critiques reductionist and mechanistic views of health and showcases a new four-dimensional model in healthcare practice and design that integrates biological, psychological, social, and existential dimensions. Presented as a valid alternative to the biopsychosocial model, it provides modern system thinking and a holistic understanding centred around meaning.

Parental Gatekeeping

Edited by Sarah J. Schoppe-Sullivan Department of Psychology The Ohio State University, F. Kübra Aytaç-DiCarlo Department of Psychology The Ohio State University

Series: Studies in Parenting Series

Chapter authors review theories and conceptual models of gatekeeping, examine predictors of gatekeeping, and evaluate its consequences for parent-child relationships. Offering a holistic perspective, the book not only explores mothers' gatekeeping of fathers, but also considers the potential roles of others, including fathers and grandparents, as gatekeepers. Chapter authors also explore parental gatekeeping processes in at risk families, including separated and divorced families and those with adolescent and nonresident fathers. This book summarizes the key findings and critical gaps in the gatekeeping literature and suggests important directions for future research.

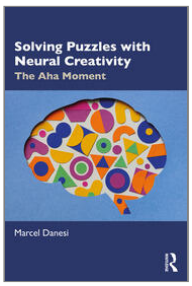
Solving Puzzles with Neural Creativity

The Aha Moment



Marcel Danesi

This book takes an in-depth look at the tradition of solving puzzles and considers the psychological cause and effect of the 'Aha moment': that familiar flash of sudden insight. Everyone loves a good puzzle, but why is this so? In Solving Puzzles with Neural Creativity, Marcel Danesi considers the importance of puzzles to the study of mind and culture and explores how they stimulate creative regions of the brain. Examining all kinds of puzzles including verbal, nonverbal and mathematical, this book will be of great interest to students and scholars of psychology, cognitive science, neuroscience and anthropology.

The Power of Collective Resilience Against Political Violence and Repression

Edited by Yasemin Gulsum Acar , Blerina Këllezi , Sandra Penić

This book outlines the importance of collective resilience for groups who have faced challenging or threatening circumstances, such as war and political violence. Drawing on novel research from a range of diverse contexts, the book explores a nuanced picture of how political violence can lead to increased social cooperation and action within communities, as well as the well documented negative dynamics. It brings together researchers studying the collective resilience of civilians in the context of political violence and repression in three fields: psychological well-being, resistance and collective action, and reconciliation and peacebuilding.

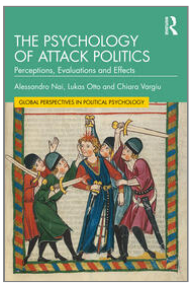
The Psychology of Attack Politics

Perceptions, Evaluations and Effects



Alessandro Nai , Lukas P. Otto , Chiara Vargiu

Series: Global Perspectives in Political Psychology

The Psychology of Attack Politics explores negativity in election campaigns, and the way in which the, often deliberate, use of negative messaging impacts voters, and has wide reaching societal consequences. With most elections being fraught with tension, disrespectful treatment of political opponents, and political incivility, this timely book aims to disentangle the dynamics of negativity perceptions (that is, whether citizens perceive a given message to be negative), evaluations (that is, whether citizens like or dislike the negative message), and effects (that is, whether exposure to negative messages alters attitudes and behaviours).

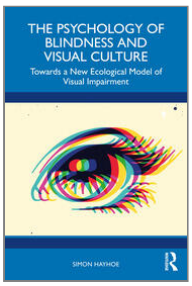
The Psychology of Blindness and Visual Culture

Towards a New Ecological Model of Visual Impairment



Simon Hayhoe

The Psychology of Blindness and Visual Culture: Towards a new ecological model of visual impairment advances the debate regarding the inclusion and wellbeing of people with visual impairment (PVI) through looking at the psychological nature of visual culture and its effects on the lived experience. It explores whether is possible to increase access to visual culture for PVI through language, alternative sensory data or contemporary communication media, and in so doing, questions whether or not communication and culture are intrinsically visual.

Using Co-Production for Physical Activity for Health Research

Edited by Sarah Morton

This is the first research methods book on the application of using a co-production approach for physical activity for health research. When used for research, co-production has potential to be hugely impactful. The underpinning ethos of co-production is to involve multiple and varied stakeholders throughout the process. It offers evidence-based guidance, case studies, and reflections on using co-production specifically for physical activity and health research. By involving users at every stage, from conception to finalization of outputs, it demonstrates the power of co-production as a tool for positive change across society, providing insights into understanding user needs etc.

What is Wisdom and Can it be Taught?

Philosophical, Psychological, and Pedagogical Perspectives

Edited by Eeva K. Kallio University of Jyväskylä, Finland, Päivi Tynjälä University of Jyväskylä, Finland

Series: Advances in Theoretical and Philosophical Psychology

What is Wisdom and Can it be Taught? uses careful theoretical analysis and a well-argued ontological conception of the human being to present a new 'Holistic Wisdom Model', summarizing existing research and presenting fresh insights. Human wisdom is a complex phenomenon. Psychological research in this area has led to a wide range of fragmentary claims and models, and therefore there is a need for theoretical clarification of the field: What is wisdom? How should we study it in the first place? Is it a purely psychological phenomenon, or do we also need philosophy?

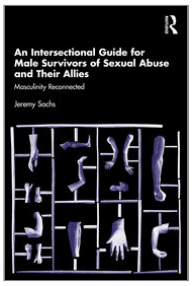
An Intersectional Guide for Male Survivors of Sexual Abuse and Their Allies

Masculinity Reconnected



Jeremy Sachs

Few experiences carry more shame, stigma, and misunderstanding than the life-altering trauma of sexual abuse. Men who experience sexual abuse and rape, often find themselves marginalised and isolated, yet there are few resources available for them or those who support them. Aimed at male survivors and those who support them—counsellors, psychotherapists, social workers, family members, and loved ones—this book offers guidance and hope for navigating a path to healing.

Field Perspectives in Clinical Practice

A Dialogue between Relational Psychoanalysis, Post-Bionian Psychoanalysis, and Gestalt Therapy

Edited by Gianni Francesetti , Michela Gecele , Paolo Migone

Series: Psychoanalysis in a New Key

This book is the outcome of a fruitful dialogue between relational psychoanalysis, neo-Bionian psychoanalysis, and Gestalt therapy on a contemporary growing edge of clinical practice: field theory. Clinical issues are complex phenomena—they cannot be separated from social and cultural changes. Suffering, clients, and therapists change over time, and with them so do the needs and theoretical approaches of clinical professionals, so as to be able to update and adjust care practices. With multiple professional perspectives and essential clinical material, this is key reading for psychoanalysts and psychotherapists.

Selected Writings of Maureen O'Hara on the Art, Science, and Hope of Humanism

Vitalising Persons for Turbulent Times

Edited by Keith Tudor Auckland University of Technology, New Zealand., Maureen O'Hara

This book presents the work of the eminent British-American psychologist, Maureen O'Hara. It explores the trajectory of humanistic psychology over the last few decades, providing a link between its original proponents, notably Carl Rogers, and its contemporary manifestations. The text reproduces 18 of O'Hara's original papers arranged in six parts, each of which reflect a significant area in which she has contributed her rigorous analysis and creative thinking. Bringing together a collection of O'Hara's works to a broader audience, this book will be of interest to humanistic psychologists and psychotherapists, as well as those studying and/or training in this field.

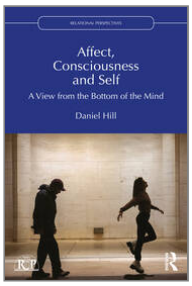
Affect, Consciousness and Self

A View from the Bottom of the Mind



Daniel Hill

Series: Relational Perspectives

This book argues that mental life is organized by and around affect. It proposes a clinical model for understanding how affect influences states of consciousness and self. It illustrates how, from moment to moment, affect determines the world we know, how we are disposed to being in it, and our capacity to function in it. Drawing on psychoanalysis, attachment theory, interpersonal and affective neurobiology, and traumatology, this book offers a fresh perspective on the importance of affect for psychoanalysts and psychodynamic psychotherapists.

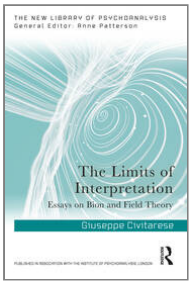
The Limits of Interpretation

Essays on Bion and Field Theory



Giuseppe Civitarese

Series: New Library of Psychoanalysis

The Limits of Interpretation opens a window onto unexplored dimensions of Wilfred Bion's thought, presenting essays that illuminate both familiar and lesser-known facets of his work. It guides readers through complex notions such as visible-invisible hallucinations, bizarre objects, and a radical reframing of the Oedipus complex—shifted from incest and parricide to arrogance and the desire for knowledge. Offering a close reading and clear interpretation of Bion's sometimes dense writing, this is essential reading for any psychoanalysts or psychotherapist wanting to understand Bion's work better.

War as Reset

Insights from Contemporary Analytical Psychology on the Age of Hypocrisy

Edited by Stefano Carpani , Ludmilla Ostermann

In an age continuously shaped and shocked by wars and societal crises, this book serves as an antidote to superficial media frenzy. Exploring the interplay between the insights from analytical psychology and global dynamics, it unravels the meanings behind our shared fears and invites readers to confront challenging truths shaping our present and future. This book proposes that war often serves as a reset mechanism, and that our era can be termed the one of hypocrisy. It will be of interest to academics, scholars and students within the fields of analytical psychology, psychosocial studies, psychoanalysis and sociology.

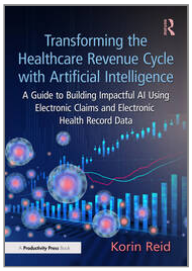
Transforming the Healthcare Revenue Cycle with Artificial Intelligence

A Guide to Building Impactful AI Using Electronic Claims and Electronic Heath Record Data



Korin Reid

Revenue cycle management (RCM) refers to an institution's financial management process that helps track, identify, collect, and manage incoming payments. This helps businesses foster financial transparency within the company and charge patients the correct amount for the services and healthcare they receive. But because of the unique healthcare payment system in the United States, relatively few of these dollars change hands directly between providers and their patients. Instead, there is a complex reimbursement system, mostly driven by third-party payment transactions between government programs and insurance companies on the one hand, and healthcare providers on the other.

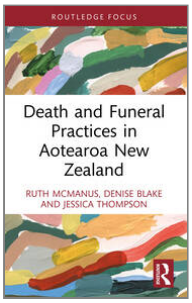
Death and Funeral Practices in Aotearoa New Zealand



Ruth McManus , Denise Blake , Jessica Thompson

Series: Routledge International Focus on Death and Funeral Practices

This book provides a shortform definitive reference text on the landscape and features of Aotearoa New Zealand that underpin its familiar, though country specific, ways of caring for the dead, shaped by its diverse cultures and colonial history. It explores the complex legal framework separating Māori and non-Māori practices, the mixed model of funeral provision, costs, state support, and trends like sustainability. It also examines burial, cremation, and how death is memorialised, including in cemeteries and public commemorations. This book is for local authority planners, researchers, and funeral professionals, working in multi-cultural contexts.

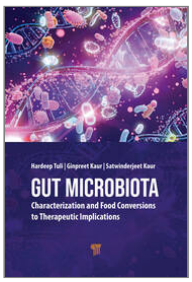
Gut Microbiota

Characterization and Food Conversions to Therapeutic Implications



Hardeep Singh Tuli , Ginpreet Kaur , Satwinderjeet Kaur

This book is a comprehensive guide to understanding the role of gut microbiota in human health. It presents the latest research on gut microbiota, from the characterization of different microbial species to their functions in food conversion and cancer prevention. It sheds light on the diverse composition of gut microbiota, identified through DNA sequencing technology, and how it is influenced by various factors such as diet, genetics, and lifestyle. It is a must-read for anyone interested in understanding the complex and dynamic relationship between gut microbiota and human health.

Healthcare Informatics Innovation Post COVID-19 Pandemic

Edited by Philip Eappen , Narasimha Rao Vajjhala
University of New York Tirana, Albania

The book examines the unique challenges and opportunities that emerged because of the pandemic. It provides a comprehensive roadmap for healthcare institutions seeking to leverage digital solutions for improved patient care, public health, and crisis response. It offers a well-balanced blend of theoretical insights and practical applications, making it an invaluable resource for academics, practitioners, and decision-makers. By presenting evidence-based best practices and examining the lessons learned from the pandemic, the book empowers readers to make informed decisions in a rapidly changing healthcare landscape.

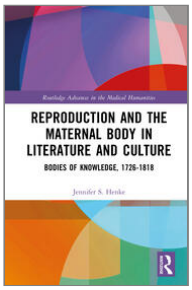
Reproduction and the Maternal Body in Literature and Culture

Bodies of Knowledge, 1726-1818



Jennifer S. Henke

Series: Routledge Advances in the Medical Humanities

This book examines a selection of texts to illuminate how midwifery, obstetrics and women's bodies were viewed during the long eighteenth century, and how these material-discursive entanglements between science, medicine, literature and culture have shaped society's views of pregnancy, childbirth and reproduction. Reproduction and the Maternal Body in Literature and Culture is an innovative and interdisciplinary contribution to the medical humanities and feminist philosophy of science, and will interest scholars from a range of backgrounds, including literature and cultural studies, midwifery, medicine and history.

Sign Language in Mainstream Education for the Deaf and Hard-of-hearing Students in Asia

Edited by Gladys Tang

This book describes two ways of incorporating sign language in mainstream education, reflecting direct and indirect communication between and among the participants, teachers and students alike. The focus is on how deaf and hard-of-hearing (DHH) students participate in and react to this educational context with signing support. Contributions report on a questionnaire survey with post-hoc interviews examining the reactions of students, parents, a resource teacher and an interpreter towards providing this service in the education system. This book was originally published as a special issue of Deafness & Education International.

The COVID-19 Pandemic and Older Adults

Early Responses and Continuing Impacts

Edited by Edward Alan Miller University of Massachusetts Boston, USA

The rapid onset of the COVID-19 pandemic presented a multi-faceted challenge to older adults, carers, and care institutions globally. Despite a wide range of policies aimed at protecting older adults from COVID-19, they continue to bear the burden of risk for these most severe outcomes. Additionally, some early efforts to protect them, often via extreme isolation measures, yielded unanticipated health and psychosocial impacts. Governments, agencies, and aging services organizations will benefit from fully incorporating the lessons into future emergency response efforts, considering their consequences across different subpopulations, organization and policy contexts.

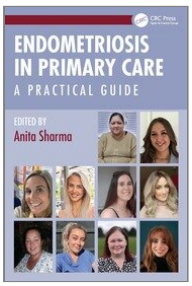
Endometriosis in Primary Care

A Practical Guide



Anita Sharma

The burden of endometriosis is enormous, with one in ten women suffering from this painful and debilitating condition. It is estimated to affect 1.5 million women in the UK and 190 million women globally. Despite its prevalence, it is currently taking an average of seven and a half years for women to receive a formal diagnosis, and 30-40 % experiencing infertility. An early, accurate diagnosis in a primary care setting can have a crucial impact on the care a patient with endometriosis receives. This timely, practical book brings together clear and concise information for GPs and primary healthcare teams on how this can be achieved quickly and effectively.

Protein Intake in Health and Disease

Edited by Victor R. Preedy King's College, London, UK

Proteins are fundamental to human health, serving as building blocks for cellular structures, providing essential energy, and supporting tissue function. In Protein Intake in Health and Disease, the critical biomedical and nutritional roles of protein in the diet are explored in depth. Topics include protein quality, the impact of both low and high-protein diets, and the metabolic disorders and diseases linked to protein malnutrition. The book delves into protein's influence across the lifespan, from maternal health and early development to the nutritional needs of children, adolescents, and the aging population.

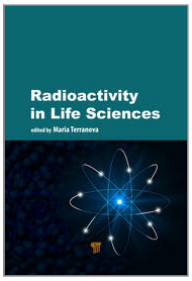
Radioactivity in Life Sciences



Maria Letizia Terranova

This book describes the role of radioactivity in the living world and highlights the many aspects of the impact of ionizing radiation on biological systems. It addresses several topical issues, such as the countermeasures adopted to mitigate radiation-induced health risks during deep space missions, the concept of radiation hormesis, and recent biophysical models proposed to explain the radiation-adaptive responses. It critically approaches these intensely debated subjects and provides an up-to-date look at the ongoing studies on the use of radiations in nuclear clinical practice.

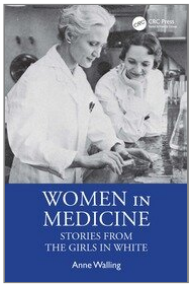
Women in Medicine

Stories from the Girls in White



Anne Walling

In the history of women in medicine the pioneers are rightly remembered and celebrated in books, memorials, awards, names of buildings and organizations.. In contrast, the generation who began the transition from minority to the current numerical equity are seldom memorialized; yet without the efforts of these few women in what was an unambiguously a male profession, the achievements of the pioneers could easily have withered. Women in Medicine will be of interest to all health professionals or those considering entering health professions, women, and their advisors, to medical educators, and to medical historians seeking to understand the progress of women in medicine.

The Hip Joint

Renew of the Direct Anterior Approach (DAA)

Edited by K. Mohan Iyer

Dr Iyer developed this new approach to confer greater stability to the hip joint posteriorly and minimize the incidence of dislocation. He has used the approach in all his surgeries for over 40 years now, and it has also been highly published. This book is a useful addition to the existing literature on the direct anterior approach to the hip as it presents the rationale and technical details of the approach and is of value to surgeons who perform surgery on the hip joint.

Series: Metal Ions in Life Sciences Series

This volume challenges the narrow focus on organic molecules in mainstream emergence-of-life research by collecting contributions from a transdisciplinary ensemble of authors who work in emergence-of-life-related domains. The change of paradigm away from the organic-molecule-focused approaches to life's emergence in recognizing the fundamental importance of metal ions is disparately promoted in several concerned research communities. This volume brings together aspects from different disciplines substantiating the call for a re-assessment of metal-ions' role in bringing inanimate matter to life'

Plant High-throughput Phenotyping and Functional Phenomics

Edited by Jen-Tsung Chen

This book demonstrates a comprehensive understanding of plant high-throughput phenotyping and functional phenomics; emphasizing the significance of automated machinery, robotics, remote sensing, and computational tools, including artificial intelligence and machine learning. The content is tailored to readers seeking a comprehensive overview of high-throughput techniques and their applications in the context of crop improvement and sustainable agriculture.

2ND EDITION

Remote Sensing of Tropical Dry Forests in the Americas

Ecology, Conservation, and Management

Edited by Arturo Sanchez-Azofeifa University of Alberta, Edmonton, Canada

This second edition focuses on Tropical Dry Forests (TDF) in the Americas and provides a comprehensive overview of new studies conducted in the last decade, giving new insights into the most endangered ecosystem in the tropics. Written by experts in remote sensing, ecosystem services, and ecology, the book concentrates on four thematic areas such as LiDAR remote sensing, remote sensing and ecology, quantification of ecosystem services, and TDF ecology. The case studies presented in this edition provide information on how emerging technologies can be applied to analyze biophysical properties and the status of TDFs across different regions in Mexico, Costa Rica, Brazil, and Bolivia.

Trace Metals Selenium, Chromium and Vanadium: Chemistry, Biology & Human Health

Chemistry, Biology & Human Health

Bimal Krishna Banik PMU, Saudi Arabia, Sangeeta Bajpai Amity University, Monika Kamboj Amity School of Applied Sciences, Amity University, Garima Pandey

Trace elements Selenium, Vanadium and Chromium play an essential role in the nutrition of both animals and humans. Their accumulation in various environments and the subsequent transition of these elements into the food chain significantly affect human and environmental health. This volume emphasizes the integrative aspects of Selenium, Vanadium and Chromium with chapters dedicated to their fundamental chemistry, biochemistry, clinical science, and environmental effects. Each chapter focuses on the advancement of scientific knowledge about these trace elements. Important studies on these elements will be described through interdisciplinary approaches.

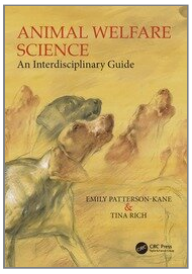
Animal Welfare Science

An Interdisciplinary Guide



Emily Patterson-Kane , Tina Rich

From blue skies scientists to front line animal rescue, there is a need for this textbook which distils and interprets the core concepts and language of animal welfare science. Coverage includes the main theories and why we needed them, practical advice for how to assess animal welfare, illustrative examples of different species and the importance of their interactions, and the stresses and strains experienced across an increasingly diverse workforce. Foundational knowledge is combined with real-world examples and recent advances to communicate the content and spirit of this unique field. Sidebars, boxes, bullet points, tables, and copious color illustrations aid accessibility.

Biophysics of Brain Imaging

Modeling Observations and Microscopic Phenomena

Jorge Riera

This book takes a multiscale overview and theoretical framework for all existing brain imaging modalities. It also presents technological development for data fusion and underlying biophysical models. Biophysics of Brain Imaging is intended for undergraduate and graduate level students in Computational Neuroscience, Medical Imaging, Electrophysiology, and Brain Data Analysis and Modeling courses. Problems and exercises are provided throughout the text.

Plant Ecology in a Changing World

James R. Ehleringer University of Utah, Salt Lake City, USA, Russell Monson

Today global changes and human activities affect plants within each of the world's ecosystems. Plant Ecology in a Changing World provides a foundation for understanding how the changes underway impact structure and function in the world's major biomes, while also describing how evolution has resulted in the biochemical, physiological, structural, and life history features that shaped plants and their capacities to persist across widely contrasting environments. This textbook is designed for undergraduate students and as well to serve as a resource for climate change scientists seeking a foundation on the principles of plant ecology and the basis of plant adaptations.

Addiction and Neurodegenerative Disorders

Unraveling the Nexus

Edited by Samer El Hayek

Series: Neuroscience of Neurodegenerative Disorders

Brain regions and neuronal processes that underlie addiction extensively overlap with those needed for cognitive functions, including learning, memory, and reasoning. individuals living with neurodegenerative disorders can engage in behaviors, such as self-medication, due to impaired judgment and impulsivity associated with their condition. Explores the overlooked connection between neurodegenerative disorders and addiction. By examining all these factors, an international team of contributors offer a comprehensive understanding of this underexplored intersection and its profound implications on affected individuals and their families, the healthcare system, and treatment strategies.

Agricultural Biotechnology

Issues, Challenges, and Recent Developments

Edited by Mohd. Sayeed Akhtar , Khalid Rehman Hakeem

Covers the uses of novel technologies for production, formulation, and synthesis of biological substances from the living organisms. It explores the practical uses of biopharmaceuticals, demonstrating their effectiveness in the treatment of various illnesses, such as cancer, autoimmune disorders, and infectious diseases. It also delves into the difficulties and possibilities linked to the advancement of biopharmaceuticals. Volume 1 introduces and overviews pharmaceutical technology, covering the principals and science of biotechnology. Volume 2 covers specialized areas, including biotherapeutics, principals and science of vaccinology, bioprocess technology, and more.

Agricultural Land Use

Structural Transformations, Environment Challenges, Planning and Policy

Edited by Jerzy Bański

Series: Earthscan Food and Agriculture

This book presents contemporary trends and challenges in agricultural land-use, drawing on an array of global case studies. Each chapter focuses on a particular issue related to agricultural land use in that country or region, including land fragmentation, reduction of crop land, agricultural intensification, desertification of soils, climate change, biodiversity loss, traditional agricultural systems, urbanization and rural development, planning challenges for agricultural land. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of food and agriculture, land-use and land management, rural studies and sustainable development.

Agroecology and Integrated Farming System: Agriculture in most parts of developing countries has developed from merely art to science but is still not connected successfully to the fullest potential of business. Farmers in these countries follow subsistence farming and face the increased impacts of climate change and natural calamities. An integrated farming system (IFS) model yields minimum risk and maximum environmental benefit. The latest cutting-edge technologies applicable to each component of IFS and the science towards an agroecological approach are part of the many significant features of this book.

Environmental Challenges and Transformation into Value-Added Products

Edited by Jose Juan Buenrostro-Figueroa , Juan Manuel Tirado-Gallegos , Mónica L. Chávez-González , A. K. Haghi , Shaheemath Suhara K. K

Addresses the reuse of food residue and byproduct valorization of fruits, vegetables, and seeds, providing a thorough survey of natural resource management. It also provides theoretical and experimental methods used to study different aspects of valorization techniques for agri-food wastes and byproducts management in parallel to conservation of nature. It discusses sustainability challenges related to food wastes and byproducts valorization along with emerging recovery technologies, conveying circular economy concepts by managing the "natural" environment and its resources.

Allelopathy

Bioactive Secondary Metabolites for an Eco-Friendly Agriculture

Edited by Fernanda Maria Policarpo Tonelli , Waseem Mushtaq , Arpita Roy , Münir Öztürk , Flávia Cristina Policarpo Tonelli , Khalid Rehman Hakeem

Provides a brief history of allelopathy and explores its importance in environmental health and sustainable agriculture, discussing allelopathy from a biotechnological point of view. It reviews synthetic pesticides and the environmental pollution associated with them and looks at allelochemicals as useful bioactive secondary metabolites. It discusses allelopathy induction in crops by natural selection, the main pathways involved in allelochemical production, and plant breeding in allelopathy. It details the theme of allelopathy and agricultural sustainability, covering plant-based anthelmintic as a new trend in solving various agricultural issues.

Edited by Tariq Ahmad Dar , Bilal Ahmad , Khalid Rehman Hakeem

Details the practical applications of jasmonates in agriculture: their multifunctional role in stress tolerance, their role in growth and development, as well as their protective role during heavy metal stress. It provides information on jasmonate structure, biosynthesis, signaling, and practical applications of jasmonates in horticulture. It also discusses their role in plant growth and development, detailing on the cross-talk of jasmonates with secondary metabolites, antioxidants, and secondary messengers and their role in mediating the stress responses. Other topics covered include the role of jasmonates in regulation of growth and development, biosynthetic pathways, and more.

Edited by Shakeel Ahmad , Asif Ali Khan , Muhammad Arshad Javed

Series: Modern Trends in Molecular Biology

Highlights the new frontiers and applications of the cutting-edge CRISPR-based gene editing systems in plants and animals for their improvement. It gives introduction to the CRISPR-based gene editing technique, its discovery, evolution, developments, classification, and diversity. It also reviews the applications of CRISPR-Cas systems in improving plants' biotic and abiotic stress tolerance, increasing nutritional quality and yield, and more. It reviews the application of CRISPR-Cas in the development of desirable livestock and large animals to achieve global food security. In addition, the regulatory aspects and the risks associated with this technology are discussed as well.

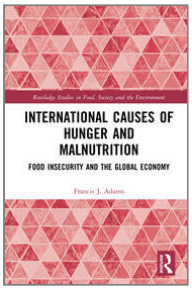
International Causes of Hunger and Malnutrition

Food Insecurity and the Global Economy



Francis Adams

Series: Routledge Studies in Food, Society and the Environment

This book examines the international causes of hunger and malnutrition and reveals how critical elements of the global economy heighten food insecurity in the developing world. At present, over two billion people in the developing world do not have secure access to safe, sufficient and nutritious food. Focusing on agricultural trade, seed privatization, land acquisitions, industrial fishing, and climate change, it presents an alternative framework for addressing food insecurity.This book will be of particular interest to students, scholars, and practitioners in the fields of global food security, international development, and global political economy.

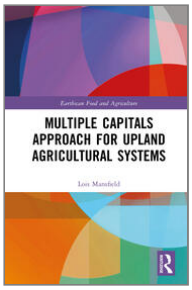
Multiple Capitals Approach for Upland Agricultural Systems



Lois Mansfield

Series: Earthscan Food and Agriculture

This book focuses on upland agricultural systems and applies a multiple capitals approach to explain what they can provide at a time when many are struggling to survive. Featuring case studies from the UK, Japan, and comparisons with Central and South America, it recommends tools for monitoring different forms of capital and suggests a management process driven by multiple capitals to create resilience in upland agricultural systems.It will be of interest to students and scholars of agriculture, natural resource management, ecosystem services, rural development and those interested in applying a multiple capitals approach more widely within policy and landscape management contexts.

Nanobiotechnology for Agricultural Sciences

Nano-Agri-Input Products for Crop Production and Environmental Protection

Edited by J. C. Tarafdar , Deepak Kumar , Sanjay K. Singh , Krishna Pal Singh

Reports latest advances in nanotechnology for agricultural applications, emphasizing the biogenic synthesis of nano-agri-input products (NAIPs) and technology's economic potential in the establishment of a sustainable agriculture. It covers major aspects of nanomaterials in the context of synthesis and their applications in crop production and environmental protection, addressing the synthesis, characterization, applications, and regulatory framework of nanomaterials in agriculture. Other topics include the green synthesis of nanomaterials and their impacts on soil fertility and biotic/abiotic stress management, biochar and nano-biochar production and applications etc.

Operations Research

Evolving Frontiers and Diverse Applications

Edited by Vilda Purutçuoğlu Middle East Technical University, Turkey, Gerhard Wilhelm Weber PUT, Poland , Hajar Farnoudkia Baskent University - IIBF, Turkey

This book, the second book in the series of Operational Research (OR) books, brings together the latest advances and comprehensive reviews of OR methods. It is divided in four parts - supply chain management, production planning and inventory management, signal processing and social sciences in such a way that researchers can follow up to date progress in the field while observing various applications with large datasets. The book will aid the discovery of new research avenues.

Optimizing Plant Health under Abiotic-Stress Environments

Ensuring Food and Nutritional Security

Edited by M. Iqbal R. Khan Department of Botany, Jamia Hamdard, India, Faroza Nazir , Kadambot H.M. Siddique The Uni of Western Australia

Abiotic stresses negatively affect crop yields, crop health is essential to ensuring global food security. There exists an urgent need to develop more abiotic stress resistant and tolerant crop varieties to ensure food and nutritional security. Optimizing Plant Health under Abiotic-Stress Environments: Ensuring Food and Nutritional Security presents a comprehensive review of important mineral nutrients in plants and effective management strategies under abiotic stress environments. The optimization of significant traits for abiotic stress tolerance creates effective breeding programs contributing to the development of next-generation crop varieties.

Organic Production of Vegetable Crops

Edited by M. K. Rana

Covers various topics on successful production of organic vegetable crops. It introduces the concept, importance, and scope of organic farming, highlighting best practices and the do's and don'ts of organic farming, as well as its export opportunities and challenges. It goes on to cover crucial topics on organic vegetable production, including methods for enhancing soil fertility, green manuring, role of biofertilizers, composting methods, agricultural waste, coir composting, biodynamic vegetable farming, botanical and biocontrol agents, and much more.

Sustainable Use of Wastewater in Agriculture

Applications, Methods, and Technology

Edited by Megh R. Goyal , Gaurav Saini

Series: Innovations in Agricultural & Biological Engineering

Addresses the challenges of repurposing wastewater in agriculture processes, with a special focus on low- and middle-income regions of the world. Topics include the application of wastewater for irrigation, problems in their use, innovative methods of application of the latest technology, with an emphasis on sustainable solutions to water scarcity. It looks at the uptake of heavy metals and emerging contaminants by the irrigated crops, soil, etc., from wastewater. It reviews utility of water generated from rainwater harvesting systems and the use of water quality indices for checking the suitability of a given type of water. It also details the Internet of Agribot Things (IoAT).

Smart Technologies for Sustainable Development Goals

Zero Hunger

Edited by Jose Anand Archangel KCG College of Technology, India, Saravanan Krishnan Anna Uni. Regional Campus

This book aims to inspire policymakers, researchers, practitioners, and students to harness smart technologies for creating innovative, sustainable, and context-specific solutions to combat hunger. By presenting a wide range of perspectives and case studies from across the globe, it underscores the critical role of technological integration in shaping a future where no one goes hungry.

The Role of Probiotics in Cancer Management

Edited by Md. Faiyazuddin , Sumel Ashique

Explores the latest in probiotic research, focusing on the effectiveness of probiotics in preventing cancer and supporting the treatment of cancer. It examines the evidence that the use of probiotics can play an important role in cancer prevention and support anti-cancer therapies. It contains introduction to prebiotics, probiotics, and synbiotics, covering the anticancer properties of probiotic microorganisms, the impact of their metabolites, the potential mechanisms of probiotic chemoprevention, and the feasibility of incorporating probiotics into cancer care strategies. It studies the efficacy of probiotics in the treatment and management of cancers.

Sustainable Production of Root and Tuber Crops

Edited by Ravinder Kumar Professional University, Phagwara, Milan Kumar Lal , Rahul Kumar Tiwari , Brajesh Singh

Series: Earthscan Food and Agriculture

This book provides a comprehensive overview of the latest research and developments in the field of root and tuber crops from a sustainable production and protection perspective. With a focus on sustainable production methods, the book offers valuable insights and perspectives on how to improve the efficiency and sustainability of root and tuber crop production. This is particularly important given the increasing demand for food security and sustainable agriculture practices globally. This book will be of interest to students and scholars of sustainable agriculture, crop management and plant sciences.

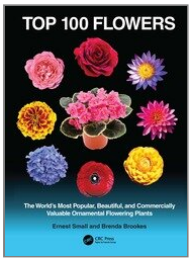
Top 100 Flowers

The World's Most Popular, Beautiful, and Commercially Valuable Ornamental Flowering Plants



Ernest Small , Brenda Brookes

Flowers are universally admired. Flowers are the leading gift expressing love and respect, they prominently decorate our homes and cities, and they accompany all of the major events in human affairs from birth through marriage and bereavement. Flowers are also of tremendous economic importance, representing billion-dollar industries in numerous countries. Top 100 Flowers: The World's Most Popular, Beautiful, and Commercially Valuable Ornamental Flowering Plants presents key information and illustrations of the world's most popular, beautiful, and commercially valuable ornamental flowering plants.

Water Stress in Crop Plants and Its Management

Edited by Prabhat Kumar Srivastava Kamta Pra Sunder Lal Saket Post Grad Col, India, Parul Parihar Banasthali Vidyapith, India, Richa Upadhyay

This book is a thorough compilation of recent studies on the effects of water stress on the morphology and anatomy of plants, photosynthesis, transpiration and nitrogen metabolism. This book also encompasses redox biology, genomics, metabolomics, ionomics, proteomics and transcriptomics during water stress in crop plants. Different mitigation strategies like using different osmolytes, proteins, hormones and growth regulators, antioxidants, and biotechnological tools to make crop plants less water demanding have also been discussed along with the involvement of major signaling molecules in water-stressed conditions as well as the crosstalk with other minerals, phytohormones etc.

Bioprocess Engineering and Technology: Three-Volume Set

Fundamentals, Upstream and Downstream Processing and Plant Design

Edited by Biswanath Bhunia , Navneet Joshi , Muthusivaramapandian Muthuraja

This three-book set introduces the basic fundamentals in both engineering and life sciences required for designing an optimal bioprocess system. It covers upstream and downstream processes as well as practical aspects in bioprocess plant design and project engineering, process economics, IPR, and biobusiness prospects related to bioprocess engineering. It highlights the multidimensional approach for developing expertise in bioprocessing and would be a useful resource for students, researchers and professionals studying bioprocess engineering and upstream processes involved in an industrial-scale bioprocessing operation as well as entrepreneurs and managers in the business.

Artificial Intelligence in the Production of Biotherapeutics

Principles, Practices and Standards

Alok Kumar Srivastav , Priyanka Das

Delving into the core of biomanufacturing, the book provides a structured journey through its critical phases. It begins with an introduction to modern biomanufacturing principles, quality-by-design approaches, and the integration of AI. Subsequent chapters examine raw material management, lean manufacturing practices, and the application of predictive analytics to optimize supply chains. Readers will explore advanced tools such as AI-enhanced data acquisition in PAT, automated standard operating procedures (SOPs), and AI-driven process controls for fermenters and chromatography systems.

Diagnostic Advances in Precision Medicine and Drug Development

Edited by Emmanuel Kwaku Ofori UGMS, Ghana, Seth Kwabena Amponsah UGMS, Ghana, Yashwant V. Pathak USF, USA

To arrive at the most appropriate decision regarding patient management, an essential step is for medical practitioners to determine a correct and accurate diagnosis of the patient's condition. In recent years there have been significant technological efforts in chemistry, biochemistry, laboratory science and biotechnology towards improving disease diagnosis and management in patients. Further, drug developers have utilized some of these novel diagnostic methods during preclinical and clinical trials that have led to creating efficiencies in their development processes.

Nonthermal Plasma Technology for Food and Food Products

Edited by R. Mahendran , Preeti Birwal , Megh R. Goyal

Series: Innovations in Agricultural & Biological Engineering

Explores the techniques and methods of processing food products without subjecting them to heat treatment, using cold plasma for food preservation. It reports on the various applications and advances in cold plasma technology in food processing. It introduces and reviews principles of cold plasma technology, also discussing the design and generation of cold plasma along with the interaction with food molecules. It covers cold plasma applications in agri-food systems such as in solid foods, liquid foods, and food packaging. It presents the effects of cold plasma on starch modification, food surface modification, and its influence on toxin reduction.

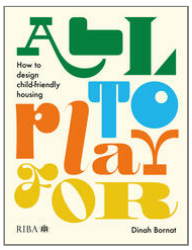
All to Play For

How to design child-friendly housing



Dinah Bornat

How can we meet the needs of children and young people? Just over 20% of the UK population is under the age of 18, yet they remain largely ignored when it comes to designing the places where they live. In this book, leading architect Dinah Bornat shows how we can shape communities for and with children and young people, as well as the benefits this can achieve. It combines compelling evidence, guidance and illustrated case studies to provide practical solutions for replacing, refurbishing, and reinvigorating an ageing housing stock through child-friendly design.

Asking, Looking, Playing, Making

A nature-focused design process

Mike Tonkin , Anna Liu

This accessible book acts as a storytelling toolkit, taking designers through a tried-and-tested process for taking an architectural project from thought to built project. Based around four main sections - Asking, Looking, Playing and Making - the authors show how a design process can generate beautiful buildings which are rooted in a sense of place. Further examples include a range of project types and scales to demonstrate the versatility of this toolkit.

Good Practice Guide

Fees

Peter Farrall , Stephen Brookhouse

Architects are finding the procurement landscape increasingly complex and competitive. This book shows practitioners the ways that fees are calculated, negotiated and managed. It will increase your understanding of the different fee-earning roles for architects, professional services contracts, how to calculate sustainable fee levels and improve negotiation skills. It also includes information on how to monitor and manage fees and the resources required to deliver projects, managing change in the scope of the project and related services, where to add value and to highlight risk areas that may impact on sustaining the business.

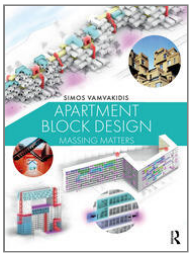
Apartment Block Design

Massing Matters



Simos Vamvakidis

This architectural design book focuses on massing studies for multi-unit housing projects; namely apartment blocks. It provides a fresh look at architectural synthesis for architects, students and architecture curious readers, focusing on multi-unit housing projects. The book re-examines the apartment block as a design model, for today and tomorrow, through a simple, flexible and explicit design approach. The innovation of this book lies in the idea that any type of apartment block can be designed and understood using three basic fundamental elements: Housing Units, Circulation and Communal Spaces.

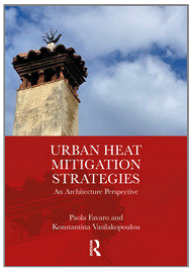
Urban Heat Mitigation Strategies

An Architecture Perspective



Paola Favaro , Konstantina Vasilakopoulou

Urban Heat Mitigation Strategies: An Architecture Perspective explores heat mitigation strategies integrated into the urban architecture of global cities, aiming to enhance citizens' quality of life through thoughtful design decisions blending architecture, science and engineering. The projects examined exemplify top-tier approaches in architecture, urban planning, landscape design, and engineering across diverse city precincts worldwide. Inspired by architect and urban designer Lewis Mumford's 1970s call for urban spaces that support citizens, these initiatives focus not just on aesthetics but also on effective social and climate change mitigation strategies.

Architecture and Social Sustainability

Understanding the New Paradigm

Edited by Alexandra Staub Penn State University, University Park, PA

Architecture and Social Sustainability shows how we can better design for stakeholder agency, serve historically marginalized populations, and further our theoretical thinking about sustainability writ large.With chapters exploring both the urban and the building scale, this volume examines the design of buildings and urban settings to illustrate how we can create more inclusive and equitable communities through broadening our design approach. Essential reading for architects and urban designers seeking alternatives to conventional practice, as well as educators and students incorporating social sustainability as a foundational design concept.

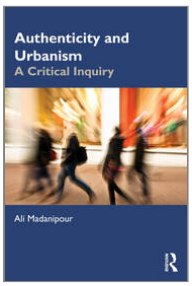
Authenticity and Urbanism

A Critical Inquiry



Ali Madanipour

This book investigates authenticity, an important but controversial cultural concept, and its relevance for urban socio-spatial processes. Defining authenticity as an evaluative relationship with an origin, it unpacks a range of origins from a critical, non-essentialist perspective: self, author, substance, event, time, place, and society. Students and scholars in urban studies, geography, urban design, planning and architecture, as well as in sociology and cultural studies would find this interface between ideas and practices informative and insightful.

Design for Construction

Tectonic Imagination in Contemporary Architecture

Eric Höweler

This book explores projects and practices that span the gap by thinking through materials and processes with what Höweler calls a tectonic imagination. Design for Construction is organized into 10 chapters covering topics such as means and methods, part-to-whole relationships, material research, digital design workflows, risk mitigation, construction sequencing, digital fabrication, ethical material sourcing, and circular construction practices. Höweler provides a careful analysis of over 200 buildings projects by practices. This book will be crucial reading for both architects and students of architecture.

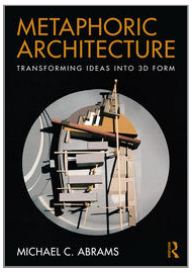
Metaphoric Architecture

Transforming Ideas into 3D Form



Michael Abrams

Metaphoric Architecture focuses on a fundamental but often challenging part of the beginning design phases – how to take an abstract idea and transform it into a three-dimensional object, space or building. Through media experimentation, analysis of innovative case studies and hands-on exercises, Abrams guides the reader through the early stages of design. It will be the ideal studio companion for beginning students of both architecture and interior design, with a wide range of architectural lessons that include abstraction, design fundamentals, concept development, building design, case-study analysis, and site-to-building relationships.

The Interiors Theory Primer

William Mangold

In a world where life is increasingly defined by interior conditions, this Primer provides insight into the significance of interior spaces and experiences. Organized into three sections, this book addresses long-standing issues at the core of interiors, starting with questions of experience and inhabitation, before moving to emerging areas of concern such as virtuality, biophilia, and social justice. The Interiors Theory Primer provides both interior design students and instructors, a clear and cohesive structure to understand and engage the important contributions that comprise interiors theory from core to emerging areas of the discipline.

Finishing in Architecture

Polishing, Completing, Ending

Edited by Paul Emmons Virginia Tech, USA, Marcia Feuerstein , Negar Goljan

Finishing in Architecture: Polishing, Completing, Ending explores the topic of finishing and the fascinating physical and metaphysical implications of its various conceptions in architecture. Finishing is essential to all human practices and concepts of time, yet simultaneously it is largely impossible to identify an entirely finished state of being. From the material to the procedural and the conceptual, this volume explores the practices of finishing in architecture within three currents: surfaces, projects, and most broadly, architectural times. It will be of interest to students and instructors of architecture and design, architectural historians, and other scholars.

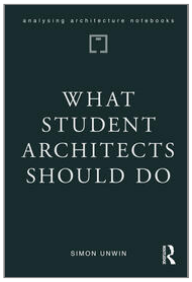
What Student Architects Should Do



Simon Unwin University of Dundee, UK

Series: Analysing Architecture Notebooks

As a first year student the challenges of learning how to do architecture can be daunting. Though not prescribing a particular way (there are as many ways to do architecture as there are architects) this Notebook outlines what you should do to cultivate your own distinctive capacity for architectural design. Architecture is a rich and varied subject, a multifaceted and multidimensional skill. Informed by decades of discussing architecture and its challenges with students, this Notebook will help you lay foundations for a rewarding career as a creative architect.

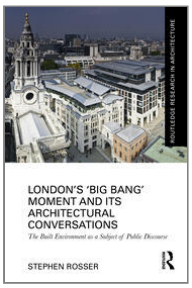
London's 'Big Bang' Moment and its Architectural Conversations

The Built Environment as a Subject of Public Discourse



Stephen Rosser

Series: Routledge Research in Architecture

This book explores the topic of architecture as a component of public discourse, focusing on the reception of four high-profile developments in the City of London (the UK capital's financial district) dating from the final years of the twentieth century. During this time, the City's mode of operation, culture and built environment were all transformed as a result of the market deregulation process labelled 'Big Bang'. It was also a period which saw the subject of architecture attracting public and media attention, becoming a prominent feature of national conversation.

Routledge Critical Companion to Race and Architecture

Edited by Felipe Hernández , Itohan Osayimwese

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

This book explores the malleability of race as a construct, one subject to continuous redefinitions in different times, cultures and places. While race has been deployed historically to establish hierarchies in a modern-colonial world, it also has acquired the capacity to challenge those hierarchies, enabling critical engagements with epistemic positions that have been excluded from univocal Eurocentric architectural narratives. It is essential reading for anyone studying or working in the built environment.

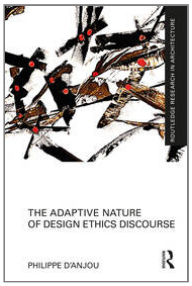
The Adaptive Nature of Design Ethics Discourse



Philippe d'Anjou

Series: Routledge Research in Architecture

How do designers navigate the ethical discursive territories of design thinking and practice when the same common terms they consistently use across the different design ethics paradigms—like fair, right, good—convey different meanings? Delving into the dynamic and adaptable nature of ethical language and terminology in design, this book argues that it is intrinsically flexible—what can be described as chameleonic. Engaging in a meta-ethical investigation, this book elucidates the interconnections of key terms of design ethics discourse and explores the way in which different frameworks of design ethics both diverge and intersect.

The Mannerist Phase in Architecture

On Early Style

Lina Malfona

This book frames mannerism as an inescapable stage in the creative process. The mannerist phase is usually an adolescent stage of language, preceding the consolidation of thought. It is that period, as fertile as it is anguished, in which each author engages in a dialogue with his or her past, reinterpreting or completely transforming it. The mannerist phase is that period when architects design spaces, not yet knowing what it means to design places.

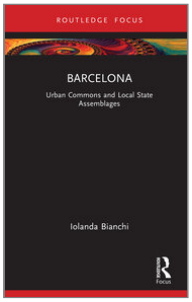
Urban Commons and Local State Assemblages



Iolanda Bianchi

Series: Built Environment City Studies

This book explores the complex relationship between urban commons - understood as a repertoire of collective action that fosters a politics of antagonism - and the local state. It critiques the dominant neo-institutionalist and neo-Marxist perspectives for their deterministic and siloed views, as well as their insufficient attention to the municipal scale. The book proposes a more nuanced, urban-based, outcome-oriented approach rooted in assemblage theory.

Citizen Participation in Sustainable Urban Development

A Framework for Engagement from the Nordics

Edited by Tuomas Ahola , Nina Tura , Ville Ojanen , Agnar Johansen SINTEF, Norway

This book assesses the ambitious goals for sustainability set by cities and nations, and details ways to achieve those goals through effective forms of collaboration between citizens and multiple stakeholders, such as municipal decision-makers, entrepreneurs, and academic researchers. Each chapter discusses how citizens are currently involved in urban development and what opportunities there are for further deepening the collaboration in context of urban development between citizens and municipalities. Cases from the Nordics focus on the adoption and use of digital technologies in provision of municipal services as well as in citizen participation.

Elena Porqueddu

This book highlights how designers can address the emergent self-organizing nature of complex urban environments. By using key concepts from systems thinking, complexity sciences, life sciences, cognitive sciences, and social sciences, the book frames a systemic spatial design approach aimed at enhancing the potential of different spatial design disciplines to navigate place-specific emergent transformations without overdetermining their formal outcome. A range of case studies, developing at different scales, show how embracing this design approach can lead to effective intervention in complex adaptive cycles of urban decay and self-regeneration.

Living with Water

Development and Urbanism in South Asia

Edited by Mohammed Mahbubur Rahman Kingdom University, Bahrain, Nawrose Fatemi

Considers the dynamics of water and the built environment in South Asia, exploring its urban and ecological landscapes in case studies from Bangladesh, India, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka. Offers practical strategies to increase climate resilience in cities and ecosystems of the region. This interdisciplinary resource augments urban planning methods with attention to the role of vernacular architecture, traditional water systems, and local knowledge in shaping resilient built and natural environments. Promoting resilient ecology and sustainable resource management, it offers guidance in the creation of water-sensitive development, integrated urban design, wetlands restoration, and more.

Peripheral Centralities

The Lost and Past Urbanity of the Suburbs

Edited by Nicholas A. Phelps , Roger Keil York University, Canada, Paul Maginn

Series: Planning, History and Environment Series

The term 'peripheral centralities' may seem something of an oxymoron and yet the spatial peripheries of cities have often been more central to urban development processes than appreciated. To better understand the nature peripheral centrality, Peripheral Centralities: The Lost and Past Urbanity of the Suburbs brings together a wide variety of examples of lost and forgotten peripheral centralities of different sizes, purpose, geographical location, and political complexion, dating from the first decades of the twentieth century to the present day.

Post-War Public Housing and Well-Being

Modernity, Economic Recovery, and Social Change

Edited by Izumi Kuroishi

This collection illustrates the evolving role of housing as a symbol of modernity, a tool for economic recovery, and a response to societal transitions. It argues that understanding earlier efforts to integrate well-being in the 20th century can provide valuable insights for contemporary actors in the built environment who are working to address these issues today. With case studies from the UK, US, Singapore, Japan, Germany, China, and Spain, this volume provides insights into how these countries have shaped the values, designs, and institutions of their dwellings. This book is essential for scholars and practitioners in cultural history, architecture, planning, and urban studies.

Retaining and Transitioning Businesses in Communities

Strategies in a New Era

Edited by Norman Walzer Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, Illinois, USA; Purdue University, USA, Christopher D. Merrett

Series: Community Development Research and Practice Series

This edited collection presents successful business succession planning in smaller rural communities where profit margins are low, markets are shrinking, and there are few potential buyers. Finding innovative ways to successfully transition these businesses to new owners is at the heart of community and economic development efforts if many of these communities are to thrive in the future. Chapters outline options for successfully transitioning businesses that have worked in Canada, England, and the U.S. This book is essential for academics, policymakers, and practitioners working on community and economic development issues, especially in areas with aging populations.

Sustainability Certifications, Labels and Tools in the Built Environment

How to evaluate, certificate and reduce the energy and environmental impacts of buildings

Edited by Francesco Asdrubali , Umberto Berardi

This book is aimed at covering all aspects of the evaluation, certification and reduction of the energy and carbon footprint of the built environment from the scale of the city and its neighbourhoods, to the building level and finally to the level of single building materials and components. Many protocols, tools and labels have been proposed in recent years, both at international and local level, and the aim of the book is to classify, describe and discuss all the different approaches and options.

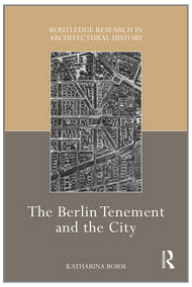
The Berlin Tenement and the City



Katharina Borsi

Series: Routledge Research in Architectural History

The Berlin Tenement and the City describes the development of the Berlin tenement from 1860 to 1914, showing how it became both Berlin's standard housing type and its principal urban component – the city's ubiquitous typology. In contrast to earlier historical categorisations of the tenement as a "rental barrack", here it is described as an evolving typology that dynamically responded to the demands of the city and urban reform.

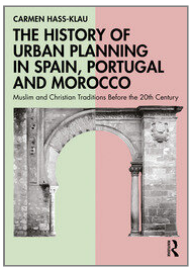
The History of Urban Planning in Spain, Portugal and Morocco

Muslim and Christian Traditions



Carmen Hass-Klau

This book includes a historic overview of urban planning on the Iberian Peninsula and in Morocco from 700 AD until the 20th century. Chapters detail the untold story of Muslim refugees, who founded towns in Morocco, and how the conflicts between Morocco and Spain started not only politically but also in terms of town planning, when Spain took over the Moroccan north. The book also traces the slow change from Islamic to Christian cities. It will be of interest to students and instructors of planning history, urban planning, and human geography and to people who are generally interested in history and cities.

Urban Human Mobility

Practices, Analytics, and Strategies for Smart Cities

Edited by Xiao Huang , Xinyue Ye , Kathleen Stewart , Subasish Das Texas State University

This comprehensive handbook covers human mobility within urban contexts, integrating academic theories with pragmatic insights and offering a detailed analysis of the diverse facets of human mobility and its substantial impact on the urban landscape, economy, and societal structures. It explains key fundamental concepts, methods, and models, presenting an in-depth exploration of predictive analytics, clustering patterns, advanced trajectory embedding techniques, AI, ML, GIS, IoT, and smart city innovations. The authors include case studies and examples of urban mobility in practice, making the content relatable and practical for educators, students, researchers, and practitioners.

Urban Planning Challenges and Innovations in Sub-Saharan Africa

Edited by Abubakari Ahmed , Millicent A. Akaateba , Bernard A. A. Akanbang

Urban planning practice in Sub-Saharan Africa increasingly encounters complexities due to the confluence of urbanisation, climate change, and their interconnected drivers and consequences. This book explores the unique challenges faced by growing cities in Sub-Saharan Africa, including urban crime, informality, land governance, development control, and the degradation of green spaces, as well as how these issues are addressed in planning education and emerging innovations. Providing a comprehensive overview of these issues, this book serves as a resource for urban planners, policymakers, scholars, and students dedicated to the sustainable development of cities in Sub-Saharan Africa.

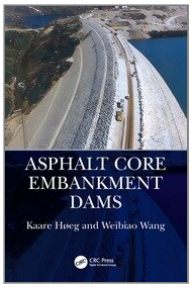
Asphalt Core Embankment Dams



Kaare Høeg , Weibiao Wang

Dams are built for several purposes, e.g. water supply, hydropower production or flood control. The main categories are concrete dams and embankment dams, but inside each of these two main categories, there are several different types. Asphalt Core Embankment
Dams concentrates on the design and construction of this type of dams. Asphalt core embankment dams are gaining in popularity, as their recorded field performance is excellent, they are economically very competitive, and the construction period may be shortened compared to other types of embankment dams. The book presents several case studies of dams that have been successfully built and been in service for many years.

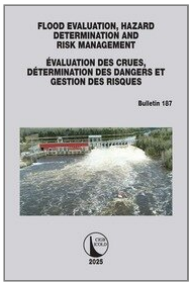
FLOOD EVALUATION, HAZARD DETERMINATION AND RISK MANAGEMENT / ÉVALUATION DES CRUES, DÉTERMINATION DES DANGERS ET GESTION DES RISQUES

ICOLD Bulletin 187



CIGB ICOLD

Series: ICOLD Bulletins Series

Design criteria for the construction or rehabilitation of dams and hydraulic structures generally begin with a section defining the design flood. This ICOLD Bulletin 187 follows in the footsteps of the previous one. It consists of three main chapters following the introductory chapter. The second chapter examines the main aspects of flood volume. The third chapter follows on from the previous bulletin and looks in more detail at stochastic approaches to flood risk assessment. The final chapter deals with the forecasting aspects of proactive flood management.

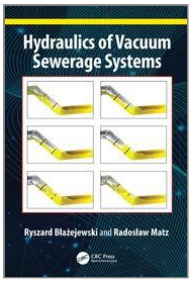
Hydraulics of Vacuum Sewerage Systems



Ryszard Błażejewski , Radosław Matz

In nine chapters, this book presents design guidelines and hydraulic calculation methods of vacuum sewage systems. After a short history of vacuum sewerage, the book covers the theoretical basis of multiphase flows, empirical approaches for the dimensioning of vacuum pipes, and conceptual, mechanistic and numerical two-phase flow models. The book is intended for designers, constructors, and operators of vacuum sewage systems, and for students of fluid mechanics and environmental engineering. The last chapter lists the needs for further research, which may be useful for master's and doctoral students and their supervisors looking for topics for theses.

Regulation of Dam Safety: An Overview of Current Practices Worldwide / Reglementation de la Securité des Barrages: Revue Internationale des Practiques Actuelles

Series: ICOLD Bulletins Series

ICOLD Bulletin 167, Regulation of Dam Safety: An Overview of Current Practices Worldwide, provides a comprehensive review of legal and regulatory arrangements for the safety of dams among the countries represented at ICOLD. As such, this review is essentially a snapshot of the situation being in place at the end of the first and the beginning of the second decade in the 21st century. This Bulletin is useful not only to these countries which have weak or non-existent legal and regulatory dam safety frameworks but also to these jurisdictions which are considering changes and improvements to existing legislation and regulations.

Theory and Design of Railway Truss Bridges

John F. Unsworth Canadian Pacific Railway, Calgary, Canada

Railroad bridges are a critical component of the infrastructure and economy of many countries, and many of these bridges are nearing the end of their useful service life. Theory and Design of Railway Truss Bridges provides comprehensive coupled information regarding the structural analysis and design of steel railway truss spans. Most books cover either analysis or design of structures, but none cover both the analysis and design of railway trusses.

Utilization and Industrial Technologies toward Sustainable Management

Edited by R. A. Ilyas , M. Iqbal Tahir , Muhammad Asyraf Muhammad Rizal Universiti Teknologi Malaysia, Malaysia, S.M. Sapuan Universiti Putra, Malaysia, M.S.N. Atikah

This book provides an overview of agricultural waste and its utilization in various industrial technologies for sustainable management. It covers a wide range of topics, including the characterization of agricultural waste, its environmental impacts, and its use in different industrial sectors. The book also discusses the latest technological advancements in the conversion of agricultural waste into value-added products and the opportunities and challenges associated with their implementation. Offering a multidisciplinary approach, it serves as a valuable resource for researchers, academics, policymakers, and engineers interested in the sustainable management of agricultural waste.

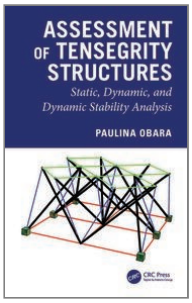
Assessment of Tensegrity Structures

Static, Dynamic, and Dynamic Stability Analysis



Paulina Obara

Dynamic stability analysis enables the determination of unstable regions, which adversely affect a tensegrity structure's durability. As internal forces hold the elements in stable equilibrium, the initial prestress crucially affects the distribution of unstable regions. First, basic theory and a geometrically non-linear model, and the methods used to evaluate the behavior of tensegrity structures are explained, before a broad spectrum of different planar and spatial design solutions is considered, from basic 2D structures to more complex tensegrity structures such as domes, towers, and plates.

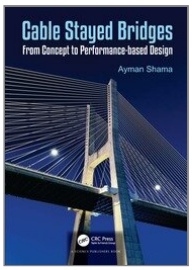
Cable Stayed Bridges

From Concept to Performance-based Design



Ayman Shama

The evolution of cable-stayed bridge design is described in this book with an emphasis on the significant advancements over the last two decades. The fundamentals of cable-stayed bridge analysis, design, construction, and maintenance are also covered. Specific issues such as aerodynamic stability and structural health monitoring are explained. The performance-based design approach is given particular consideration. The method's application to cable-stayed bridge seismic and fire safety design is also discussed.

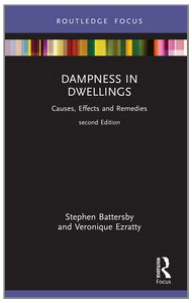
Dampness in Dwellings

Causes, Effects and Remedies



Stephen Battersby Environmental Health Consultant, UK , Veronique Ezratty

Series: Routledge Focus on Environmental Health

This updated edition provides a definition of dampness in each of its forms, it details the various potential sources, and causes that can result in damage to the building, and damage to the health of the occupiers. It is both practical, and provides an outline of the possible solutions looking at aspects of building design and construction that can reduce or avoid the risk of dampness. It also discusses why dampness is a risk to the health of occupiers and so justifies the need to protect health by reducing or removing it. Dampness in Dwellings provides a pivotal resource for active professionals in housing, medical and legal sectors.

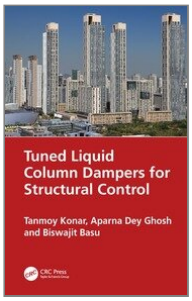
Tuned Liquid Column Dampers for Structural Control



Tanmoy Konar W. Bengal Police Housing & Infrastructure Dev. Corp., Aparna Dey Ghosh Indian Institute of Engineering Science & Tech, Biswajit Basu Trinity College Dublin

Tuned liquid column dampers (TLCDs) can control structural vibrations such as wind, earthquakes, waves and pedestrian movements. They are cheap to install, easy to maintain, and tunable, offering high volumetric efficiency and a specific and quantifiable mechanism. This outlines passive, active, semi-active and hybrid TLCDs, covering basic operation, mathematical modelling, analysis methodologies of damper-structure systems, in frequency and in time domain, design, experimental studies, and implementation, along with innovative designs to enhance applicability and performance. It suits researchers in structural control, advanced students, and vibration engineers.

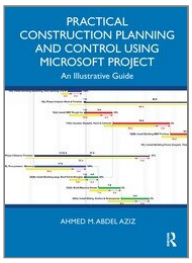
Practical Construction Planning and Control Using Microsoft Project

An Illustrative Guide



Ahmed M. Abdel Aziz

Fills a clear gap in the teaching literature by specifically demonstrating the Critical Path Method (CPM) using Microsoft Project (MSP). The thirteen chapters cover planning, scheduling, resources and costs, project updating for time and cost, project progress measurement using earned value analysis and project reports. Successfully combining the details of CPM as a management technique with guidance on the software, it presents a hands-on self-study guide. An ideal teaching tool for use on Construction Management and Project Management degree programs and for Professionals who are looking to learn construction project scheduling using widely available Microsoft Project software.

Applications of Digital Twins and Robotics in the Construction Sector

Edited by Syed Saad Civil and Env Engineering Dep, Malaysia, Kumeel Rasheed , Syed Ammad Griffith University, Australia

Applications of Digital Twins and Robotics in the Construction Sector inquires into the transformative impact of futuristic technologies in modern construction. This book includes digital twins for planning, project management, real-time simulation, circular construction, and data-driven decision-making, alongside robotics for automating on-site operations with precision and safety. Bridging these advancements, it highlights the interconnection in enhancing efficiency and innovation. Designed for both experts and enthusiasts, the book offers a comprehensive view of innovations shaping the industry's future.

Applications of Immersive Technology in Architecture, Engineering and Construction

A Handbook

Edited by Abhinesh Prabhakaran , Abdul-Majeed Mahamadu , Colin A. Booth , Patrick Manu University of Manchester, UK

This edited book addresses a gap in the literature by advancing current understandings of the applications of immersive technology within the architecture, engineering, and construction (AEC) sector. It is the first dedicated compendium of research-informed text that focusses on the multifaceted applications of immersive technology throughout the lifecycle of the provision of built assets right from concept design to end-of-life. Readers will understand how the technologies are applied, the resulting array of impacts including benefits, drawbacks, challenges and future directions for applications, research, and development.

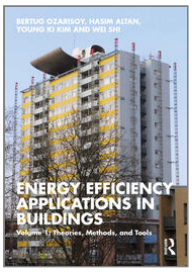
Energy Efficiency Applications in Buildings

Volume 1: Theories, Methods, and Tools



Bertug Ozarisoy , Hasim Altan , Young Ki Kim , Wei Shi

Energy Efficiency Applications in Buildings presents an investigation into energy use and measures to improve the energy efficiency of existing buildings in the UK. Divided into two volumes, the books present energy consumption and thermal comfort in the construction sector as a complex socio-technical problem that involves the analysis of an intrinsic interrelationship amongst dwellings, occupants and the environment. Volume 1 presents the background to the research, methods, and tools used by the research team. Volume 2 describes the case studies, building performance, and post occupancy evaluations, before making strategic policy and retrofitting recommendations.

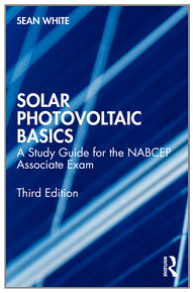
Solar Photovoltaic Basics

A Study Guide for the NABCEP Associate Exam



Sean White Solar Energy Professor and Consultant, USA

This book explains the science of photovoltaics (PV) in a way that most people can understand, using the curriculum which reflects the core modules of the NABCEP Associate Exam. Providing complete coverage of the NABCEP syllabus in easily accessible chapters, it addresses all of the core objectives required to pass the exam. You will learn the importance of surveying a site and how to carry out a survey, how to use the tools that determine shading and annual production, and the necessity of safety on site. This guide also includes technical math and equations that are understandable to those without engineering degrees, and are necessary in understanding the principles of solar PV.

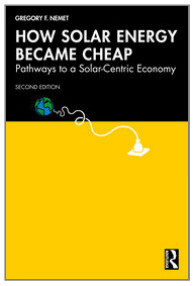
2ND EDITION

How Solar Energy Became Cheap

Pathways to a Solar-Centric Economy



Gregory F. Nemet

The climate problem is getting worse, but the solutions are getting better. So far, no technology has done more to improve the solutions available to address climate change than solar photovoltaics (PV). This revised edition describes an array of driving forces leading us toward a solar-centric energy system, one where solar power lies at the core rather than at the edge. Now in its second edition the book focuses on the future of solar, taking into account important changes since it was first published. It includes discussions on further growth and cost reductions, industrial policy, and grid integration of high solar.

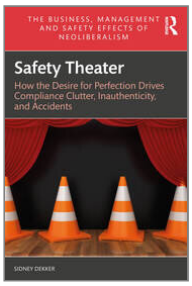
Safety Theater

How the Desire for Perfection Drives Compliance Clutter, Inauthenticity, and Accidents



Sidney Dekker

Series: The Business, Management and Safety Effects of Neoliberalism

Safety Theater shows how our desire for perfection drives compliance clutter, inauthentic relationships with work-as-done, and new kinds of accidents. This hopeful, forward-looking book is the final instalment of a three-part series on the effects of 'neoliberalism,' which promotes the role of the private sector in the economy. This text is written for all managers, board members, organization leaders, consultants, practitioners, researchers, lecturers, students and investigators curious to understand the genuine nature of organizational and safety performance.

50 Ways to Fool Your User

How to Make Everyday Products and Systems Work for Us

Peter Vink Delft University of Technology, The Netherlands, Alan Hedge

Written with humor and professional insight, 50 Ways to Fool Your User: How to Make Everyday Products and Systems Work for Us invites readers to question the quirks of modern life while imagining how things could work better for everyone. Across 50 chapters, scientific explanations are paired with snappy anecdotes. Each chapter concludes with actionable takeaways. This book is for professionals and academics interested in human factors, ergonomics and designing with the human in mind, but also interesting for every layman. It will appeal to designers, engineers and systems operators.

Boeing, the 737 MAX Crisis and Aviation Safety

The Perils of Profit-Driven Engineering

Andrew Hopkins

This title explores how the pursuit of profit compromised safety principles, neglected human factors, and led to critical design failures that no one at Boeing had a complete view of. It examines the specifics of the Boeing crisis and looks at it in a broader industrial and economic context. The book draws from the author's extensive research on other global industrial accidents, such as the Deepwater Horizon disaster. Boeing, the 737 MAX Crisis and Aviation Safety: The Perils of Profit-Driven Engineering is an essential read for professionals in the fields of human factors, safety, aeronautical/aerospace engineering, the law and corporate governance.

Ergonomics and Diversity, Equity and Inclusion

Theory and Practice

Bobbie Watts

This book investigates the symbiotic links between ergonomics and DEI and how workplaces can be improved through a better understanding of both. It reveals how to utilize DEI strategies to improve ergonomics and human factors efforts and how professionals can apply their expertise to improve DEI strategies. Ergonomics and Diversity, Equity and Inclusion will be a valuable reference for professionals in ergonomics and human factors, business and management, human resource management, industrial and systems engineering; mechanical engineering and computer science engineering and for those seeking for contemporary guidance to inform their DEI policy and practices.

New Perspectives in Behavioral Cybersecurity II

Human Behavior for Business, Profiling, Linguistics and Voting

Edited by Wayne Patterson Private Consultant for Howard University

New Approaches in Behavioral Cybersecurity II brings together international perspectives that explore how human behavior intersects with cybersecurity. The chapters highlight the integration of behavioral sciences like psychology, economics, and sociology with traditional cybersecurity approaches. Contributors examine linguistic differences in cyberattacks, explore the impact of personality on hacking behavior, and provide insights into ethical practices in the digital age. An ideal read for cybersecurity professionals, human factors practitioners, academics, and students this title will help readers broaden their understanding of how human behavior influences cyber defenses.

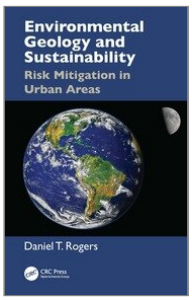
Environmental Geology and Sustainability

Risk Mitigation in Urban Areas



Daniel T. Rogers Amsted Industries, Chicago, Illinois, USA

This book explains the role of geology as the basis of sustainability. It discusses how humans have altered natural balances and the unique dimensions that geology brings to understanding sustainability. Focused on humans' activities in shaping urban areas, this book helps readers identify natural geologic risks created, identify human actions that reduce or increase those risks, or create new risks with unintended negative environmental consequences. It provides sustainability-oriented solutions so that humans can live in harmony with nature.

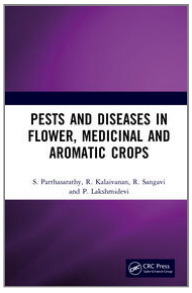
Pests and Diseases in Flower, Medicinal and Aromatic Crops



S. Parthasarathy , R. Kalaivanan , R. Sangavi , P. Lakshmidevi

Effective management of pests and diseases is crucial for the successful and profitable cultivation of crops. To address this need, this book compiles essential information and offers a simple approach to pest, disease, and nematode diagnosis, making it easier for students and non-specialists to tackle the challenges they face in this field. The subject matter details pest management in flower, medicinal and aromatic crops, using different methods and integrated pest management. The Cannabis Genome

A New Era in Genetics, Genomics, and Breeding

Edited by Angel Fernandez i Marti UC Berkeley, USA, Jaime Prohens Universitat Politècnica de València, Spain

Series: Depiction and Designing of Plant Genomes

This book provides comprehensive information on Cannabis genetics, genomics and breeding approaches. It fills a gap in the current literature on Cannabis and represents the state of the art in terms of biotechnology and gene editing for the cannabis industry. Salient Features: 1. Discusses the state of the art in terms of biotechnology and gene editing for the cannabis 2. Cannabis is a plant species that needs constant varietal renovation to reach the high demand of the consumers and the industry 3. Provides information on Cannabis genetics, genomics, and breeding 4. Discusses advances on omics and gene editing in Cannabis 5. Details taxonomic, economic, legal and cultivation aspects

Water and Energy Systems

Building for Climate Resilience and Environmental Sustainability

Edited by M. Dinesh Kumar Institute for Resource Analysis and Policy, India, Yusuf Kabir

This book addresses how water supply systems can be planned, designed and managed for sustainability by presenting unique approaches and methodologies in rural drinking water supply schemes. It synthesizes the findings of research studies undertaken by IRAP and pilot projects undertaken by RCUES of AIILSG, Mumbai. The book will be useful to students, researchers, and teachers working on Water Resources, Water Supply, Renewable Energy systems, Management of Climate-Induced Disasters, Water-Energy-Climate Policy, and Development Studies. It will also be useful to policy makers, general administrators, civil society organizations, media persons, and bilateral agencies.

3RD EDITION

Additive Manufacturing

Edited by Amit Bandyopadhyay Washington State University, Pullman, USA, Susmita Bose Washington State University, Pullman, USA

The field of additive manufacturing is growing dynamically as the interest is persisting from manufacturing sector, including other sectors. Conceptually, additive manufacturing is a way to build parts without using any part-specific tooling or dies from the computer-aided design file of the part. 3rd edition of Additive Manufacturing highlights the applications in aerospace industries, biomedical devices, and construction industries with new material on additive manufacturing at the nano- and micro-scale including highlights, questions, and additional reading materials. This book is aims at Students and Researchers in Mechanical, Manufacturing, Materials, and Industrial engineering.

Cutting-Edge Diagnostic Technologies in Cardiovascular Diseases

Towards Data-Driven Smart Healthcare

Edited by Haipeng Liu , Gary Tse

This book provides a comprehensive overview of cutting-edge technologies in the diagnosis of multiple cardiovascular disease. Readers will understand technical advancements and research gaps, which will help them to optimize the design of algorithms and devices. This book targets a mixed audience of data scientists, engineers, clinicians, researchers, academics, and students interested in cutting-edge technologies, methodologies, frameworks, and practices in the diagnostics of cardiovascular diseases to resolve the challenging gaps in healthcare and clinical applications.

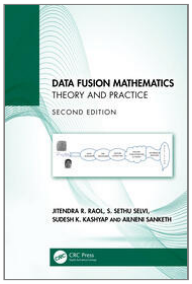
Theory and Practice



Jitendra R. Raol National Aerospace Laboratories (CSIR-NAL), India, S. Sethu Selvi Ramaih Institute of Technology, India, Sudesh K. Kashyap CSIR-NAL, India, Ailneni Sanketh CSIR-NAL, India

The new edition offers updated chapters alongside four brand new chapters based on recent research carried out by the authors, including topics on machine learning techniques, target localisation using a network of 2D ground radar, thermal imaging sensors for multi-target angle only tracking, and multisensor data fusion for single platform and team platforms.It also covers major mathematical expressions, formulae and equations and their derivations. It discusses signed distance function concepts, DF models and architectures, aspects and methods of type 1 and 2 fuzzy logics, and related practical applications. In addition, it covers soft computing paradigms.

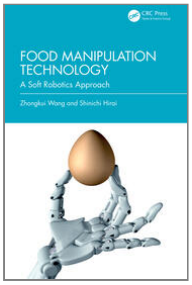
A Soft Robotics Approach



Zhongkui Wang , Shinichi Hirai

Wang and Hirai draw on their extensive experience to introduce recent technological advances in soft robotics for food manipulation and discuss their practical applications in the food preparation industry. They also describe food modelling and categorization for the purpose of robotic handling. This book is an essential read for both food technology practitioners and graduate students who are interested in food manipulation and its related technologies. It gives readers the theoretical background knowledge and practical understanding to apply this cutting-edge technology in real-world settings.

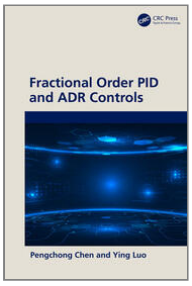
Fractional Order PID and ADR Controls



Pengchong Chen Zhengzhou University, China, Ying Luo

It covers fractional-order Proportional-Integral-Derivative (PID) control, fractional-order Active Disturbance Rejection (ADR) control, and the combined fractional-order PID-ADR control. The book begins with an analysis of the three-parameter fractional-order PID controller, demonstrating its application to the Permanent Magnet Synchronous Motor (PMSM) speed servo system, due to its comprehensive inclusion of proportional, integral, and differential elements. It then delves into Active Disturbance Rejection Control and Periodic Disturbance Compensation, comparing the performance of each controller based on various parameters.

Industrial Engineering Strategy for Constructive Technologies

A Systems-Based Approach for the Global Economy

Adedeji B. Badiru Professor, Dean Graduate School of Engineering and Management, Air Force Institute of Technology (AFIT), Ohio

Series: Systems Innovation Book Series

There is an urgent need to develop robust strategies to respond to and leverage new and emerging technologies, particularly those based on Artificial Intelligence. An Industrial Engineering's systems-focused approach offers the best mechanism to address this urgent global need. This book is a necessary read for university students and instructors along with all areas of engineering as well as industry, business, government, and the military.

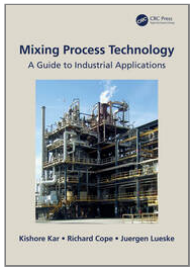
Mixing Process Technology

A Guide to Industrial Applications



Kishore Kar , Richard Cope , Juergen Lueske

Industrial mixing processes present multiple optimization challenges to producing desirable products. This book shares the authors' extensive knowledge of mixing research and industrial practice. It features twenty industrial mixing chapters that are purposely light on mixing fundamentals, while heavy on practical mixing applications. This text serves as an applied guide to industrial mixing for chemical and process engineers and students who want brief explanations of mixing concepts with real-life examples and software to help perform associated design calculations.

Process Safety

Frank Crawley , Doug Scott

This book provides early career engineers with a strong practical background in Process Safety. It contains basic theory to bolster understanding of the subject, and gives practical information covering both design and operation of process plants. It offers an interactive approach with frequent links between chapters and inclusion of numerous case histories to illustrate and support the text. With its accessible and hands-on approach, this book gives early career chemical engineers a deeper understanding of the issues they will face while on the job and practical solutions to address and avoid problems. The book's many cases studies will also be of value to more experienced engineers.

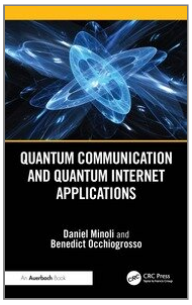
Quantum Communication and Quantum Internet Applications



Daniel Minoli , Benedict Occhiogrosso

Proponents refer to the possibly emerging Quantum Internet as being "highly anticipated", and while large scale/commercial quantum networks do not exist at this juncture, they are expected to enjoy some embryonic deployment by the end of the current decade. Quantum Computing, particularly in conjunction with a high level of interconnectivity facilitated by quantum connectivity can facilitate a host of new, previously unattainable applications. This book is a basic introduction for practitioners to emerging Quantum Communications foundations and applications.

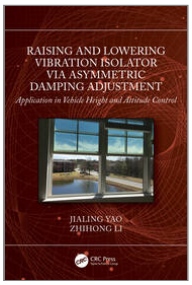
Raising and Lowering Vibration Isolator via Asymmetric Damping Adjustment

Application in Vehicle Height and Attitude Control



Jialing Yao Nanjing Forestry University, China, Zhihong Li Yancheng Institute of Technology, China.

The first part of this book identifies the theoretical foundation of asymmetric damping adjustment and discusses practical applications and the significance of this advancement. The second section discusses the mechanics and laws governing the active raising and lowering of the vibration isolator. The final two sections present the application of this method by incorporating a number of control strategies, including model predictive control, hybrid model predictive control, and active disturbance rejection control. The methodology is validated through simulation and co-simulation under various vehicle conditions.

Sewing Machines and Processes

Edited by Yordan Kyosev

Sewing Machines and Processes presents modern engineering fundamentals of sewing processes and machines for the complete spectrum of sewing stitches. It explores various needle types, properties of sewing threads, material transport, and advances in sewing techniques and technologies. The book will interest both researchers and industry professionals working in the apparel industry, textile production/manufacturing, and design assembly processes. It will also benefit graduate students taking courses in Apparel Technology, Sewing Technology, Sewing Processes, and Joining Technology of Textiles.

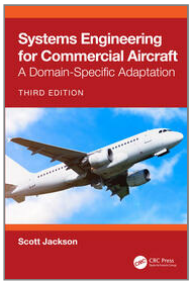
Systems Engineering for Commercial Aircraft

A Domain-Specific Adaptation



Scott Jackson

Systems-engineered aircraft are designed to transport passengers safely, ensuring all components work together seamlessly. This book explores the concept of aircraft as a complex system, including humans, with safety as a crucial aspect. By prioritizing safety and quality, fewer fatalities can be achieved, leading to efficient, reliable, and safe aircraft for passengers and crew. The primary audience for this book consists of major aircraft companies engaged in advanced design, aeronautical engineers, and systems engineers.

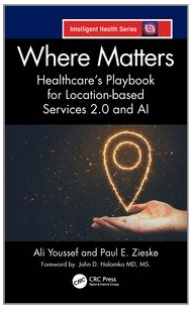
Where Matters

Healthcare's Playbook for Location-based Services 2.0 and AI



Ali Youssef , Paul E Zieske

In "Where Matters," this vision becomes reality through Care Traffic Control (CTC), a revolutionary framework that brings the precision and reliability of aviation traffic control to healthcare operations. Drawing from decades of experience in both aviation and healthcare, the authors reveal how location-based services and digital twin technologies can transform healthcare operations from reactive to predictive, from fragmented to orchestrated, from inefficient to optimized.

Innovation, Challenges, and Opportunities

Edited by Rajender Kumar Manav Rachna International Institute of Research and Studies, Rahul Sindhwani , Raman Kumar Guru Nanak Dev Engineering College, India, Punj Lata Singh , J. Paulo Davim University of Aveiro, Portugal

Series: Higher Education and Sustainability

Technopreneurship is an advanced version of entrepreneurship that incorporates cutting-edge technologies, from AI to big data, into entrepreneurial activities and leads to innovative solutions to problems that previous solutions have failed to sustain in the long term. This book explains the fundamentals of developing and establishing a one-person business or a large organization. It covers all aspects of an entrepreneurial journey, guiding readers from the startup stage, growing a business, sustainability, and clarifies the role of technopreneurship as a tool to enhance sustainability in today's entrepreneurial ventures.

Aerodynamics Principles for Air Transport Pilots

Rose G Davies Massey University, New Zealand

This book provides a thorough understanding of the forces acting on an aircraft across a range of speeds and their effects on the aircraft's performance. The second edition features new content on aircraft performance as a part of the applications of analysis of aerodynamic forces, new sections on features of aerofoil on aerodynamic forces, and force feedback on control of PCATD. The book is intended for senior undergraduates studying to obtain their Airline Transport Pilot License (ATPL)/Airline Transport Pilot (ATP) certificate. Aviation and air transport pilots and aircraft maintenance engineers will also benefit from the content.

Engineering Mathematics with MATLAB

Chul Ki Song Gyeongsang National University, Korea, Jong-Ryeol Kim

This textbook takes a streamlined, practical approach, designed to make engineering mathematics accessible and manageable for undergraduate students and instructors alike. Students will gain a fundamental understanding within the scope of a two-semester course. Designed with practicality in mind, this book offers a balanced approach to mastering engineering mathematics, with a manageable workload aligned to academic schedules. It is an invaluable resource for instructors seeking effective teaching tools and for students aiming to build strong mathematical foundations that they can apply to their own engineering discipline.

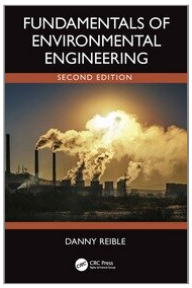
Fundamentals of Environmental Engineering



Danny Reible Texas Tech University

Numerous new technologies and approaches have been developed since the first publication of Fundamentals of Environmental Engineering. This newly revised and updated edition continues to have a focus on fundamental concepts, and on mass and energy material balances, but it eliminates some of the least-used concepts and allows space for new and more common aspects of environmental engineering practice. Expanding its use at the junior level, the author explains current environmental engineering issues including emerging contaminants and management of air, water, soil and sediment pollution.

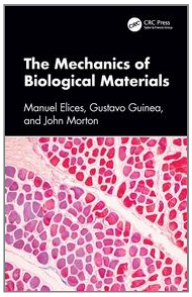
The Mechanics of Biological Materials



Manuel Elices , Gustavo Guinea , John Morton

This book introduces the mechanical principles governing the behaviour of a wide range of biological materials. The approach is systematic and based on one-dimensional (fibres), two-dimensional (membrane), and three-dimensional (bulk) biological materials. The essential mathematical tools are developed from first principles and applied to materials as diverse as spider silk, blood vessels, and bone. The text is aimed at students of chemistry, materials engineering, and biology, who do not have a background in mechanics but wish to further their knowledge of the mechanics of biological materials.

Application of Self-Nanoemulsifying Drug Delivery Systems in Inflammatory Diseases

Edited by Sachin Kumar Singh , Samir Mehndiratta , Keshav Raj Paudel , Gabriele De Rubis , Harish Dureja , Kamal Dua

This book discusses the potential applications of Self-Nanoemulsifying Drug Delivery Systems (SNEDDs) in different inflammatory diseases. It introduces the principles of SNEDDs, their formulation optimization, components, and characterization techniques, providing insights into their mechanisms of drug delivery. The book also explores the potential of various combination therapies with SNEDDS, highlighting strategies, synergistic effects, and challenges. The book presents the applications of SNEDDs in specific inflammatory diseases. This book is intended for researchers, pharmacologists, pharmaceutical scientists, and clinicians involved in drug delivery and nanomedicine.

Proceedings of the 14th International Science and Technical Conference Automotive Safety (Sandomierz, Poland, 24-26 April 2024)

Edited by Marek Jaśkiewicz , Rafał Jurecki , Emilia Szumska

Automotive Safety 2024 presents a comprehensive selection of 36 papers from the 14th International Science and Technical Conference: Automotive Safety 2024. The intricate nature of safety issues and continuous advancements in automotive technology drive a steady stream of novel and captivating scientific and technical developments at each edition of the Conference. The contributions delve into a wide range of automotive safety topics, from broad-based studies to specific applications, encompassing object recognition, accident reconstruction, autonomous vehicles, driver behaviour, micromobility, and the perception of intelligent technologies.

Biomedical Materials and Biofabrication for Regenerative Medicine

Edited by Naznin Sultana , Sanchita Bandyopadhyay-Ghosh , Soon Chin Fhong

'Biomedical Materials and Biofabrication for Regenerative Medicine' addresses the existing and future trends of tissue engineering approaches for regenerating various organs/tissues. This book brings together leading experts to explore the latest innovations and applications in this dynamic field. From biomaterials design to scaffold development to 3D bioprinting, each chapter delves into cutting-edge research and practical insights shaping the future of healthcare.

Cinematic Algorithms

The Rise of Generative AI in Video Art and Visual Culture

James Hutson , Andrew Smith Lindenwood University, USA

This book explores the groundbreaking integration of generative artificial intelligence into filmmaking and visual storytelling. From democratizing video production to reshaping aesthetics, this book highlights the creative revolution AI offers. Through case studies, interviews with innovative artists, and historical perspectives, it examines how intelligent systems enhance creativity while challenging traditional notions of authorship and originality.

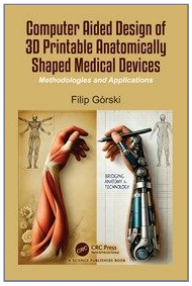
Computer Aided Design of 3D Printable Anatomically Shaped Medical Devices

Methodologies and Applications



Filip Gorski Poznan University of Technology, Poland

"Computer Aided Design of 3D Printable Anatomically Shaped Medical Devices: Methodologies and Applications" presents a comprehensive framework for designing 3D printable medical devices tailored to individual anatomies. Bridging engineering and medicine, the book guides readers through advanced CAD techniques, anatomical data acquisition (via 3D scanning and imaging), and additive manufacturing processes, presenting mostly results of author's own and co-authored research.

Constitutive Models for Rubbers XIII

Edited by Hüsnü Dal

Constitutive Models for Rubber XIII is a comprehensive compilation of the oral and poster contributions to the XIII European Conference on Constitutive Models for Rubbers (İstanbul, Türkiye, 26-28 June 2024). The XIII edition again brought together researchers from the industry and the academia working in the field of elastomer technology and science to discuss the most recent advancement in the following topics: constitutive models, micro-structural investigations, experimental methods and characterization, numerical methods, fatigue and fracture, aging, industrial applications, smart elastomer materials: applications and modelling, and recyclable elastomer systems design.

Designing Control Strategies for Harmonic Power Filters to Improve the Power Quality in Distribution Networks

Harmonic Power Filters Design

Kumar Reddy Cheepati , T. Mariprasath , Marco Esteban Rivera Abarca , M. Nageswara Rao

Series: River Publishers Series in Power

This book delves into the intricacies of power quality issues, with a special focus on harmonics and their mitigation through advanced filter design and control strategies. It is tailored for both professionals and students in electrical engineering, power systems, and power electronics. Written by leading experts in the field, this text/reference combines theoretical foundations with practical insights, making it an essential resource for anyone looking to deepen their understanding of power quality and harmonic filtering.

Digital Transformation and Sustainability of Business

Edited by Sai Kiran Oruganti , Dimitrios Karras , Srinesh Thakur , Janapati Krishna Chaithanya , Sukanya Metta , Amit Lathigara

It explores the integration of digital technologies into business models, offering innovative approaches for sustainable growth. This comprehensive guide delves into case studies and strategic frameworks that align digital transformation with environmental and economic sustainability. It presents actionable insights on overcoming challenges, leveraging technology for efficiency, and fostering a competitive edge. Designed for industry leaders, researchers, and policymakers, the book provides evidence-based strategies supported by real-world applications, making it an essential resource for those looking to drive meaningful change in today's evolving business landscape.

Direct Liquid Fuel Cells

Recent Advances and Challenges and the Sustainable Energy Transition

Edited by Norazuwana Binti Shaari Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia, Ajaz Ahmad Wani Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia, Siti Kartom Kamarudin

This edited guide to direct liquid fuel cells (DLFCs) provides readers with a detailed discussion of their characteristics, mechanisms, and role in global decarbonization. Expert contributors address various facets including their working mechanisms, sustainability, life cycle assessment, and more. Readers will gain an expansive understanding and benefit from the discussion of various DLFCs. This all-inclusive and cross-disciplinary resource is a vital guide for researchers and undergraduate and graduate students studying renewable energy, energy storage and conversion, and decarbonization towards Net Zero.

Fundamentals and Advances in Metal Matrix Composites

Edited by Tharmaraj Ramakrishnan , PM Gopal

Series: Advanced Materials Processing and Manufacturing

The scope of this book covers the fundamental background of Metal Matrix Composites, their processing and fabrication, testing and characterization, exploration of materials for MMCs and green MMCs, and advancements in all aspects of fabrication, testing, and applications. Development or fabrication of MMCs with evaluation of mechanical and tribological properties as well as machinability evaluation are covered including optimization of fabrication process as well as machining operations is also covered. This book is aimed at graduate students, researchers and professionals in micro/nanoscience and technology, mechanical engineering, industrial engineering, metallurgy, and composites.

Generative Artificial Intelligence in Healthcare

Current Practices and Future Development

Edited by Rajendra Kumar Dept. of SCE, Sharda University , Shankar Ramamoorthy , Vishal Jain Sharda University, Greater Noida, India, Utku Kose , Ong Eng Tek

Series: Artificial Intelligence in Smart Healthcare Systems

Generative Artificial Intelligence in Healthcare: Current Practices and Future Development starts by reviewing the past and then discussing the present of Generative AI-based systems and the potential challenges the future might bring. It then highlights the integration of Generative AI with IoT, and blockchain technologies along with offering case studies. The book explores how to integrate augmented and virtual reality into Generative AI-based healthcare and covers the development of an effective machine algorithm for Generative-based healthcare and the design and implementation of Generative Adversarial Networks (GANs) in healthcare systems.

2ND EDITION

Handbook of Systems Engineering and Analysis of Electro-Optical and Infrared Systems

William Wolfgang Arrasmith Florida Institute of Technology, Melbourne, USA

This second edition 2-volume set integrates solid fundamental systems engineering principles, methods, and techniques with the technical focus of contemporary Electro-Optical and Infrared Systems (EO/IR) optics, imaging, and detection methodologies and systems. Because this 2-volume set blends modern-day Systems Engineering methods with detailed Optical Systems Analysis and applies these methodologies to EO/IR systems, it is excellent for professionals in STEM disciplines. It's also a great practical reference for the practicing engineer, and a solid educational text for graduate-level systems engineering, engineering, science, and technology students.

Handbook of Systems Engineering and Analysis of Electro-Optical and Infrared Systems

Applications, Tools, and Techniques

There has been a lot of innovation in systems engineering as well as some fundamental advances in the field of optics, imaging, lasers, and photonics that warrant attention. This volume focuses on applications, tools, and techniques of systems engineering-related topics from government, industrial, and academic settings. This new edition is excellent for professionals in STEM disciplines that work with optical or infrared systems. It's also a great practical reference text for the practicing engineer, and a solid educational text for graduate-level systems engineering, engineering, science, and technology students.

Hybrid Optical Wireless Networks and Sensor Technologies

Edited by Prateek Gupta , Bhavana Kaushik , Kiran Ahuja , Indu Bala

Covers the tools, techniques, and trends in hybrid optical wireless networks and sensor technologies that can be applied in various domains. Addressing recent trends and opportunities in wireless networks, it covers categorization of various hybrid optical wireless networks and sensor networks, algorithm optimization for intelligent wireless and mobile networks, optic-based wireless networks, bio-inspired algorithms and methods for wireless networks and sensor networks, and more. Topics include deep learning in mobile device sensors, optimized wireless propagation models, underwater communication through hybrid optical wireless networks, and more.

Materials for Dye Degradation

Edited by Tarun Parangi , Soyebkhan Pathan

Series: Emerging Materials and Technologies

Increased use of dyes compromises the visual quality of water sources and enhance the biochemical and chemical oxygen demand that promote toxicity, mutagenicity, and carcinogenicity of the environments. This book presents a broad-spectrum content of the functionalized materials and well-established methods, and a commercial perspective of various investigations conducted on dye degradation as an environmental cleaning application. It confines the emerging areas of advanced materials and efficient methods for the environmental remediation field as accommodating concepts. This book is aimed at researchers and graduate students in environmental science, nanoscience, dyes, and chemistry.

MXene-Based Emerging 2D Materials for Biomedical Applications

Edited by Sarika Verma

This book provides a comprehensive overview of the history and background of MXenes based materials and their structure, as well as synthesis, properties and modifications for making various advanced materials. It covers in-depth processing parameters for making MXenes based material for high-end applications, especially in the biomedical and pharmacy area. It will guide bioengineering and material science students, scientists, and researchers to plan future research in this valuable field. It is a unique book that gives broad knowledge about MXene based advanced materials under a single umbrella, and will demonstrate the usefulness of mxenes in the healthcare sector in multiple ways.

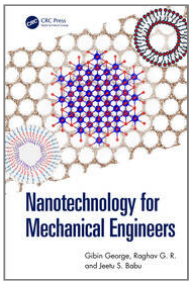
Nanotechnology for Mechanical Engineers



Gibin George Fayetteville State University, Fayetteville, NC, Raghav G R , Jeetu S. Babu

This book exclusively aims to deliver a basic understanding of nanotechnology from a mechanical engineering perspective. It begins with the history and fundamentals of nanotechnology and comprehension of the relationship between the properties and the structure. A brief overview of the several techniques available for the synthesis of various nanostructures and the techniques for size control is provided in the subsequent section. The third section is on the demonstrated applications of nanostructured materials in the field that are closely related to mechanical engineering. This book is aimed at Researchers and graduate students in mechanical engineering and nanotechnology.

Neural Rehab

Deep Learning in Healthcare Revitalization

Sima Das , Parijat Bhowmick , Farshad Arvin , Arpan Adhikary

Series: Artificial Intelligence in Smart Healthcare Systems

Neural Rehab explores deep learning's significant impact on the revitalization of healthcare through neural rehabilitation. The focus is on how deep learning algorithms are being used to personalize rehabilitation plans, demonstrating how technology can tailor interventions to meet the unique needs of each individual. The book covers neural rehabilitation such as stroke recovery, brain injuries, and neurological disorders. An emphasis is placed on the patient-centric approach, showcasing how deep learning contributes to enhanced patient experiences, improved recovery, and an overall better quality of life. This book is essential for healthcare professionals and researchers.

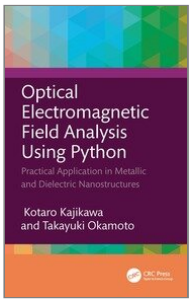
Optical Electromagnetic Field Analysis Using Python

Practical Application in Metallic and Dielectric Nanostructures



Kotaro Kajikawa , Takayuki Okamoto

In this book, Kajikawa and Okamoto explain how to use Python to calculate and visualize the optical response of microscopic structures and systems. Throughout, the authors provide varied examples to instruct readers in the application of theoretical knowledge to real-world scenarios. This book is invaluable for researchers and postgraduate students working in the fields of optics and photonics. Additionally, the contents are useful not only for those conducting electromagnetic field analysis but also those simulating physical, chemical, and biological phenomena.

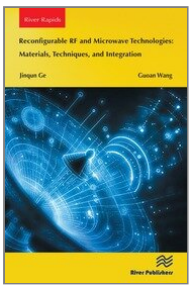
Reconfigurable RF and Microwave Technologies: Materials, Techniques, and Integration



Jinqun Ge , Guoan Wang

This is a comprehensive guide to the latest innovations in reconfigurable RF and microwave technologies, providing a deep dive into advanced materials, fabrication techniques, and integration methods that are transforming the industry. In an era where wireless communication and RF/microwave technologies are continuously evolving, flexible, high-performance, and miniaturized RF and microwave components are in high demand. This book covers essential manufacturing methods such as micromachining, 3D printing, thin film growth methods, and photolithography. It also explores cutting-edge reconfigurable technologies enabled by mechanical tuning, RF MEMS, and semiconductor switches.

Small Organic Molecules-Based Fluorescent Biosensors and their Applications

Edited by Abha Sharma

This book provides an overview of organic molecule-based fluorescent compounds and their role in biosensing. It elaborates on the synthesis of diverse scaffolds like Xanthene, BODIPY, Julolidine, Polymethine dyes, Quinoline, Phenanthiridine, Benzothiazole, Coumarin, Perylene, and Carbazole. The book also explores the applications of fluorescent probes in analysis of proteins, DNA, ions, lipid, carbohydrate, and cellular components, including real-time tracking and receptor interactions, and for environmental monitoring. This book is useful for researchers, students, and professionals of pharmaceutical science and chemical biology.

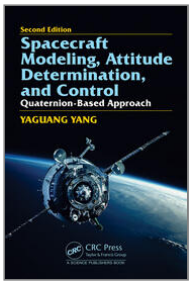
Spacecraft Modeling, Attitude Determination, and Control

Quaternion-Based Approach, Second edition



Yaguang Yang

This book discusses spacecraft modeling, attitude determination, estimation, and controls. A background on rotation sequence and reference frames is provided, followed by the discussion of the attitude determination using vector measurements, and control designs independent of actuators in use. For actuators unable to generate the required control torques, control methods with achievable torques are provided. The book includes attitude control in special maneuvers and systems, such as orbital-raising, docking and rendezvous, and multi-body space systems.

Sustainable Electronics

The Future Ahead

Edited by Farkhanda Ana Department of ECE, SOET, BGSB University, India, Sandeep Arya University of Jammu, India, Haider Mehraj BGSB University, India

The reference text focuses on the principles of designing sustainable electronics, including considerations for reducing the environmental impact of electronics during the design phase. It covers topics such as product life cycle assessment, eco-design, and green materials selection. The book discusses the development and use of sustainable materials in electronics, such as biodegradable and renewable materials. It is primarily written for senior undergraduates, graduate students, and academic researchers in the fields of electrical engineering, electronics and communications engineering, energy, environmental engineering, and electronic materials and devices.

Synergy of AI and Fintech in the Digital Gig Economy

Edited by Alex Khang , Babasaheb Jadhav , Vugar Abdullayev Hajimahmud , Ipseeta Satpathy

The convergence of AI and Financial Technology (Fintech) has ushered in a new era of innovation in the finance ecosystem, particularly within the context of the digital gig economy. This emerging trend has created a unique set of challenges and opportunities, which AI and Fintech are poised to address. This book explores how these cutting-edge technologies are reshaping the financial landscape and the digital gig economy's impact on the traditional workforce. Written for students, scholars, lecturers, researchers, scientists, experts, specialists, and engineers, this book represents an area of significant interest and importance in the realm of finance and technology.

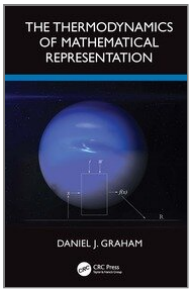
The Thermodynamics of Mathematical Representation



Daniel J. Graham Loyola University, Chicago, Illinois, USA

Thermodynamics is the physical science surrounding work, heat, and relationships across fundamental quantities, and situates itself near the center of multiple disciplines through its generality and timelessness. Its laws required no rewriting after the twentieth century revolutions of quantum mechanics, relativity, and solid state physics, just to name three subjects. The nine chapters of this book make appeal to thermodynamic notions and laws to get under the hood of mathematics without just echoing things best said and written in math books.

Thermal Spray Coatings for High-Temperature Conditions

Edited by Gaurav Prashar Rayat Bahra Institute of Engineering and Nano-Technology, India, Hitesh Vasudev LPU, India, Lalit Thakur NIT Kurukshetra, India

Series: Advances in Surface Engineering and Tribology

Thermal Spray Coatings for High-Temperature Conditions provides an in-depth analysis of thermal spray coatings covering a wide range of types and applications in aerospace, automotive, and heavy-duty equipment maintenance. It considers the various thermal spray processes available, including HVOF, plasma spraying, and flame spraying. Focusing on the importance of surface preparation for thermal spray coatings, the book demonstrates the significance of establishing a strong bond between the substrate and the coating. This book is intended for researchers and graduate students studying surface engineering, thermodynamics, high-temperature materials, and wear resistance.

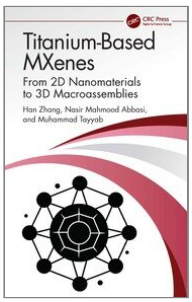
Titanium-Based MXenes

From 2D Nanomaterials to 3D Macroassemblies



Han Zhang , Nasir Mahmood Abbasi , Muhammad Tayyab

This book explores titanium-based MXenes, an emergent class of materials with a broad range of properties and potential applications. It introduces 3D MXene assemblies and compares their properties with other well-known two-dimensional materials like graphene and transition metal dichalcogenides. The first comprehensive book on the subject, this work is aimed at researchers in materials and electrical engineering and related disciplines.

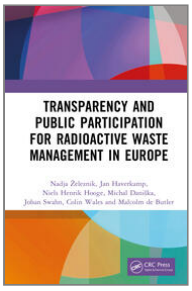
Transparency and Public Participation for Radioactive Waste Management in Europe



Nadja Železnik , Jan Haverkamp , Niels Henrik Hooge , Michal Daniška , Johan Swahn , Colin Wales , Malcolm de Butler

Transparency and Public Participation for Radioactive Waste Management in Europe investigates how the pillars of the Aarhus Convention and a broader understanding of transparency by Civil Society (CS) can be transposed into Radioactive Waste Management (RWM), particularly in the establishment of Radioactive Waste (RW) facilities in different national contexts. The book will interest nuclear energy policymakers, government employees, and radioactive waste management facility operators. It will also aid researchers and academics investigating public perception and facility siting considerations.

Advances in Composite and Advanced Materials Machining

Edited by S.P. Jani MLRITM, India, A. Senthil Kumar Sethu Institute of Technology, India, M. Adam Khan Kalasalingam Academy of Research and Education, India

Explaining how to effectively enhance machine life, optimise material and time cost, Advances in Composite and Advanced Materials Machining enables the reader to create the best possible end product. Focusing on common modern materials including novel composites, polymers, lightweight alloys and advanced materials the book also provides a step wise guide to effective machining of hard-to-cut material. It also covers trimming, milling, drilling, and other modern machining processes on fibre-reinforced polymer composites. Recent advances in drilling polymeric matrix composites, ecological machining, grinding technology, nano-machining and intelligent machining are all covered.

Dimensional Metrology

Han Haitjema KU Leuven, Belgium, Richard Leach University of Nottingham, United Kingdom

This book provides in-depth coverage of metrology principles for students, practicing engineers, technologists, and researchers. It presents and explains mathematical principles and treatments and practical applications of metrology, with numerous chapter exercises that link theory to the solution of practical problems. Computer-based classes of dimensional metrology are covered, such as CMM-technology, areal surface measurement, and X-ray computed tomography. Readers are shown how to perform and evaluate dimensional measurements and interpret the results. Measuring instruments and methods are explained so readers can determine which to use for specific applications.

Disease Prediction, Analysis, and Applications

Edited by Ajay Kumar Prof, Dept. of Mechanical Engineering, School of Engineering and Technology, JECRC Univ., India, Deepak Dembla , Seema Tinker , Surbhi Bhatia Khan King Faisal University, Saudi Arabia.

Series: Advancements in Intelligent and Sustainable Technologies and Systems

Deep learning has shown great potential in transforming various fields, including healthcare. With the abundance of healthcare data generated daily, there is a pressing need to develop efficient algorithms that can process and analyze this data to improve patient care and treatment outcomes. Written to be used as a comprehensive guide for healthcare professionals, researchers, and data analysts, this handbook is essential for those interested in using deep learning models to analyze and process healthcare data. It is also suitable for those with a basic understanding of machine learning and want to learn more about the latest advancements in deep learning in healthcare.

Practical Healthcare Statistics with Examples in Python and R

Michael Korvink

This book provides a clear and straightforward introduction to statistical methods in healthcare. This book emphasizes methods that are both effective and easy to communicate to clinical and non-technical stakeholders. Each technique presented in the book is accompanied by statistical notation described in plain English, as well as a self-contained example implemented in both Python and R. These examples help readers connect statistical methods to real healthcare scenarios without requiring extensive programming experience. This book is a practical resource for analysts, data scientists, health researchers, and others looking to make informed, data-driven decisions in healthcare.

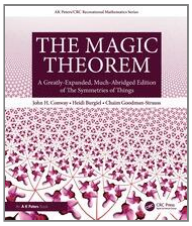
The Magic Theorem

A Greatly-Expanded, Much-Abridged Edition of The Symmetries of Things



John H. Conway , Heidi Burgiel , Chaim Goodman-Strauss

Series: AK Peters/CRC Recreational Mathematics Series

The Magic Theorem: a Greatly-Expanded, Much-Abridged Edition of The Symmetries of Things presents a wonderfully unique re-imagining of the classic book, The Symmetries of Things. Begun as a standard second edition by the original author team, it changed in scope following the passing of John Conway. This version of the book fulfils the original vision for the project: an elementary introduction to the orbifold signature notation and the theory behind it.

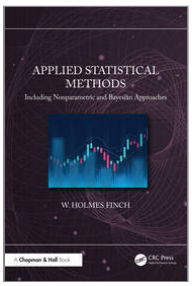
Applied Statistical Methods

Including Nonparametric and Bayesian Approaches



W. Holmes Finch Ball State University, USA

This book is designed to provide students, teachers, and researchers with a text that includes a full range of statistical methods available to address commonly encountered research problems. This book addresses this issue by presenting parametric, nonparametric, robust, and Bayesian techniques that are appropriate for research scenarios often encountered in practice and typically found in statistics courses. For each of these major topics, the standard parametric approach is presented, along with the assumptions underlying it and the methods used to assess the viability of these assumptions.

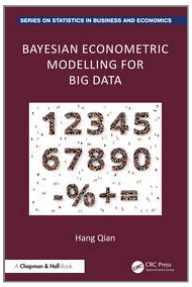
Bayesian Econometric Modelling for Big Data



Hang Qian Mathworks Inc, U.S.A

Series: Chapman and Hall/CRC Series on Statistics in Business and Economics

This book delves into scalable Bayesian statistical methods designed to tackle the challenges posed by big data. It explores a variety of divide-and-conquer and subsampling techniques, seamlessly integrating these scalable methods into a broad spectrum of econometric models. It is an essential resource for a diverse audience: graduate students seeking foundational knowledge in Bayesian econometric models, early-career statisticians eager to explore cutting-edge advancements in scalable Bayesian methods, data analysts struggling with out-of-memory challenges in large datasets, and statistical software users and developers striving to program with efficiency and numerical stability.

Scientific Research and Methodology

An Introduction to Quantitative Research and Statistics

Peter K. Dunn Associate Professor, Uni of Sushine Coast.

This textbook is designed for teaching quantitative research in the scientific, health and engineering disciplines at first-year undergraduate level, with an emphasis on statistics. It covers the research process, including asking research questions, research design, data collection, summarising data, analysis and communication. Statistical topics include numerical summary methods (such as means, odds ratios and identification of outliers), graphing (such as histograms, case-profile plots and scatterplots), confidence intervals and hypothesis testing. Almost every dataset used is a real dataset, and is available online or in an associated R package SRMData.

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Cryptography and Network Security Series

Introduction to Modern Cryptography is the most relied-upon source in the field. The book provides a mathematically rigorous yet accessible treatment of this fascinating subject. This is an updated edition of the most widely used introduction to cryptography textbook. The authors have kept this book as up-to-date and with the feedback from instructors and students alike, the presentation is refined, current, and accurate. The book's focus is on modern cryptography, which is distinguished from classical cryptography by its emphasis on definitions, precise assumptions, and rigorous proofs of security.

Series: River Publishers Series in Mathematical, Statistical and Computational Modelling for Engineering

This book is an excellent collection of various topics of mathematics which include numerical methods, integral equations, and differential equations. The book is recommended to readers to refresh their understanding of applied mathematics with theory and applications. It will be useful to students, researchers, and practitioners working in applied and computational mathematics.

Mathematics Anxiety How to Beat It

Brian Cafarella

Series: Textbooks in Mathematics

How do we conquer uncertainty, insecurity and anxiety over college mathematics? You can do it, and this book can help. The author provides various techniques, learning options, and pathways. Overcoming the barriers to success in mathematics can begin when preparing to get a positive start in college and lay the foundation for success.

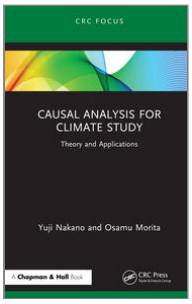
Causal Analysis for Climate Study

Theory and Applications



Yuji Nakano , Osamu Morita

This book offers the theory of causal analysis and its applications. The authors have developed this book in relation its applications to four climatological phenomena, to prove the theory of causal analysis in time sequential data analysis. This book is useful for researchers and graduate students of applied mathematics, physics, geophysics, meteorology, oceanography, engineering technology, and economics.

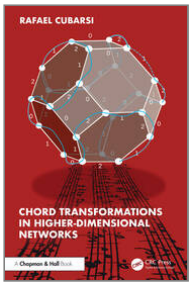
Chord Transformations in Higher-Dimensional Networks



Rafael Cubarsi

The book proposes an in-depth formal framework for generalized Tonnetze, takes an algebraic approach and studies systems of k-chords in n-TET scales derived from a given k-mode through mode permutations and chord root translations by combining key ideas of the neo-Riemannian Tonnetz theories with serial approaches to chordal structures. It provides the generalization of the neo-Riemannian P, R, L transformations via the notion of 'drift' operator and builds the formal framework covering many details, with special attention to trichords and tetrachods, which allow the geometric visualization of their structure.

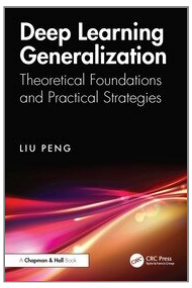
Deep Learning Generalization

Theoretical Foundations and Practical Strategies



Liu Peng

This book provides a comprehensive exploration of generalization in deep learning, focusing on both theoretical foundations and practical strategies. It delves deeply into how machine learning models, particularly deep neural networks, achieve robust performance on unseen data. For academics, the book serves as a definitive resource to solidify theoretical knowledge and explore cutting-edge research directions. Whether you're a beginner seeking foundational understanding or a practitioner exploring advanced methodologies, this book offers an indispensable guide to achieving robust generalization in deep learning.

Shakir Ali Aligarh Muslim Uni, India, Mohammad Ashraf Aligarh Muslim Uni, India, Vincenzo De Filippis Uni of Messina, Italy, Lahcen Oukhtite Mohamed Ben Abdellah Uni, Nadeem Ur Rehman Aligarh Muslim Uni, India

This monograph summarizes the findings and approaches that have significantly advanced the field in recent decades. In order to make this monograph as self-contained as possible, the first chapter provides a brief introduction to the topic. The following three chapters cover the various kinds of derivations in rings and algebras as well as the interactions between the structure of some classes of rings with involution and the behavior of the underlying derivations, generalized derivations, skew derivations, and b-generalized derivations, as well as their corresponding properties.

Dynamical Systems

Paths of Twelve Mathematicians and Physicists to Chaos and Its Applications

Edited by René Lozi , Safwan El Assad , Mohammed-Salah Abdelouahab

This book offers a captivating exploration of the intersection between mathematics, chaos theory, and dynamical systems through the personal journeys of twelve renowned mathematicians and physicists from China, Europe, Russia, and the USA. It will be of great value to students and researchers in mathematics, physics, engineering, and related disciplines seeking to deepen their understanding of chaotic dynamical systems and their applications. This book includes a revised introduction and a new chapter. The remaining chapters were originally published in Journal of Difference Equations and Applications.

Exact Methods for Nonlinear PDEs

Andrei D. Polyanin

Series: Advances in Applied Mathematics

The book describes and illustrates how to apply effective analytical methods to obtain exact solutions to nonlinear differential equations of mathematical physics and other partial differential equations. Nonlinear partial differential equations of the second and higher orders, including nonlinear equations of mathematical physics, are commonly encountered in various fields of mathematics, physics, mechanics, chemistry, and biology and in numerous applications. Finding a general solution to these equations is only possible in exceptional cases.

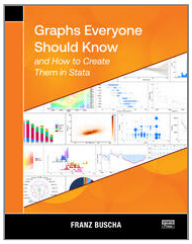
Graphs Everyone Should Know and How to Create Them in Stata



Franz Buscha

Franz Buscha's book, Graphs Everyone Should Know and How to Create Them in Stata, is written for anyone who uses Stata to make graphs. Beginners will find a complete collection of tools for effectively visualizing their data and results. Experienced Stata users are certain to learn some new tricks as well. The chapters of the book are organized into four main sections: graphs for univariate data, graphs for bivariate data, graphs for multivariate data, and special graphs. Each chapter introduces a type of graph, explains when and why it is useful for visualizing a particular kind of data, demonstrates how to create that graph using Stata, and shows a few variations.

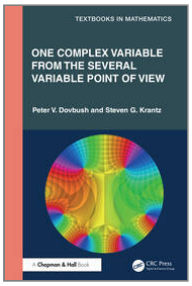
One Complex Variable from the Several Variable Point of View



Peter V. Dovbush , Steven G. Krantz Washington University, St. Louis, Missouri, USA

Series: Textbooks in Mathematics

Traditionally speaking, those who study the function theory of one complex variable spend little or no time thinking about several complex variables. Conversely, experts in the function theory of several complex variables do not consider one complex variable. One complex variable is the inspiration and testing ground for several complex variables, and several complex variables is the natural generalization of one complex variable. The authors' thesis here is these two subject areas have much in common. They can gain a lot by learning to communicate. These two fields are logically connected, and each can be used to explain and to put the other into context.

Visualization for Social Data Science

Roger Beecham University of Leeds, Yorkshire, UK

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Statistics in the Social and Behavioral Sciences

The book provides end-to-end skills in visual data analysis. It demonstrates how data graphics and modern statistics can be used in tandem to process, explore, model and communicate data-driven social science. It is packed with detailed data analysis examples, pushing you to do visual data analysis. As well as introducing, and demonstrating with code, a wide range of data visualizations for exploring patterns in data, the book shows how models can be integrated with graphics to emphasise important structure and de-emphasise spurious structure and the role of data graphics in scientific communication -- in building trust and integrity.

Advanced Analytics for Industry 4.0

Traditional Industries

Edited by Ali Soofastaei The University of Queensland, Australia

The evolution of modern technology has affected all the industry dimensions. Mother industries play a critical role in providing the precursor materials for other industries, and a small improvement in these can make a big change in other ones. This volume covers the analytics revolution in Industry 4.0 for the mother industries like mining, oil & gas, steel and so forth. It fousses on use of advanced analytics and artificial intelligence to improve the business decisions aimed to increase the quality and quantity of mother industries' products. It helps to design and implement their digital transformation strategies in these industries.

Andrew Cox , Mike Thelwall

Series: AI for Everything

The book nvestigates how AI will impact everyday knowledge discovery, understanding and creation. It considers both the positive benefits and the many informational and ethical challenges, including the impact on our wider information culture. It then weighs up the impact on scholarship, including the processes of scholarly communication. It explains the role of libraries and archives and how they could be enhanced using AI. It concludes by showing how governments can regulate AI to ensure social benefit and outlines what we as individuals need to know about AI.

Digital Twins

For Superior Clinical Decision Making

Nilmini Wickramasinghe , Nalika Ulapane , Amir Andargoli

Series: Analytics and AI for Healthcare

This book centres on the topic of digital twins for superior healthcare decision support, as access is enabled to large volumes of multi-dimensional data such as patient's electronic medical records, medical scans, and data. This book is written for the healthcare audience, professionals, physicians, medical administrators, managers, and the IT practitioner. It would also serve as a useful reference for the senior level undergraduate students and graduate students in health informatics and public health.

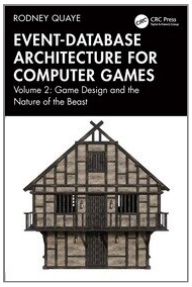
Event-Database Architecture for Computer Games

Volume 2, Game Design and the Nature of the Beast



Rodney Quaye

This book proposes the first explicit software architecture for game development, answering the problem of building modern computer games with little or no game design. In this volume, an example of a practical production process based on the software production process is explained, including examples of the game design, technical design, data design and tools design in that process. It will be of great interest to professional game developers involved in programming roles, such as Tools Programmers, UI Programmers, Gameplay Programmers and Engineers, as well as students studying game development and programming.

Event-Database Architecture for Computer Games

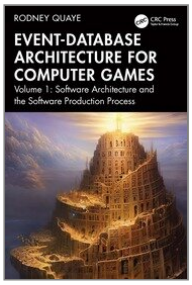
Volume 1, Software Architecture and the Software Production Process



Rodney Quaye

This book proposes the first explicit software architecture for game development, answering the problem of building modern computer games with little or no game design. An archetypal software production process, based on this architecture, is also introduced. It will be of great interest to professional game developers involved in programming roles, such as Tools Programmers, UI Programmers, Gameplay Programmers and Engineers, as well as students studying game development and programming.

Healing with Artificial Intelligence

Daniele Caligiore

Artificial Intelligence (AI) is transforming healthcare through innovations like diagnostic imaging, robotic surgery, digital twins, and the metaverse. As AI continues to shape the future of medical care, understanding its potential and challenges is essential for those interested in how technology affects health and well-being. The book also addresses critical ethical and legal concerns, including data security, decision-making, and transparency. The discussion covers how AI can enhance healthcare accessibility, efficiency, and patient outcomes, while raising awareness of risks such as depersonalization, data bias, and the possible replacement of medical staff.

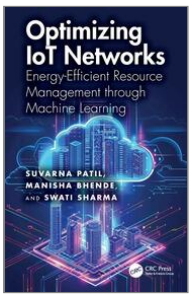
Optimizing IoT Networks

Energy-Efficient Resource Management through Machine Learning



Suvarna Patil , Manisha Bhende Dr D Y Patil Institute of Engineering Management and Research, Akurdi, Pune, Swati Sharma

The book examines the application of machine learning to enhance resource allocation in IoT networks, with a specific focus on energy efficiency. It discusses various algorithms, including neural networks and reinforcement learning, to optimize resource use and improve network performance. It addresses challenges such as the dynamic behaviour of IoT devices and the need for real-time decision-making. It discusses optimization methods used alongside machine learning to enhance resource allocation efficiency.

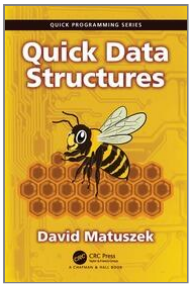
Quick Data Structures



David Matuszek

Series: Quick Programming

The most important thing you need to take your programming skills to the next level is a good grasp of fundamental data structures. This book introduces hash tables, trees and binary trees, priority queues, directed and undirected graphs, and all other data structures to help turn you into an excellent programmer. It provides an understanding of the fundamental building blocks of data structures and describes the construction and use of all structures. The book is ideal for software developers, computer science students, and anyone looking to deepen their understanding of how data structures impact the performance and clarity of their programs.

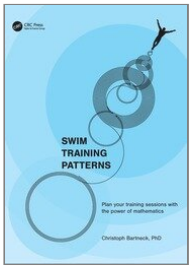
SWIM TRAINING PATTERNS

Plan your Training Sessions with the Power of Mathematics



Christoph Bartneck University of Canterbury, New Zealand

This pioneering book integrates mathematics into swim training to create an intellectual journey into patterns. Exercise your body and mind with over 35 training programs derived from mathematical ideas. Dive into the history of mathematics and computer science to discover structures that will enrich your exercise routine. You don't need prior knowledge of mathematics or programming, just a curious mindset and the desire to swim interesting programs. This book will gently introduce you to the tools and knowledge you need to create programmatic training sessions.

The AI-Centered Enterprise

Reshaping Organizations with Context Aware AI

Natarajan Balasubramanian , Ram Bala , Amit Joshi

Most organizations are adding AI tools to their existing systems without rethinking their overall processes. However, to fully unlock the potential of AI, companies will eventually need to build their operations around it. Over time, businesses will transform into AI-Centered Enterprises (ACEs), using this advanced technology to create new value in internal marketplaces. Understanding this transformation requires a basic understanding of how businesses work. It also means recognizing the limits of AI and knowing where human expertise is still essential. This book offers that knowledge, along with real-life examples and practical tips to help businesses navigate this transformation.

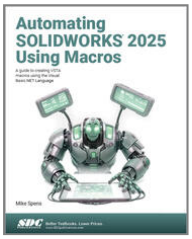
Automating SOLIDWORKS 2025 Using Macros

A guide to creating VSTA macros using the Visual Basic.NET Language



Mike Spens

Automating SOLIDWORKS 2025 Using Macros is designed as a tutorial to help beginner to intermediate programmers develop macros for SOLIDWORKS. Experience with programming isn't required. The book starts with a chapter on the fundamentals of Visual Basic.NET and the SOLIDWORKS API to make the learning process easier for beginners. The rest of the book introduces you to developing macros using the SOLIDWORKS API. The book concludes with a chapter dedicated to some of the author's favorite source code for you to use as the basis for typical automation procedures.

Beginner's Guide to SOLIDWORKS 2025 - Level I

Parts, Assemblies, Drawings, SOLIDWORKS Visualize and SimulationXpress

Alejandro Reyes

This book is intended to help new users learn the basic concepts of SOLIDWORKS and good solid modeling techniques in an easy to follow guide that includes video instruction. It is a great starting point for those new to SOLIDWORKS or as a teaching aid in classroom training to become familiar with the software's interface, basic commands and strategies as users complete a series of models while learning different ways to accomplish a particular task. The book focuses on the processes to complete the modeling of a part, instead of focusing on individual software commands or operations, which are generally simple enough to learn.

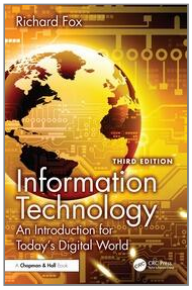
3RD EDITION

Information Technology

An Introduction for Today's Digital World



Richard Fox Northern Kentucky University, Highland Heights, USA

This book presents an introduction to the field of information technology suitable for any student of an IT-related field or IT professional. Coverage includes such IT topics as IT careers, computer hardware, software, network protocols, binary numbers and Boolean logic, information security, and a look at both Windows and Linux. Many of these topics are covered in depth with numerous examples presented throughout the text. New to this edition are chapters on new trends in technology, including block chain, quantum computing and artificial intelligence, and the negative impact of computer usage, including how computer usage impacts our health, E-waste and concerns over Internet usage.

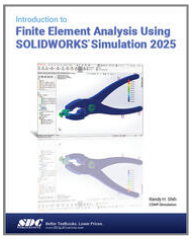
Introduction to Finite Element Analysis Using SOLIDWORKS Simulation 2025



Randy H. Shih

The primary goal of Introduction to Finite Element Analysis Using SOLIDWORKS Simulation 2025 is to introduce the aspects of Finite Element Analysis (FEA) that are important to engineers and designers. Theoretical aspects of FEA are also introduced as they are needed to help better understand the operation. The primary emphasis of the text is placed on the practical concepts and procedures needed to use SOLIDWORKS Simulation in performing Linear Static Stress Analysis and basic Modal Analysis.

Robotics

From Theory to Practice

Chao Chen Monash University, Wesley Au Department of Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering, Monash University, Shao Liu

This textbook introduces robotic theories and technologies to audiences, including university students, professionals with engineering backgrounds, and also high school students with interests in building their own robots. We aim to bridge the gap between classic theories and real-world applications of robotic manipulators, which, to date, have far exceeded the domain of conventional industry. A valuable resource to broad readers, including those who have a limited background in general engineering and wish to explore non-conventional applications of robotic manipulators.

SketchUp 2024 for Interior Designers

Studio Companion

Maria Delgado , Daniel John Stine

SketchUp for Interior Designers provides a focused approach to help interior designers master the essential skills needed to confidently use SketchUp 2024 in their projects. This book takes you through step-by-step tutorials, transforming basic 2D line work into fully realized 3D models of interior spaces. Tailored for both independent learners and classroom settings, this guide provides a solid foundation in SketchUp essentials while also introducing you to advanced features that will enhance your design process.

SOLIDWORKS 2025 Basic Tools

Getting Started with Parts, Assemblies and Drawings

Paul Tran

SOLIDWORKS 2025 Basic Tools is the first book in a three part series. It introduces new users to the SOLIDWORKS interface, SOLIDWORKS tools and basic modeling techniques. It provides you with a strong understanding of SOLIDWORKS and covers the creation of parts, assemblies and drawings. Every lesson and exercise in this book was created based on real world projects. Each of these projects has been broken down and developed into easy and comprehensible steps. This book is for the beginner who is not familiar with the SOLIDWORKS program and its add ins.

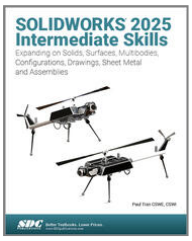
SOLIDWORKS 2025 Intermediate Skills

Expanding on Solids, Surfaces, Multibodies, Configurations, Drawings, Sheet Metal and Assemblies



Paul Tran

SOLIDWORKS 2025 Intermediate Skills is part of a three part series which builds on the SOLIDWORKS features learned in SOLIDWORKS 2025 Basic Tools. SOLIDWORKS 2025 Intermediate Skills broadens your SOLIDWORKS knowledge base by covering such features as surveys, lofts and boundaries, the use of multibodies, generating engineering drawings and other SOLIDWORKS functions that are critical for the effective use of this powerful software. This book helps prepare you for the advanced features of SOLIDWORKS which are covered in SOLIDWORKS Advanced Techniques. It uses a step by step tutorial approach with real world projects.

SOLIDWORKS 2025 Tutorial

A Step-by-Step Project Based Approach Utilizing 3D Modeling

David C. Planchard

Get ready to take your 3D CAD skills to the next level with SOLIDWORKS 2025 Tutorial. Whether you're a student, designer, engineer, or professional who's new to SOLIDWORKS, this book is the ultimate guide to mastering SOLIDWORKS' impressive capabilities. And if you're preparing for the Certified SOLIDWORKS Associate - Mechanical Design (CSWA) exam, you're in luck, because this book has got you covered. Featuring a project-based learning approach and step-by-step instructions, the first six chapters cover the User Interface, CommandManager, Document and System properties, and beyond, with exploration of everything from design intent.

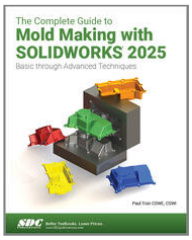
The Complete Guide to Mold Making with SOLIDWORKS 2025

Basic through Advanced Techniques



Paul Tran

The Complete Guide to Mold Making with SOLIDWORKS 2025 is a quick paced book written to provide experienced SOLIDWORKS users with in-depth knowledge of the mold tools provided by SOLIDWORKS. Throughout this book you will learn the procedures necessary for using these tools to create and analyze effective mold designs. This book is for users already familiar with SOLIDWORKS who want to expand their knowledge of mold design. To get the most out of this mold design book, it is strongly recommended that you have completed all the lessons in the SOLIDWORKS Advanced Techniques book or have comparable knowledge.

Advanced Digital Technologies in Financial and Business Management

Unleashing the Power of Artificial Intelligence, Machine Learning, Blockchain, and the Internet of Things

Edited by Jyoti Batra Arora , Nitish Pathak , Neelam Sharma

Explores emerging technologies for the development of business and finance sectors and to strengthen economic growth. It discusses the amalgamation of techniques and trends in the financial and business technology to facilitate the efficiency and creation of new and innovative business and finance management applications. It covers the state-of-the-art technologies such as artificial intelligence and big data analytics in fintech and finance, blockchain technology in the insurance industry, the use of AI and data science in tax administration, the growing use of 6G in industrial automation, quantum machine learning in finance, and more.

Advances in AI for Cloud, Edge, and Mobile Computing Applications

Edited by Shrikaant Kulkarni , P. William

Presents advances in AI applications, highlighting advances in edge, cloud, and mobile computing and how they can be integrated with advanced AI for enhancing services, privacy, and security. It explores algorithms, architectures, reliable AI-powered IoTs, and other aspects in networking and applications in diverse frontiers. It covers topics like the use of anomaly detection in AI in a cloud-fuzzy environment, holistic resource management based on AI and sustainable cloud computing, AI for enhanced privacy and security in smart environments, AI in wireless sensor networks, and more.

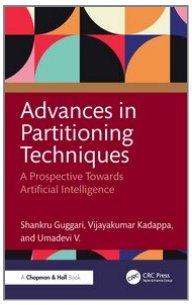
Advances in Partitioning Techniques

A Prospective towards Artificial Intelligence



Shankru Guggari , Umadevi V , Vijayakumar Kadappa

The book discusses various partitioning strategies tailored for traditional machine learning algorithms. It examines how data can be divided efficiently to enhance the performance and scalability of classic Machine Learning models. By bridging the gap between theory and practical applications, the book intends to equip researchers, practitioners, and students with invaluable insights into harnessing partitioning for optimizing AI-driven systems, data processing, and problem-solving strategies. This book is a vital resource, illuminating the path towards unlocking the full potential of partitioning in shaping the future of AI technologies.

Advances in the Internet of Things

Challenges, Solutions, and Emerging Technologies

Edited by Qusay Hassan

Many reports estimate that in 2024, the number of IoT devices exceeded 18 billion worldwide, with predictions to reach 40 billion by 2033. Despite primarily being consumer devices, a growing number of them will find use in industrial and enterprise applications. The main objective of this book is to capture the state-of-the-art in IoT and cover some of its challenges, solutions, and emerging technologies. The book is peer-reviewed and serves as a reference for researchers, academics, practitioners, implementers, and graduate-level students.

AI-Driven Finance in the VUCA World

Edited by Ashutosh Yadav , Mansaf Alam Jamia Millia Islamia University, New Delhi, Kiran Chaudhary Shivaji College, University of Delhi

In today's world, characterized by volatility, uncertainty, complexity, and ambiguity (VUCA), traditional finance is no longer sufficient to meet the challenges of fast-paced and interconnected global markets. To thrive in this dynamic environment, financial institutions, professionals, and policymakers are increasingly turning to artificial intelligence (AI), which has shown promise lately. The book explores this intersection, offering a comprehensive look at how AI is becoming ever more critical in the financial industry. It provides real-world case studies, practical applications, and ethical considerations, making this book a guide for professionals, researchers, and students.

Applied Soft Computing Techniques

Theoretical Principles and Practical Applications

Edited by Samarjeet Borah , Ratna Raja Kumar Jambi , Sharifah Sakinah Syed Ahmad , Mahendra Prabhakar Deore

Explores use of applied soft computing techniques in biomedical applications, communication technologies, data analytics and applications, image processing, and natural language processing. It explores soft computing techniques for cancer data analysis, depression and mental health analysis, heart disease detection, etc. It discusses their use in communication systems, looking at graphs, design processes, and mapping techniques, drone technology, etc. It details how soft computing methodologies can assist in tackling the obstacles associated with signal processing, network optimization, quality of service, and beyond.

Edited by Luiz Vianna Sobrinho , Leandro Modolo The State University of Campinas, Brazil, Maíra Araújo de Santana Uni of Pernambuco, Brazil, Giselle Machado Magalhães Moreno , Fabiano Tonaco Borges , Wellington Pinheiro dos Santos Universidade Federal de Pernambuco, Brazil

This book explores the ethical challenges of the fourth industrial revolution—mass unemployment, new colonialism, and pervasive surveillance-while acknowledging its benefits to productivity and quality of life. It unfolds bioethical perspectives on AI's impact, critically integrating both northern and southern epistemologies. Covering topics from aging to surveillance, it offers universal bioethical guidelines for professionals concerned about AI's impact, aiming to promote ethical, explainable AI that benefits life on earth.

Computational Intelligence in Healthcare Law

AI for Ethical Governance and Regulatory Challenges

Edited by Bhupinder Singh , Christian Kaunert University of South Wales, UK, Balamurugan Balusamy Shiv Nadar Uni., Rajesh Kumar Dhanaraj Galgotias Uni.

Series: High-Performance Computing for Smart Healthcare

This book explores the intersection of legal frameworks, healthcare innovation, and computational intelligence, shedding light on how emerging technologies like AI and ML are reshaping the medical landscape. It presents real life challenges such as patient privacy, data security, and compliance issues in smart healthcare by engaging into associated ethical and regulatory implications. Comprising the concepts of predictive analytics, regulatory compliance algorithms, and legal decision-making processes, this book offers a roadmap for stakeholders to navigate the evolving landscape of healthcare innovation responsibly and ethically.

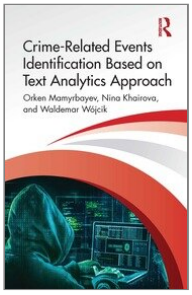
Crime-Related Events Identification Based on Text Analytics Approach



Orken Mamyrbayev Ministry of Educ. and Science, Almaty, Kazachstan, Nina Khairova , Waldemar Wójcik

As modern society is extremely dependent on the Internet, its openness and global nature creates opportunities both for criminals, who can use the available information for criminal purposes, and for law enforcement officials. Police officers, in turn, can deal with the preventive processing of data from the Internet in order to prevent crimes. Crime-Related Events Identification Based on Text Analytics Approach describes the possibilities of extracting crime-related facts from semi-structured information from various Internet sources, so that crime can be combatted. The book is aimed at police officers and IT-professionals working in online investigations.

Explainable AI and Blockchain for Secure and Agile Supply Chains

Enhancing Transparency, Traceability, and Accountability

Edited by Ajay Kumar Sharma , Narasimha Rao Vajjhala , Rakshit Kothari , Rajasekhara Mouly Potluri Kazakh British Tech. Univ., Kazakhstan

This book examines the transformative potential of integrating Explainable Artificial Intelligence (XAI) and blockchain technology in modern supply chain management. It provides insights into leveraging XAI to demystify AI decision-making and blockchain to ensure data security and decentralized accountability. Key topics include sustainable practices, smart contract automation, and human-centric approaches to enhancing trust and collaboration among stakeholders. It is as a valuable resource for academics, industry leaders, and policymakers seeking to harness cutting-edge technologies for building resilient and transparent supply chains.

Handbook of Global Philosophies on AI Ethics

Towards Sustainable Futures

Edited by Naresh Singh , Ram B. Ramachandran

This book offers an exploration of the diverse perspectives shaping the future of Artificial Intelligence (AI), highlighting the influence of non-Western thinking in its development. Leading voices from around the globe reimagine AI systems that are fair, ethical, and inclusive. It examines how religious, cultural, and social perspectives shape AI's application in industries such as finance, education, and the military, while underscoring the importance of establishing robust ethical guardrails. Whether you're a curious reader, a policy maker, a scholar, or a tech innovator, this is your guide to understanding how different cultural perspectives can redefine AI ethics.

This book contains a prolific compilation of research papers presented at the International Conference on Intelligent Computing and Communication Techniques (ICICCT 2024). It provides in-depth coverage of artificial intelligence, blockchain, and their role in enhancing smart living and security, with a focus on intelligent computing. The papers discuss the role of AI and blockchain in banking, healthcare, navigation, and communication, while also analyzing the challenges and opportunities they represent. This volume is designed for those seeking to engage with current research on artificial intelligence, secure transactions, real-time monitoring, and security.

Learning with Generative Artificial Intelligence

What Empirical Studies Tell Us

Edited by Yizhou Fan

This book delves into the core of education's digital transformation, presenting a thorough and empirical examination of Generative Artificial Intelligence (GenAI)'s impact, beyond the theoretical and fragmented insights prevalent in current discourse. Drawing from peer-reviewed and extensive empirical studies, the contributors aim to unveil the multifaceted effects of GenAI (particularly ChatGPT) on learning. The book will serve as a foundational reference for educators seeking innovative learning and teaching methods, researchers and technologists who seek to push the boundaries of educational technology and related areas.

Leveraging Artificial Intelligence in Cloud, Edge, Fog and Mobile Computing

Edited by Shrikaant Kulkarni Victorian Institute of Technology, Melbourne, Australia, P. William , Vijaya Prakash , Jaiprakash Narain Dwivedi

Series: Advances in Computational Collective Intelligence

This book examines harnessing the potential of AI in cloud, edge and mobile computing. It covers devices, architecture, networking in cloud and edge environments in isolation as well as by using both in tandem. Focusing on hardware and software requirements in the changing scenario on incorporation of edge AI in cloud, edge and mobile computing, it presents ways to enhance response time, stability, agility, computational power, lowering latency and providing rapid, customer-friendly service.

Machine Translation and Translation Theory

Omri Asscher

Focused on both Neural Machine Translation tools, such as Google Translate, and generative AI tools, such as ChatGPT, Omri Asscher pursues the juncture between machine translation and the diverse, often competing, frameworks of human translation theory. He shines a light on the subtleties of the intersection between the two: the places where machine translation corresponds well with the ideas that have been developed on human translation throughout the years, and the places where machine translation seems to challenge translation theory, and perhaps even require that we rethink some of its basic assumptions.

Metaverse and Blockchain Use Cases and Applications

Edited by Dileep Kumar Murala , Sandeep Panda ICFAI Foundation for Higher Education, India, Sujata Priyambada Dash

Series: Advances in Computational Collective Intelligence

This book analyzes blockchain in the metaverse ecosystem and its future, starting with clear definitions of AI, blockchain, and metaverse. It details the origins of Bitcoin, Ethereum, and NFTs, explores successful blockchain implementations, and examines regulatory practices. The book discusses the evolution of the metaverse and participation strategies. Key topics include government involvement, the potential of blockchain to compete with major tech platforms, and the fundamentals of cryptocurrency. It offers insights on NFTs, virtual real estate investment, trending metaverse initiatives, and emerging security concerns from the convergence of blockchain, Web3, and the metaverse.

Multimedia Security

Tools, Techniques, and Applications

Edited by Bhaskar Mondal , Shyam Singh Rajput

Series: AAP Research Notes on Optimization and Decision Making Theories

Focuses on state-of-the-art methods and tools such as data encryption, steganography, watermarking, authentication, data hiding, biometric template security, quantum-based video cryptosystems, pansharpening, and digital signatures to help in protecting the unauthorized access/alteration of multimedia over the Internet and cloud. This book also covers the application of machine learning, blockchain, and AI-based methods for multimedia security. Mathematical models used in data hiding and data evaluation techniques are discussed thoroughly to provide a good understanding of the principles of multimedia security.

Safety Assurance under Uncertainties

From Software to Cyber-Physical/Machine Learning Systems

Edited by Ichiro Hasuo National Institute of Informatics, Japan, Fuyuki Ishikawa National Institute of Informatics, Japan

Modern software systems operate under an unprecedented degree of uncertainties, making them hard to specify, model, test, analyze, and verify. Safety assurance of such systems requires efforts that unite different disciplines such as formal methods, software science, software engineering, control theory, machine learning. The book is the first to give a comprehensive overview of such united efforts. Driven by automated driving systems as a leading example, the book describes high-level intuitions of a variety of techniques from black-box testing to contract-based formal verification. It also comes with plenty of pointers to details of technical developments.

Swarm Intelligence

Theory and Applications in Fog Computing, Beyond 5G Networks, and Information Security

Edited by V. Dinesh Reddy SRM University, India, Md Muzakkir Hussain SRM Uni, India, Priyanka Singh SRM Uni, India

This book provides an overview of the theory and practical applications of swarm intelligence in fog computing, beyond 5G networks, and information security. It provides practical techniques such as computation offloading, task scheduling, resource allocation, wireless caching, joint resource optimization, energy management, UAV placement, and intelligent routing. It also discusses the applications of swarm intelligence in optimizing parameters for information transmission, data encryption, and secure transmission in edge networks, multi-cloud systems, and beyond 5G networks.

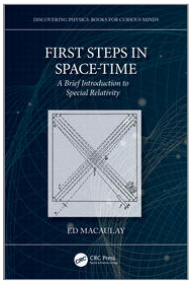
First Steps in Space-Time

A Brief Introduction to Special Relativity



Ed Macaulay

Series: Discovering Physics

This book provides an accessible, authentic, and readable introduction to the theory of special relativity. The academic level of the book builds only on skills that would be covered in a GCSE maths course, such as Pythagoras's theorem and rearranging equations, and no prior knowledge of relativity (or physics) is assumed. It allows the reader to discover and appreciate that relativity is not an intractable esoteric curiosity, but a beautiful theory that profoundly shaped the course of history and our interpretation of our day-to-day lives. It is ideal for readers with an interest in physics and a little working knowledge of maths, who have studied mathematics at A-level standard.

Plant Secondary Metabolites Chemistry and Role

A Biosynthetic and Mechanistic Approach

Edited by Malik Saadullah Government College University Faisalabad

For centuries the vast and versatile pharmacological effects of medicinal plants constituents have played vital roles in biological, economic, social, spiritual, cultural and health wellbeing. This unique text establishes a groundwork in natural product chemistry and phytochemistry by considering biosynthesis and mechanistic way. There is abundant evidence showing that medicinal plants and their secondary metabolites are useful in preventing different ailments and this book discusses this as well as the mechanisms, amelioration and biosynthesis. It helps readers to understand computational, toxicological, cosmetic and nutraceutical aspects of plant secondary metabolites.

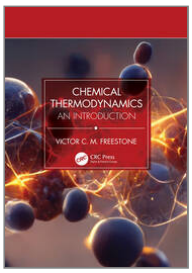
Chemical Thermodynamics

An Introduction



Victor CM Freestone

Thermodynamics can never be made easy, but with the right approach and a consistent use of scientific terms it can be made less opaque, and it can give a person an insight into how science explains why things happen the way they do. The approach adopted in this book will give readers a better understanding of how science works together with its limitations. Thermodynamics is a subject which (apart from quantum mechanics) probably causes most confusion and bewilderment amongst scientists. No one can pretend that the subject is easy, but it can be made accessible by a rigorous definition of concepts and ensuring that a consistency of use of these definitions is maintained.

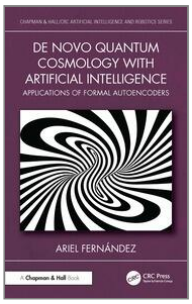
De Novo Quantum Cosmology with Artificial Intelligence

Applications of Formal Autoencoders



Ariel Fernández

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Artificial Intelligence and Robotics Series

Experiments attempting to recreate the big bang and measurements in deep space point to the tantalizing possibility that our universe may be the relic of something simple, powerful and highly symmetric. The evidence suggests an entity where matter and energy cannot be told apart and the four fundamental forces are unified into one. Empowered by artificial intelligence this book seeks to unravel the mystery as it searches for an encompassing physical picture where it all falls into place at the aftermath of creation from a quantum void.

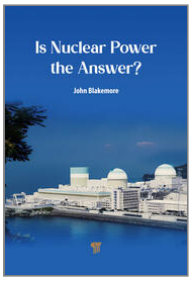
Is Nuclear Power the Answer?



John Blakemore

This book is designed to recalibrate the discussion on whether nuclear power is the best option for energy generation in the future. It emphasizes the significant differences in power generation between renewables, specifically photovoltaics and wind power and points out the advantages and disadvantages of both. This book is designed to recalibrate the discussion on whether nuclear power is the best option for energy generation in the future. It highlights the renewable experiment being emphasized in Australia and compares this approach with that adopted by the rest of the world.

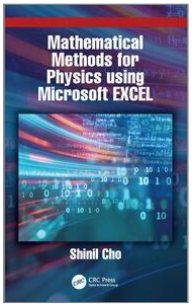
Mathematical Methods for Physics using Microsoft EXCEL



Shinil Cho

In Mathematical Methods for Physics using Microsoft EXCEL, readers will investigate topics from classical to quantum mechanics, which are often omitted from the course work. Some of these topics include rocket propulsion, Rutherford scattering, and boundary value problems and associated special functions as orthonormal bases. Recent topics such as Lagrange point of the James Webb Space Telescope, and information entropy and H-function are also discussed and analysed. Additional interdisciplinary topics, such as self-avoiding random walk for polymer length are also described. This book will allow readers to reproduce and data and experiments often found in Physics textbooks.

Nano-Dimensional Zinc Oxide for Energy Harvesting, Sensing, and Environmental Remediation

Edited by Nupur Aggarwal Chandigarh University, India, Naveen Kumar Chandigarh University, India, Shivani Singla Chandigarh University, India

Zinc oxide (ZnO) nanostructures have gained significant attention in recent years due to their applications in various fields. The book provides a comprehensive overview of the recent advances in ZnO-based nanostructures for energy harvesting, sensing, and environmental remediation applications. It covers advanced aspects of application-based research on ZnO nanostructures. The book also includes biosynthesized ZnO nanostructures and their role in targeted drug delivery.

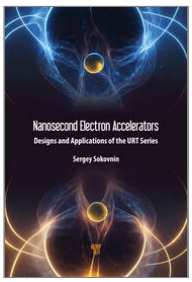
Nanosecond Electron Accelerators

Designs and Applications of the URT Series



Sergey Sokovnin

This book describes the principles and design of repetitive nanosecond electron accelerators, as well as the development technologies and specific radiation technologies based on them. It discusses the application of the created accelerators in various branches of science and technology, in particular, for radiation sterilization and disinfection of medical and food products, correction of defects in solids, and radiation-chemical technologies. The book also covers the issues encountered in measuring the parameters of electron beams, monitoring parameters, and automating the control of accelerators.

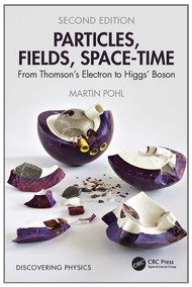
2ND EDITION

Particles, Fields, Space-Time

From Thomson's Electron to Higgs' Boson



Martin Pohl CERN, Geneva

Series: Discovering Physics

Particles, Fields, Space-Time: From Thomson's Electron to Higgs' Boson explores the concepts, ideas, and experimental results that brought us from the discovery of the first elementary particle in the end of the 19th century to the completion of the Standard Model of particle physics in the early 21st century. For this second edition, the complete text has been thoroughly revised. A description of plans for new accelerator facilities has been added, as well as new results on cosmic ray physics, dark matter and dark energy. The usage of natural units has been abandoned in favour of SI units throughout the text.

Polymers and Functional Materials for a Cleaner Environment and Human Health

Sustainable Technologies and New Research

Edited by Ruby Varghese , Ann Rose Abraham , Shrikaant Kulkarni , A. K. Haghi

This new volume offers an exploration of integrating polymers and functional materials for a cleaner environment and for human health by using state-of-the-art technologies and new research. It covers multidisciplinary sustainability topics with a focus on materials science applications in health and to help mitigate the current environmental crises. This volume links theory and practice and provides up-to-date technical information on sustainable technologies. It delves into a wide array of crucial topics to provide valuable insight into complex sustainable development methods.

Digital Libraries Across Continents

Edited by Le Yang , Alicia Salaz

Series: Routledge Guides to Practice in Libraries, Archives and Information Science

Digital Libraries Across Continents illustrates how digital librarianship practitioners and scholars digitize, exhibit, and preserve their cultural heritage, and how these practices may be influenced by the policy, economic, and sociocultural environments in which they are developed. Digital Libraries Across Continents provides a wide-ranging examination of issues in cross-border digital library contexts. It will be essential reading for library practitioners, as well as information scientists and educators.

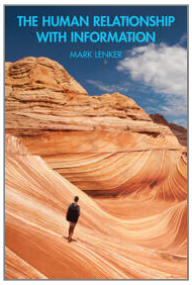
The Human Relationship with Information



Mark Lenker University of Nevada Las Vegas, USA.

The Human Relationship with Information uses a philosophical lens to explore questions about the fundamental place of information in a fulfilling human life. The Human Relationship with Information will inspire librarians and other educators to take a second look at their work and think more deeply and sincerely about how information shapes the lives of the people they serve. It will be essential reading for anyone thinking about the ways that information and libraries enrich - and sometimes complicate - people's quality of life.

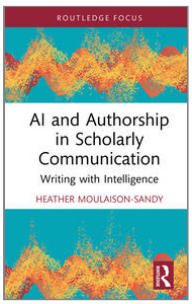
AI and Authorship in Scholarly Communication

Writing with Intelligence



Heather Moulaison-Sandy

AI and Authorship in Scholarly Communication explores the role of Artificial Intelligence (AI) as it pertains to scholarly research and writing. AI and Authorship in Scholarly Communication will be of great interest to scholars, students, and practitioners and will be particularly useful to those studying AI or authorship from a library and information science (LIS) perspective. Researchers or practitioners working in higher education or with learning technologies will also find much to interest them within the pages of the book.

Food in Nineteenth-Century British History

Urbanisation and Dietary Change

Edited by Ian Miller

Series: Nineteenth-Century Science, Technology and Medicine: Sources and Documents

In the long nineteenth century, significant developments occurred in science, technology and medicine which transformed food production and consumption. Coupled with this was the impact of the Industrial and Agricultural Revolutions. Developments in agricultural production meant that the rapidly growing British population conglomerated around urban areas could be fed. However, worsening public health conditions in British towns and cities, combined with social problems such as poverty, meant that nutritional and dietary health declined. This volume explores the foods that were eaten in nineteenth-century Britain.

Food in Nineteenth-Century British History

Volume II: Diet and Health

Series: Nineteenth-Century Science, Technology and Medicine: Sources and Documents

The rapid transition to modern urban life that accompanied the Industrial Revolution placed serious demands on Britain's food supply. Industrialisation created tremendous wealth, but urbanisation and rapid population growth prompted deep-rooted concerns about whether Britain's agricultural sector was fit for the job of feeding so many hungry mouths. Public health advocates looked upon the expanding towns and cities and concluded that urbanisation was the root cause of poor dietary health, a problem afflicting all classes and upheld the new British diet as a major part of the problem. This volume explores these interwoven themes of industrialisation, urbanisation and dietary health.

The Making of the Modern British Diet

Edited by Derek Oddy, Derek Miller

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Food and Diet

Food is the physiological basis of man's existence but is also an expression of a society's culture and may play many roles other than physiological in terms of both personal and group relationships. Originally published in 1976, The Making of the Modern British Diet focusses on the role of food during industrialisation and urbanisation in Britain. Part One contains a series of commodity studies covering bread, cereals, biscuits, meat, milk, tea and cocoa. The emphasis in Part Two is predominantly on consumption. Part Three provides a nutritional evaluation which is an entirely new approach in an historical work.

Diet and Health in Modern Britain

Edited by Derek J. Oddy , Derek S. Miller

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Food and Diet

Originally published in 1985, this book examines the changes in diet and health in Britain during the rapid social development of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. It is particularly concerned with the ways in which the problems of urban life were ameliorated. How was infant and child mortality reduced? How did family life go on in conditions where income was low and sometimes intermittent, where protected water supplies and proper sanitation were not available, and where food preservation and food technology were still limited? The contributors to this book were historians and nutritionists and this gives a strong interdisciplinary flavour to the volume.

Research Methods for Elite Studies

Edited by George Moyser , Margaret Wagstaffe

Series: Contemporary Social Research

Elites are crucial groups of people in all but the very simplest societies. But who exactly are they, and how does one study them? In sharp contrast to the ordinary citizenry, the methodology for the study of elites was contentious and under-developed at the time. Originally published in 1987, Research Methods for Elite Studies provided a wide-ranging survey of the techniques, problems, issues and practicalities of elite research. These are explored through case studies conducted by a range of experts, all personally involved in the field of elite research about which they write. Methodology here is not divorced from substance, but vividly set in its context by the researchers.

Food Aid Reconsidered

Assessing the Impact on Third World Countries

Edited by Edward Clay Overseas Development Institute, UK, Olav Stokke

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Food and Diet

Food aid continues to be a high profile, and perhaps the most controversial form of aid. This title, first published in 1991, which focuses on recent experience, especially in Sub-Saharan Africa, provided a stocktaking on the state of the debate and the contribution that economics and other social sciences had made to resolving many of the controversies surrounding food aid. These issues include the gap between the potential and actual contribution of food aid on food security and agricultural production in developing countries, European dairy aid to India and possible alternatives to exporting food from developed countries for providing humanitarian assistance to hungry people.

The Politics of Food

George Darling

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Food and Diet

Originally published in 1941, a popular discussion on Food Policy was very welcome at a time when it had become a personal problem for every housewife. It was the purpose of this book to bring home to the general public the nature of the problem. The author first exposes capitalism's failure to feed the people adequately either in peace or war. He traces the failure to its root cause, and points out that this nation had never had a food policy. Finally, he shows how policy could be re-cast on a cooperative basis to meet the conditions resulting from the war. Today it can be read in its historical context.

Food Adulteration and How to Beat It

The London Food Commission

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Food and Diet

'All natural: no artificial colours or flavours'. This was an increasingly familiar claim made for the food we bought in the late 1980s. But what about the other ingredients? Additives are only one form of adulteration. Nitrates, excess water, pesticide residues, too much fat, and the newest of them all food irradiation, are some of the others. The questions they pose for all of us are inescapable, as is the overall issue of poor-quality food dressed up to be what it is not. In this book, originally publshed in 1988, the London Food Commission, Britain's independent food watchdog, spells out the dangers, and suggests solutions.

The Earth Can Feed Us

Hugo Osvald

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Food and Diet

First published in 1966, the urgent task confronting our generation – to produce food in sufficient quantity and of adequate quality for the world's increasing population – may have appeared difficult to solve. Some regarded it as impossible, visualising a world in which the population would increase quicker even than scientific man could feed it and seeing a solution only in wholesale birth control. To these Hugo Osvald, a Scandinavian nutrition expert, did not belong. He surveys all the means, scientific and agricultural at our disposal at the time and reveals that, by their rapid development, enough food can be produced for a world population several times larger than at present.

Keeping Children Healthy

The Role of Mothers and Professionals

Berry Mayall

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Food and Diet

In Britain, class differences in children's health remain wide, and it is often assumed that an important contributory factor is class differences in the attitudes and behaviours of mothers. First published in 1986, Keeping Children Healthy draws on an empirical study to throw light on mothers' actual health care of their young children and to consider what differences, if any, there are between groups of mothers. The book is about how women care for their children's health: what they think matters, what they actually do, and what affects their actions. Throughout, mothers' perspectives are considered in the light of the social and material context of their family lives.

Development and the Problems of Village Nutrition

Sue Schofield

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Food and Diet

First published in 1979, this title was concerned with the development of micro-level approaches to nutrition problem identification. The author believed that malnourishment could only really be examined, analysed and understood at the micro level where the whole range of factors affecting nutrition are displayed, and individual, community and regional problems could be diagnosed to provide the basis for more meaningful action and plans. The village-oriented approach to micro-level nutrition problems was initiated as a new approach to the study of development problems by the Village Studies Programme. The research on which this book is based was conducted as part of the programme.

Contemporary Social Research

7 Volume Set

Various

Series: Contemporary Social Research

This 7-volume set, first published between 1981 and 1990, forms part of the original Contemporary Social Research series. The structure of the social sciences combines two separate elements, theory and empirical evidence. Both are necessary for successful social understanding; one without the other is barren. This series is concerned with the means by which this structure is maintained and kept standing solid and upright, a job performed by the methodology of social research. Many of the remaining titles are still available separately.

The Survey Method

The Contribution of Surveys to Sociological Explanation

Catherine Marsh

Series: Contemporary Social Research

In the early 1980s, the survey was the most widely used method of social research, but it had been the object of much damaging criticism. Critics maintained that there were philosophical flaws inherent in survey practice which made it unacceptable as valid method; sociology students were taught that surveys are 'positivist' and that alternatives should be sought wherever possible. In The Survey Method, originally published in 1982, Catherine Marsh examines such claims and shows that much of this criticism was ill-founded.

Social Causality

Jerald Hage , Barbara Foley Meeker

Series: Contemporary Social Research

Originally published in 1988, Social Causality takes the reader through the theoretical and practical maze that has to be negotiated before definitive statements about cause and effect in social research can be made. It was designed for the undergraduate student on a first research methods course; graduate students on more advanced methods courses will also find that it addresses questions with which they are regularly confronted. The authors explore the use of the term 'causality' as it exists in the social methodology, social theory and philosophical literatures, explaining different usages and common misconceptions.

Doing Secondary Analysis

Angela Dale , Sara Arber , Michael Procter

Series: Contemporary Social Research

Originally published in 1988 Doing Secondary Analysis is a practical guide to the secondary analysis of large-scale survey data. At a time when funding for primary data collection was increasingly constrained, the secondary analysis of high-quality government surveys offered the social scientist an unrivalled opportunity. This volume provided a guide which moves through every stage of 'doing secondary analysis'. The authors begin with the conceptualization of the research problem and examine all the practicalities of using both standard rectangular data and hierarchical data, and of deriving simple and complex variables.

Social Measurement and Social Indicators

Issues of Policy and Theory

Michael Carley

Series: Contemporary Social Research

For the early pioneers of the social indicator movement, the possibilities of doing social good by developing the tools of social measurement seemed endless. However, in the early 1980s these high, and perhaps naïve, hopes remained unfulfilled, especially for the data needs of the policy-maker. These difficulties reflected both policy-related and methodological issues. Originally published in 1981, Social Measurement and Social Indicators is not a 'how-to' guide on the construction of social indicators, but rather a critical and optimistic view of these central issues, as embodied in the literature and in practice at the time.

Critical Social Research

Lee Harvey

Series: Contemporary Social Research

First published in 1990, this title is a unique methodology textbook that provides students, lecturers and indeed all those involved in social research with an invaluable illustrative guide. The author argues that critical social research offers a perspective and a methodology that transcends divisions between quantitative and qualitative approaches. At the heart of critical social research is the idea that knowledge is structured by existing sets of social relations; its aim is to provide knowledge that engages with and challenges prevailing oppressive social structures. This book is divided into three parts, each addressing a different form of oppression – class, gender and race.

Data Construction in Social Surveys

Nicholas Bateson

Series: Contemporary Social Research

Before the early 1980s, much attention had been given in the social survey literature to the analysis and interpretation of data, but much less to the problems of constructing the individual datum. What do we mean by 'survey data'? What are 'good' data, and how do we recognise them? First published in 1984, Nicholas Bateson tackles these questions and offers a redefinition of the validity of survey data and suggests a new approach – or a more assertive formulation of an old approach – to the testing of data for validity. He specifies conditions that must be satisfied if survey data are to be called valid, and brings out the implications of his ideas for the management of survey error.

Routledge Library Editions: Social Administration & Social Policy (14 vols)

Various Authors

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Social Administration & Social Policy

Social policy is never static because both needs and resources alter. However, many of the issues which were central to social policy when these books were first published remain relevant for much of the world today: an ageing population, housing shortages, changes in employment. Originally published between 1965 and 1990 the 14 volumes in this set concentrate on the major developments in social policy in the second half of the 20th century. They consider these in relation to the economic and social environment, examining social policy in relation to industry, urban planning, and housing need.

An Introduction to the Study of Social Administration

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Social Administration & Social Policy

Originally published in 1965, this introductory textbook provides the student with an outline of the subject matter of Social Administration. It deals with the growth of this discipline of study, its inter-relatedness with the other social sciences, and examines the historical development and structure of the social services in the 20th Century. The book discusses the complexity of the study of the study of the formation and implementation of social policy in the United Kingdom and will be of interest to those in the areas of the history of social policy and the welfare state.

Housing, Social Policy and the State

Edited by Joseph Melling

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Social Administration & Social Policy

The topic of housing is central to urban history as well as to social policy. Historians have focussed either on local conditions or national developments, but until first publication of this book in 1980, there had been few systematic attempts to relate local amenities to general policy. The essays provide an interdisciplinary approach to the study of housing, blending original local studies with a novel theoretical perspective on the development of social policy. Covering a wide geographical area, the book focusses on housing conditions within the locality surveyed and the intervention of both local and central government in the provision of working-class dwellings.

Introducing Social Policy

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Social Administration & Social Policy

Originally published in 1979, this book concentrates on the major developments in social policy in the second half of the 20th century. The first part considers these in relation to the economic and social environment, comprising essays on social policy in relation to industry, urban planning, and housing need. Further chapters consider social policies designed to meet individual needs such as education, health, and the maintenance of income. The final section deals with personal social services, and the relation of social policy to crime. For its breadth and scope of coverage the book will be of interest to all students of the history of social policy and social work.

Social Policy in the Irish Republic

P. R. Kaim-Caudle

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Social Administration & Social Policy

Originally published in 1967, this book examines the health services, social insurance, social assistance, family allowances and housing in the Irish Republic during the late 20th Century. Discussion of the social services is introduced by an outline of the environment in which social policy operates – the political system, social implications of the demographic characteristics and the country's economy. The book will be of interest to historians of social policy and social work.

Caring for Strangers

An Introduction to Practical Philosophy for Student of Social Administration

David Watson

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Social Administration & Social Policy

Originally published in 1980, this book introduces students of social studies to ideas in moral, social and political philosophy which are useful for assessing social policy. At the same time the book enables philosophy students to discover the value of social and political philosophy beyond its traditional confines. The book begins with the claim that modern social welfare has to be thought of as help given to strangers and goes on to ask how services of this sort can be justified.

To Do The Sick No Harm

A Study of the British Voluntary Hospital System to 1875

John Woodward

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Social Administration & Social Policy

What part did the British voluntary hospital system play in the health of the community in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries? Did hospitals kill or cure? Originally published in 1974, this study investigates these questions through a pioneering examination of the extant hospital records, ranging from admissions registers to annual reports, and by an analysis of the contemporary literature. It relates the hospital system to the changing economic and social environment and is primarily concerned with the patients themselves and their experiences.

Retiring to the Seaside

Valerie Karn

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Social Administration & Social Policy

Originally published in 1977 and based on a survey of 1,000 retired people in two 'retirement resorts' – Bexhill and Clacton – the book also quotes extensively from interviews with local government officials, doctors, and social workers. The topics discussed include the scale of movement of retired people to the cost and the choices open to retired people once they have made the decision to move. The book discusses social life in the seaside resorts, contact with family and friends, leisure activities and the financial position and housing opportunities of the retired.

Poor Parents

Social Policy and the 'Cycle of Deprivation'

Bill Jordan

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Social Administration & Social Policy

Originally published in 1974, this book provides a critique of official policy towards families with young children living on low incomes and looks in detail at some of the myths prevalent in the public debate – both political and academic – about the 'cycle of deprivation', a phrase coined by Sir Keith Joseph (British Politician, 1918-1994). One of these myths is that it is possible to provide, on a selective basis, the best services for the poorest members of the community. Another is that the poorest group is the one which is in most need of every kind of social service.

Introduction to Social Administration in Britain

Muriel Brown , Sarah Payne

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Social Administration & Social Policy

Published in 1990, the seventh edition of this classic guide to social administration was first published in 1969. The book provides information about social problems and the structure and working of the social services in the late 20th Century. It also identifies the main lines of development in social legislation and clarifies the issues that dominated social policy, many of which are still relevant today. Major changes to provision in social security, health, education, employment and personal social services have been incorporated and the conflicts around these changes explored.

The Aims and Outcomes of Social Policy Research

Patricia Thomas

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Social Administration & Social Policy

Originally published in 1985, this book investigates, through real cases, whether independently funded research which was intended to solve social problems has had the desired effect. It also inquires whether civil servants believe that research has a part to play in the formulation of policy. The researcher's time scale is long and the policy maker's is short. Does this conflict always mean that the results of research are produced long after policy has been decided and implemented? The book also examines the funders of social research who make up the third party in the uneasy relationship between social scientists and policy makers.

The English Prison Officer Since 1850

A Study in Conflict

J. E. Thomas

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Social Administration & Social Policy

When this book was originally published in 1972 very little had been written about prison staff. The author acknowledges that interest should of course be concentrated on the prisoner community but maintains that the prison staff must also be examined if prisons are to be fully understood. This book demonstrates that the central figure in any prison system is the basic grade uniformed officer and that the collective views of officers have a direct and supreme impact on the working of the system. The book discusses the role of the prison officer in the English prison system, a highly centralized organization which has been in operation for over 150 years.

Social Policy in Action

Joan L. M. Eyden

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Social Administration & Social Policy

Social policy is never static because both needs and resources alter. It must involve a responsiveness to social change on the part of the agencies involved. Originally published in 1969, this study employs this dynamic approach and sets the subject against a background of democratic involvement. It discusses the fundamental questions of the nature, scope and intent of social policy. Throughout the approach to the subject is integrative. The book explains issues in terms of social policy, not fragmented social policies, in the discussion of common factors and common problems and above all in the realistic appraisal of means and ends in contemporary society.

Food in Nineteenth-Century British History

Volumes I-IV

Series: Nineteenth-Century Science, Technology and Medicine: Sources and Documents

This collection is a four volume set of primary sources on British food history in the long nineteenth century (c.1789-1914). It will make the compelling case that food is central to understanding all aspects of nineteenth-century Britain, as food permeates every aspect of our society, economy, politics and culture.

Nineteenth-Century British Pornography: Sources and Materials

Volume I: Textual Cultures of Pornography

Edited by Kathleen Lubey

This volume provides background texts for the early modern origins of pornography including its philosophic and literary foundations. By the early nineteenth-century, pornographic publications came out of the radical milieu during the global age of revolutions. In England, publishers wrote political philosophy and pornography in tandem. The age of revolutionary pornography ended in the 1860s, when William Dugdale, the doyen of them all, died in prison, sentenced to hard labour for obscenity.

Food in Nineteenth-Century British History

Volume Three: Mealtimes

Series: Nineteenth-Century Science, Technology and Medicine: Sources and Documents

Around the 1860s, publishers began printing books dedicated to specific meals. Breakfast. Luncheons. Afternoon Tea. Dinners. The appearance of focused cookbooks reveals the growing influence of advanced printing technologies and rising literacy levels combined with changes in social life and class relations that coalesced around food, granting mealtimes great importance. The sources reprinted in this volume were produced in response to the changing social dynamics that accompanied industrialisation, urbanisation and socio-economic modernisation.

Nineteenth-Century British Pornography: Sources and Materials

Volume II: Pornography and Science

Edited by Sarah Bull

This volume details scientific pornography during the long nineteenth century. Though there is little overlap between pornography and sexual science currently, in the past pornographers played up scientific credentials to reassure readers while the state used the ambiguity between categories to censor information about birth control and sexual nonconformity. This volume provides evidence from the mid-century years during which time many of the main producers of pornography were affiliated with anthropology, geography, bibliography, and medicine.

Food in Nineteenth-Century British History

Volume IV: Britain, Food and the World

Series: Nineteenth-Century Science, Technology and Medicine: Sources and Documents

Volume 4 examines the British diet from its colonial and global perspectives. Colonialism, combined with rapidly improving global transport networks, introduced the British introduced to a plethora of unfamiliar foods from overseas. The British stomach was introduced to new spices and herbs, although fears persisted that the British constitution was ill-suited to rich, foreign foods. A selection of sources will bring to life how the increasingly globalised world changed British eating habits, while introducing readers to the many debates surrounding this transition.

Nineteenth-Century British Pornography: Sources and Materials

Edited by Sarah Bull , Colette Colligan , Kathleen Lubey , Lisa Z. Sigel

The four-volume set provides a compendium of rare primary sources focusing on pornography in nineteenth-century Britain for students and scholars alike. These sources can be used individually and in combination to historicise the emergence of pornography and investigate the aspects of society that it illuminates. The pornography of the period documents how people imagined sexuality in their changing society. These volumes provide primary sources that give scholars and students a starting point to explore these shifts and how the historic context shaped ideas of sexuality at every level.

Nineteenth-Century British Pornography: Sources and Materials

Volume IV: Mass Market Pornography

Edited by Lisa Z. Sigel

This volume concerns itself with arrival of mass pornography at the end of the nineteenth century and the beginning of the twentieth. This volume details the rise of cheap, readily available, and much maligned materials such as postcards, pamphlets, and photographs. Mass pornography expanded the market to include women, children, the poor, and people of colour in Great Britain and across the British Empire. The volume documents imperial and international attempts to curtail the spread of pornography that took place between the 1880s and 1914 and provides examples of who suffered as a result.

Nineteenth-Century British Pornography: Sources and Materials

Volume III: Pornographic Literature and the Underground Book Trade, 1880s-1910s

Edited by Colette Colligan

This volume examines the growth of high-end literary pornographic productions that took place towards the final quarter of the nineteenth century and were largely published on the continent where control of production was lax. These publications were published and circulated for the elite. Publications that came from this group and period include The Pearl, My Secret Life, Romance of Lust, and The Sins of the Cities of the Plain; or, The Recollections of a Mary-Ann, with Short Essays on Sodomy and Tribadism. The volume includes Home Office and Foreign Office records that detail the methods attempted to limit the spread of pornography.

Robert Southey

The Expedition of Orsua; and the Crimes of Aguirre

Edited by Tim Fulford

First published in 1821, Robert Southey's 'Expedition of Orsua and the Crimes of Aguirre' is the first account in English of one of the earliest expeditions down the Amazon River, made in the years 1560-1 by a renegade band of Spanish conquistadors in search of El Dorado. This sensational story features mutiny, madness, and murder– the total breakdown of order among power-hungry colonists as they are carried further into the jungle. This edition contains a comprehensive critical apparatus that make sense of the major issues posed by the text and show how it contributes to studies of Southey, of colonialism and of travel/exploration writing in the nineteenth century more widely.

Empire and Popular Culture

Edited by John Griffiths

Series: Routledge Historical Resources

From 1830, the Empire began to permeate the domestic culture of Empire nations in many ways. From consumables, to the excitement of colonial wars, celebrations relating to events in the history of Empire, and Empire Day, most citizens were encouraged to think of themselves not only as citizens of a nation but of an Empire. The popular culture of the period presented Empire as a force for 'civilisation' but this was far from the truth, it was largely a repressive mechanism designed to ultimately benefit white settlers and the metropolitan economy. This four volume collection contains a wide array of primary sources, complimented by editorial narratives.

AI for EVERYTHING

Artificial intelligence (AI) is all around us. From driverless cars to game winning computers to fraud protection, AI is already involved in many aspects of life, and its impact will only continue to grow in future. Many of the world's most valuable companies are investing heavily in AI research and development, and not a day goes by without news of cutting-edge breakthroughs in AI and robotics. The AI for Everything series will explore the role of AI in contemporary life, from cars and aircraft to medicine, education, fashion and beyond. Concise and accessible, each book is written by an expert in the field and will bring the study and reality of AI to a broad readership including nterested professionals, students, researchers, and lay readers.
